French Await 3-Power Parley Today in Arms Crisis.

Hull Gives Reich Inferential Rebuke

Italy Won't Permit the League to Act in African Crisis.

The European Crisis.

French troops estimated at 25,000 started moving to the vicinity of the Rhine fortifications.

Hitler planned to demand a navy more than double the size of the Reich's present fleet.

A French deputy charged Germany already has "declared war" by flouting the Versailles Treaty.

Italy refused to permit the League of Nations council's intervention in the Abyssinian dispute.

Russian Ambassador Troyanovsky, speaking in New York, said a European war, now imminent, would mean a universal war. He said the Soviet was prepared to meet any emergency.

Secretary of State Hull inferentially rebuked Germany for rearmament in urging strict adherence to treaty provisions.

By the Associated Press.

Nice, France, March 22.—Authoritative quarters tonight said 25,000 French troops now stationed along the southeastern border soon would be transferred to garrisons where they would be able quickly to man the Rhine fortifications.

The detachments to be transferred include infantry, heavy and light artillery and anti-aircraft defense units, it was stated.

Approximately 45,000 men now are stationed along the Italo-French border.

Withdrawal of the greater part of these, the informant said, would be possible because of recently improved Franco-Italian relations.

The movement of the troops closer to the Franco-German border would be in line with the policy announced before the Chamber of Deputies military committee by Gen. Louis Felix Maurin, defense minister, to assure adequate forces for the defensive fortifications along the frontier on which France has long been working.

Copyright, 1935, by the United Press.

Paris, March 22.—Germany's intention to re-arm was denounced in the Chamber of Deputies today as a "German declaration of war."

Henry Franklin-Bouillon, independent leader, shouted:

"By unilateral re-armament, Germany has declared war. Are we going to give in?"

The Chamber answered with an overwhelming vote of approval on the government's measure asking ratification of the Rome accords designed to preserve peace in Europe. The vote was 555 to 9.

The accords pointedly oppose denunciation of the war treaties by lone action, as in the case of Germany last week when Hitler announced conscription army plans.

Tripartite Parley Today.

The Chamber's debate came on the eve of the meeting here tomorrow of statesmen from the former allied powers, Great Britain, Italy and France, to consider the next move in checking the Reich's campaign for immediate equality. Capt. Anthony Eden, British representative, arrived by airplane from London.

Franklin-Bouillon in a violent speech to the Chamber declared: "There is only one outlet for a

Universal War Is Near, Warns Soviet's Envoy

Won't Be Confined to the States of Europe, Says Troyanovsky.

By the United Press.

New York, March 22.—War in Europe—of which there is a "growing danger"—would inevitably be a universal war and the "greatest of all wars," Alexander A. Troyanovsky, Soviet Ambassador to the United States, today told a luncheon meeting of New York financiers.

"We Russians," said Troyanovsky, "have a saying that the fire by which Moscow was burned down started from a penny candle, but now it is not a candle but whole barrels of gunpowder that are smoldering in Europe.

"The growing danger of war is noticeable even for the people who do not like to see this danger and who prefer not to hear anything about the approach of military conflicts."

The Russian was the second foreign diplomat to speak here this week on the likelihood of war and his view was in direct contradiction. Japanese Ambassador Hirosi Saito told the Japan Society Wednesday night that he saw no danger of serious conflict "either across the Atlantic or the Pacific, and especially in North America."

Perhaps Americans, the Russian diplomat said, "can still ponder," but, he added, "for us who live in the danger of war the situation is urgent.

"A new conflagration in Europe could not be local and isolated.

"I do not believe that there are many informed persons who still have hopes of limiting a new war, if it comes, in one case to western Europe, in another case to eastern Europe and in still another to southern Europe.

"It would inevitably be a universal war, the greatest of all great wars, made all the more barbarous and horrible by present-day technical improvements and inventions, fast, far-flying airplanes, new bases and more destructive explosives.

"Not only soldiers, but remote civilians, will suffer from poison gases and air attacks.

"Whole cities and villages will

Jersey Indicts Kidnap Witness

Perjury in Testimony at Hauptmann Trial Is Charged.

By the Associated Press.

Flemington, N. J., March 22.—A witness for Bruno Richard Hauptmann at his trial for the Lindbergh baby killing was indicted for perjury today.

Prosecutor Anthony M. Hauck, jr., declined to reveal the name of the person indicted, but it was learned from an authoritative source that it was Benjamin Heier, New York restaurant cashier. Three witnesses testified before the grand jury.

Heier swore at Hauptmann's trial he was sitting in his parked automobile near the gate of St. Raymond's cemetery, the Bronx, on the night of April 2, 1932, the date of the payment of the $50,000 Lindbergh ransom. He said he saw a man who resembled the late Isador Fisch, Hauptmann's business partner, jump from the cemetery wall.

In rebuttal the State called a witness who testified Heier's automobile struck his car in midtown New York about the time Heier said he was at the cemetery.

Senate Clash Halts Stride Of Work Bill

Threats of Filibuster and Cloture Again Delay Vote on Measure.

Thomas, Robinson Row After Former's Long Inflationary Talk.

By Robert C. Albright.

Threats of filibuster and counter threats of cloture yesterday plunged the President's work relief bill into another parliamentary maelstrom, as nerves frayed by two months of rambling debate neared the snapping point in the Senate.

Angry clashes followed a silver inflationary speech of nearly six hours by Senator Elmer Thomas, erect, white-haired Oklahoma Democrat. At the close of his speech, Thomas blocked a move for debate limitation.

This aroused Majority Leader Joseph T. Robinson, who has been driving for passage of the bill by today. Bristling over the delay, Robinson canceled the usual Saturday holiday.

"I give notice that we may expect a long session tomorrow," he warned Senators.

Thomas retorted sharply:

"In that event, we will have Sunday morning prayer in the Senate."

Cloture Is Threatened.

Robinson wheeled on him with the cloture threat. The majority leader had been sitting quietly most of the day, waiting for the Oklahoman to conclude arguments for a silver monetization rider on the works bill. That over, he hoped to persuade Senators to limit remarks to 15 minutes on pending amendments and speed the measure to passage. The Thomas objection ended hope of that.

In a voice that betrayed the strain he was under, Robinson announced:

"I now give notice that an effort will be made to bring this debate to a close by cloture."

If Senators are going to continue to bring in "dilatory and irrelevant amendments," he said, he may find it necessary "to test the sentiment of the Senate by moving to table these amendments."

He said he knew such action was not customary, but believed the measure already had been too long before the Senate.

"It is about time for those who are for the bill to take concerted action to secure its passage," he shouted.

Sixteen Can Close Debate.

Under the seldom-used cloture rule which Robinson may invoke, 16 Senators may sign a petition to close off debate. A vote would be forced in two days and, if approved by a two-thirds ballot, would limit each Senator to one hour.

With silver, greenback and bonus inflation riders still to be voted on, and a highly controversial amendment by Senator Pat McCarran (Democrat), of Nevada, requiring Senate confirmation of all works appointees above the $5,000 salary class, leaders fear they are heading into another long week of debate.

Adding to their difficulties, Senator Huey P. Long, of Louisiana, who has been in his native State arguing a telephone rate case, will be back Monday. Every day is speaking day for Huey, and he is perfectly capable of a one-man filibuster.

Exchange With Robinson.

Although Thomas talked for 5½ hours, there was no indication of a filibuster until his final exchange with Robinson. Thomas said he chose this means of getting the Senate to consider mandatory monetization of silver, because he thought there was no chance of ever getting a silver bill through the Senate Banking Committee.

In this connection there was an amusing duel with Senator Carter Glass, of Virginia, who is managing debate on the works bill, and is chairman of the Senate Banking sub-committee, which might have had jurisdiction over the Thomas silver bill.

"The Senator must know that no bill has ever been within my jurisdiction the proponents of which have not had an opportunity to state their views," said Glass. "I

Bankers Ask Wider Power For Reserve

Propose Board Be Made a Supreme Court of Finance.

Urge Bill Be Amended to Insure Freedom From Partisanship.

Bankers of the Nation, through a special committee of the American Bankers Association, yesterday opened a fight on portions of the Administration's new banking bill.

A change was called for in the method of selection and the tenure of office of members of the Federal Reserve Board "to insure, as far as possible, the absolute independence of the board from partisan or political considerations."

Dropping of the Secretary of the Treasury and the Comptroller of the Currency from the board's membership was asked, as was its reduction from eight members to five.

The committee's statement, signed by Rudolf S. Hecht, Robert V. Fleming, Tom K. Smith, Winthrop W. Aldrich and Ronald Ransom, was presented to the House Banking Committee. It approved sections dealing with deposit insurance and technical changes in the banking laws, but criticized parts intended to increase Government control over the Federal Reserve System and to liberalize lending powers of reserve banks.

Would Weaken Link.

Removal of the two Administration figures from the board would be directly contrary to the Administration's desire for a closer connection between the board and the Treasury.

Further reduction to five members could be accomplished by declining to fill the first vacancy that occurs.

"Since the passage of the Federal Reserve act," the statement says, "informed opinion both in Congress and among bankers has been striving toward the ideal of making the Federal Reserve Board of such independence and prestige that it might be described as the Supreme Court of Finance and Banking. We believe there is greater need now than ever before for realizing this ideal."

Will Improve Operation.

The committee held that provisions of Title 1 of the bill "will improve the operation" of the Deposit Insurance Corporation.

"We know, however," the statement continued, "that there are many nonmember banks * * * who feel that the provisions of Title 1 making it compulsory for all banks to join the Federal Reserve System by July 1, 1937, should be given further careful study by Congress before that time."

The statement expressed the belief that provisions of Title 3, consisting of amendments to the banking act of 1933, "will materially clarify and improve the present laws."

Switz Spy Confessions May Win Pair Liberty

Paris, March 22 (AP).—Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gordon Switz, because of "valuable confessions," were virtually assured acquittal when their trial for espionage is held March 25, it was learned today.

Judicial circles expressed the belief that the East Orange, N. J., and New York couple, who have spent 15 months in prison, are likely to be freed shortly after questioning by judges at the opening of their trial with 19 others implicated in the far-flung Russian spy ring.

House Votes Greenback Bonus, 318 to 90, Defying Roosevelt

Hint of New Tax Comes From White House After Roll Call.

Ballot Threatens Overriding of Veto

The vote on House passage of the bonus bill—Page 6.

By Douglas Warrenfels.

Immediate cash payment of the bonus in greenbacks was voted yesterday by the House.

The Patman bill was passed by 318 to 90, a vote which thundered defiance to the President, and indicated a veto would be overridden at least by the House, should the Administration drive for a compromise hit a snag in the Senate.

Representative Wright Patman, stocky Texas Democrat, won't forget the nerve-wracking tussle soon because last-minute vote-switching was required to give his scheme a scanty three-vote margin in a preliminary clash and prevent victory for the Vinson bond issue proposal.

Soon after the lusty yells of Patman's followers ceased reverberating through the crowded legislative halls President Roosevelt significantly observed that imposition of new taxes would depend on congressional appropriations.

Senate Hearings Due.

While he declined direct comment on the bonus, Mr. Roosevelt made plain the revived flow of taxes into the Treasury would provide for all items in the regular budget. Smiling broadly, he cautioned reporters not to regard what he said as a threat.

Chairman Harrison announced the Senate Finance Committee would hold brief bonus hearings shortly. He added there was "no chance" for Senate approval of a possible rider by Senator Thomas (Democrat), Oklahoma, to link the Patman plan to the works bill.

"I have half a dozen compromise bills in my pocket," Harrison chuckled.

The House roll call on final passage showed 247 Democrats, 61 Republicans, 7 Progressives and 3 Farmer-Laborites voting for the bonus with 55 Democrats and 35 Republicans voting "nay."

Most of the fireworks centered around which bill should be passed—not whether the bonus should be approved.

Lobbyists for the Patman bill and the competitive bond issue plan of Representative Fred M. Vinson (Democrat), Kentucky, continued to bottonhole members while the roll was being called.

Byrns Acts in Pinch.

Patman was backed by inflationists and the Veterans of Foreign Wars, while Vinson drew support from old guard Democrats and the American Legion.

White-thatched Representative Thomas H. Cullen, chief of the Tammany delegation and a Patman lieutenant, asked a question, though he knew the answer, so the bewildered members would know how to vote.

"Mr. Speaker," he said, "there is considerable confusion in the minds of the members as to the exact parliamentary status of this bonus bill."

Speaker Byrns fingered his gavel deliberately and responded:

"The situation is this: The chair will recognize the gentleman from Kentucky, Mr. Vinson, who intends to make a motion to recommit the bill to committee and substitute his bill for the Patman bill. A vote of

Roosevelt Asks Bill to Tighten Food-Drug Law

By Leon Dure, Jr.

Shortly after the Senate Commerce Committee had voted a favorable report on the Copeland pure food and drug bill, President Roosevelt dispatched a message to Congress yesterday urging action at this session to tighten up the food and drug law.

Although the President did not specifically indorse the Copeland measure, which is a modification of the hotly contested Tugwell bill introduced last year, his message was believed to have greatly increased chances for such legislation this year.

Declaring that changes in conditions have made "loopholes" in the old law, Mr. Roosevelt told Congress:

"It is time to make practical improvements. A measure is needed which will extend the controls formerly applicable only to labels to advertising also; which will extend protection to the trade in cosmetics; which will provide for a cooperative method of setting standards and for a system of inspection and enforcement to reassure consumers grown hesitant and doubtful; and which will provide for a necessary flexibility in administration as products and conditions change."

He hastened to add that "no

2 Prison Camp Heads Ousted For North Carolina Brutality

Physician and Two Guards Also Dismissed in Investigation; Chaining of Men to Doors Is Abolished.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Raleigh, N. C., March 22.—Five prison camp attaches were dismissed and punishment by chaining men to the doors of their cells was abolished here today by the State Highway and Public Works Commission as a result of an investigation into alleged brutality in prison road camps.

Those dismissed were Camp Superintendents H. C. Little and T. S. Brown, Camp Physician Dr. C. S. McLaughlin and Guards J. A. Rape and J. W. Eudy. Guard T. M. Gordon was suspended for one month, but may be reinstated.

Not only will the practice of chaining men in a standing position be abolished, but other disciplinary methods will be revised, the commission decided. A system maintaining discipline by giving rewards for good conduct will be instituted. All decisions were taken on the basis of a report by Capus M. Waynick, chairman of the commission, who conducted the investigation. The investigation was made after reports were circulated that the feet of two prisoners had been amputated and that another had died as a result of the punishment. The form of discipline consisted of chaining the men to their cell doors in a standing position for ten hours a day.

Commenting on this punishment, the commission's report said:

"It is our judgment that the regulations specifying compulsory standing in solitary confinement would not result in the kind of incident which occasioned this investigation if the punishment were executed in all cases in accordance with departmental rules. We are announcing our purpose to abandon this form of punishment chiefly because of the evidence that carelessness in execution can result in the impairment of the health or the endangering of the lives of the prisoners. It is our purpose to work out substitute measures of both reward and punishment and to seek to maintain discipline without this particular device."

In stating its dismissal of the prison officials, the commission's report said:

"Our investigation convinced us that Superintendent Little has been exercising more freedom of choice in discipline of the prisoners in his charge than the instructions of the Soviet Gives Up Railway Rights In Manchukuo

Payment Is Turned Over to Russian Envoy, Ending Dispute.

By the Associated Press.

Tokyo, March 23.—The Soviet bowed its way off the Manchurian stage today at ceremonies marking transfer of the historic Chinese Eastern Railway to the new, Japanese-created empire of Manchukuo.

A check for 23,333,000 yen (the yen is currently quoted at about 27.8 cents, which Gen. Ting Shih-Yuan, Manchukuan ambassador to Tokyo, handed to Konstantin Yureneff, the Soviet ambassador, officially clinched the bargain by which Manchukuo became sole owner of the railway.

(At Nanking early this month the Chinese foreign office declared China still retains her claim to part ownership in the railway, formerly owned jointly by China and Russia, and said the sale is considered "illegal.")

Thus ended Japan's long struggle to turn back Russia's glacier-like penetration into East Asia, which 40 years ago appeared irresistible, and thus was removed, diplomats agreed, one of the most prolific sources of Russo-Japanese friction.

Richberg, Taking NRA Helm, Urges 7(a) Enforcement Law

Support of Wagner Bill Seen in Statement of New Chief Pledging Vigorous Administration; Roosevelt Confident of Extension.

By Felix Bruner.

The Blue Eagle, sometimes called a dodo, yesterday preened its remaining feathers, cocked an eye toward the dust-laden spring sky—and fluttered.

Prodded by its new boss, Donald R. Richberg, and encouraged by President Roosevelt, the bird showed more signs of life than it has shown for several months.

Richberg actively took over the direction of NRA, as acting chairman of the Recovery Board. President Roosevelt declared that the NRA is not "a Little Orphan Annie," but a very lively young lady. He said he believed the bill giving the organization two more years of life would be enacted by Congress.

At the same time, strength was given to the report that the Administration will support the Wagner labor relations bill in return for agreement of organized labor to support the NRA.

Richberg declared he was convinced that adequate machinery is needed for investigation of labor complaints and enforcement of labor provisions of the NRA. Labor leaders, for the first time since its introduction, expressed confidence that the Wagner bill would be passed.

In a formal statement, Richberg said the NRA is passing into a new period of its development.

"Pending the enactment of legislation, it would be unwise to put into effect new major policies which should receive the sanction of Congress," he continued. "But it is also necessary to make clear that the fundamental policies of the NRA and its activities, which have received overwhelming public sup-

700-Pound Meteorite Found on Kansas Farm

Hugoton, Kans., March 22 (AP).—Discovery of a meteorite weighing about 700 pounds on the farm of J. D. Lynch, six miles northwest of here, was disclosed today.

Dr. H. H. Niningar, meteorologist from the Denver Museum, who was instrumental in discovery of the huge aerolite, said it was the largest ever found in Kansas and the second largest in the world. It was imbedded 36 inches in the earth and was covered with eight inches of dirt, indicating, Dr. Niningar said, that it had fallen 100 or more years ago.

2,600-Mile Atlantic Hop Starts As Test of New Ocean Clippers

By the Associated Press.

Miami, Fla., March 22.—A four-motored, 19-ton plane droned over Atlantic waves tonight on a 2,600-mile nonstop flight to prove the feasibility of commercial trans-oceanic service.

The journey through the night simulated those planned for clipper ships as Pan-American Airways planes spread their wings for trade over the Pacific from California to Honolulu and, in the not too distant future, China.

The silvery Pan-American clipper swept into the air from Biscayne Bay at the international airport and its six-man crew expected to return to the home hangar about noon tomorrow.

The charted flight, a great arc course from Miami out over the Atlantic and a deep circle as far southeast as the Leeward Islands, beyond Puerto Rico, measured approximately 2,600 miles.

This distance was 200 miles greater than the airline mileage between the California coast and Honolulu, longest hop of the Pacific route to China.

At the controls of Pan-American Clipper was a quiet veteran of more than 10,000 hours aloft. Capt. Edwin C. Musick, who has made more than 1,000 round trips over the Caribbean between Miami and Latin-American ports.

On the flying bridge with him was another skilled flier, First Officer R. O. D. Sullivan. Stocky, of ruddy complexion, Sullivan is a former naval pilot who has flown for 15 years.

While they held the controls, four others told them of the plane's progress and performance, F. J. Noonan, navigator; Harry Canaday, pilot-radio operator; V. A. Wright,

His Sweetheart's Knife Thrust Ends Writer's Bohemian Career

By the Associated Press.

New Orleans, March 22.—The bohemian romance of two young writers ended today with John Irving Pierce, 23, dead with a knife in his heart in the "Nut Club," French quarter cafe—stabbed by Marian King, also 23, his drinking companion.

Pierce, the son of a well-to-do Jackson (Miss.), widow, furnished the knife and died dramatically and apparently unaware of the seriousness of the wound which punctured his heart.

She described the stabbing and events leading up to it in the following statement to Assistant District Attorney M. E. Culligan:

"We had a couple of drinks and had been having an argument for some time, something that I can't talk about. Johnnie made some rather pointed remarks.

"Earlier in the evening I told him that 'you know that this the wrong time to go too far.' I had a nervous breakdown when I kicked the junk habit three months ago. . . . I said, 'for heaven's sake, Johnnie, let's cut in out for tonight.'

"He didn't do anything but just deliver another jibe. When he took the knife out of his pocket, he said: 'O. K., baby, I've told you that anytime we had a difference of opinion, and that you should feel it would develop into a fight, all you had to do was ask for your difference.'

"And he handed me the knife.

"I stabbed him. I didn't want to hurt him, I just wanted to make him stop it.

"After I stabbed him I said: 'I didn't mean it, Johnnie, I'm sorry.'

"He took the knife from my hand and then handed me his billfold.

Doctors Abandon All Hope for Howe

All hope for Louis McHenry Howe, the President's secretary, was abandoned early last night when physicians at the White House announced that pleurisy has developed in the left lung, in addition to other complications.

Mr. Howe has been seriously ill for more than two weeks, suffering a combination of bronchial trouble and heart weakness. The President is receiving constant reports from the bedside and has visited him daily for the past week.

Hoover Plans More Activity In G.O.P. Cause

Expected to Project Self Further Into '36 Plans on Trip East in April.

Copyright, 1935, by the Associated Press.

Strong intimations that Herbert Hoover intends to become increasingly active in a steadily formulating, two-fold Republican campaign for 1936 were available last night in the Capital.

While quarters in touch with him said it was too early to talk of set speeches, it was added that the former President certainly would speak out on more than one issue henceforth.

The titular chief of the G. O. P. was disclosed to be planning to travel East from his Palo Alto, Calif., home again next month. Although the trip will be of a business nature, it was considered inevitable that his visit—and conferences—would toss a straw or two into the political winds.

Healing G. O. P. Breach Is Aim.

At the time it occurs, the two-fold Republican strategy is expected at the Capitol to be the more centered on depicting the New Deal as un-American and unsound, while simultaneously concerning itself with uniting the diverse wings of the party.

These themes already have marked Republican gatherings of the past few weeks in New York, Kansas and Michigan. And some members of the party here anticipate a further effort to weld right-left factions at a projected gathering of Republicans from 11 Midwestern States.

It can be stated definitely that this line of strategy is strongly indorsed in the Hoover camp. As outlined here, the idea of those close to the former President is: Build up the party first rather than any one candidate.

Candidate Secondary Now.

Behind this was said to be the thought that to put forward a candidate now would be to develop differences and factions within the party, thus splitting rather than uniting it.

As to whether Hoover himself is personally candidate-minded, opinion was divided, but mainly in the negative. In one quarter it was said he had not definitely closed the door should there be a concerted demand that he run. In another quarter of the Capital it was asserted that Hoover is definitely "out" as a possible candidate.

In any event the former President has been increasingly active. He maintains a secretarial staff at Palo Alto and conducts an extensive correspondence. Recently the mail volume has increased.

Curtis Again Factor.

An even more recent straw in the wind is the determination of Charles Curtis, Hoover's running mate in 1928 and 1932, to be in the thick of the '36 campaign. Curtis yesterday made it clear, however, that he would never again seek office himself, and that the present was not the time to talk political issues.

But from his attitude and that prevailing in the Hoover camp, little doubt remained that the presidential campaign now not far in the offing will see much of the same two men who last carried the Republican standard.

U. S. Affords Farmers Two Plans to Get Seeds

By the Associated Press.

Farmers were given the benefit of two forms of Federal aid yesterday in obtaining seed for spring planting.

Shortly after the Farm Credit Administration prepared for distribution of $60,000,000 in seed loans to growers hard hit by last year's drought, the Agricultural Administration announced those unable to finance seed purchases in time could ask assistance from the Relief Administration, which will issue purchase orders.

Between You and Me

Keeping NRA Alive; The Bonus Rivalry; Will Taxes Go Up? Hands Off the HOLC.

By Raymond Clapper

NRA is coming up for the third time. Gen. Johnson left it for a dead dodo. Then came Clay Williams and the "practical men" but the temporary signs of life disappeared quickly and NRA was again overcome by pernicious anemia. Now Mr. Roosevelt has called in Donald Richberg to give it another blood transfusion.

The object of putting Richberg in control is to keep NRA alive until Congress can be cajoled into authorizing a two-year reprieve. President Roosevelt denies NRA is a little Orphan Annie and the Administration is working like a movie lot director to give it a Mae West look.

Surrounded by the same camera men and photographers who have turned up at the bedside on previous occasions when NRA was rescued from death's door, Richberg said yesterday that he would carry on enforcement of existing codes as far as possible. But the adverse decisions of the lower courts and the obvious lack of enthusiasm in Congress over extending the life of NRA make this difficult. The most Richberg can hope to do is to keep a semblance of life in the organization on the theory that Congress will be more likely to continue a live organization than a dead one.

More important than window-dressing is the fact that the Administration has won labor leaders over to a continuance of NRA by a bargain to support the Wagner labor disputes bill, and the additional fact that thousands of jobs not only in NRA, but among the code authorities administering some 700-odd jobs, are dependent upon continuation of the experiment. Large elements in the business community are for retaining the experiment.

The Administration is approaching Congress gingerly and tactfully in seeking an extension, but that does not mean it is lukewarm in its desire. If necessary, every resource of the Administration will be brought into play to save NRA. Failure of Congress to save this keystone recovery experiment would stand as a spectacular repudiation of the Roosevelt program. It would do incalculable injury to the Administration's standing before the country. For that reason the Administration can not afford to let it happen.

* * * *

Behind the House bonus fight was the most furious rivalry between veteran groups ever seen at the Capitol. American Legion leaders, with prestige and numbers behind them, lobbied aggressively for the Vinson bill. Veterans of Foreign Wars pounded the corridors of the House Office buildings in behalf of the Patman bill. On the final showdown between them the vote was a tie at first, but three members rushed up and tipped the balance to Patman. This is the first time the legion has been behind a bonus bill officially.

* * * *

The National Industrial Conference Board has estimated that all Federal taxes would have to be doubled to balance the Federal budget during the coming fiscal year, when the President originally expected to balance income and outgo. Even that extreme measure would do it only theoretically because if, for instance, customs duties were doubled, the receipts would not by any means be twice as large. The higher duties would act to bar imports. The same would be true of liquor taxes which, if doubled, probably would encourage more bootlegging.

If no additional revenues were obtainable from customs, liquor and cigarettes, an average increase of other taxes amounting to 140 per cent would be necessary to balance the budget. Leaving out an increase in processing taxes also, the figure would jump to 177 per cent.

Mr. Roosevelt is holding off on any predictions about increased taxes. It depends upon whether Congress goes out of bounds. He does not believe an increase would be necessary on the basis of the Administration legislative program. But if the bonus were forced through—well he is making no threats.

Congressional shooting at HOLC has subsided, and one reason is that word got around that the files of this agency would not make particularly helpful reading for some individual members if they were made public. For months HOLC was the happy hunting ground of patronage seekers and Senators and Representatives in quest of favors for deserving constituents. Their letters are being carefully preserved in the files.

Chairman Colden, of the House Committee on Disposition of Useless Executive Papers, is asking the House to change the name of his committee by striking out the word "useless."

"The name of this committee has made it a joke," Colden said. "If the job is taken seriously there is plenty of work to do. There are 3,000,000 cubic feet of papers in storage and some of them should be disposed of. But our job is as much to preserve papers as to destroy useless ones."

RFC Loan Used In Propaganda, Senators Told

Bankers Accused by Lawyer of Urging Rail Plan With $400,000.

By the Associated Press.

An assertion that Speyer & Co., and other New York bankers used $400,000 of a $1,000,000 RFC loan to the St. Louis-San Francisco Railroad in August, 1932, to "finance propaganda" for an "inequitable readjustment" plan for that line was made yesterday before a Senate committee.

J. L. Kraus, New York attorney, who was favoring the Wheeler resolution for an investigation of railroad financing, said he was one of a group that petitioned the courts for a receivership for the Frisco three years ago. The road now is operating under a trusteeship.

The witness said the $1,000,000 loan was intended to pay taxes and interest on the railroad's obligations, but the bankers constituting the executive committee of the road's board of directors "spent a good part" of $400,000 to pay counsel, advertising agents and protective committees.

The courts are hearing a contest by the trustees, he said, to hold the bankers liable for the amount.

Kraus modified his statement somewhat after Senator Couzens (Republican), Michigan, asked if he knew this to be a fact.

"I can't say anything as to a fact," the witness said, "but it's what has been testified to. I believe it to be a fact." He then added the $1,000,000 loan was put with some other of the road's funds and the $400,000 "taken from the pot."

Under questioning from Chairman Wheeler (Democrat), Montana, Kraus said Harvey Couch, Arkansas financier, became a director of the RFC after resigning from the Frisco board and the "Frisco was the first road to stand beggar on the doorstep of the RFC."

Kraus also charged the New York bankers forced the Frisco to lay off 50 per cent of its employes in order to insure dividend payments in 1931 and that President J. M. Kurn of the road protested "maintenance of way had been reduced to a point where we are taking chances."

Planes to Carry Radium.

Edmonton, Alberta, March 22 (AP).—Airplanes will fly $2,000,000 worth of radium ore from the mines to railroads this year. W. L. Brintell, president of the Mackenzie Air Service, said today the ore is to be moved this summer from the desolate wilderness of the Great Bear Lake country to the refinery at Port Hope, Ont.

Steel Merger Defense Rests.

Cleveland, March 22 (AP).—The defense rested its case today in the Government's suit to enjoin the $330,000,000 merger of the Republic Steel Corporation and the Corrigan, McKinney Steel Corporation. The Government contended the merger would be a violation of the Clayton antitrust act.

Jobless Man Freed In 2-Potato Theft

By the Associated Press.

Los Angeles, March 22.—The case against David Kanard, 69 years old and out of work, on charges of stealing two potatoes, was dismissed today by Judge Clement L. Nye.

The court set aside Kanard's plea of guilty and entered one of not guilty after learning the man's record otherwise was clean.

Mining Expert Called to Stand In Mellon Case

Says Demand for Metals and Soft Coal Is Decreasing.

By the Associated Press.

Pittsburgh, March 22.—Dr. William Otis Hotchkiss, middle-aged president of the Michigan College of Mining and Technology, asserted today at the Andrew W. Mellon income tax hearing that the demand for all metals and bituminous coal is lessening yearly with little prospect of any pick-up.

Pointing to charts made up from Government figures before the Tax Appeals Board, the witness showed that from 1880 until between 1910 and 1915, the production and consumption curves of metals and coal rose rapidly. Then they flattened out, and, after 1930, skidded sharply downward.

He said, however, that up until 1925 no one would have been able, from available statistics, to have distinguished the "levelling off" period.

"So that up until that period, the charts presented a perfect picture of a heyday of prosperity in prospect?" asked Mellon's chief counsel, Frank J. Hogan.

"That is correct," replied the witness.

Hogan was trying to demonstrate that from all available data in 1913, the McClintic-Marshall Corporation, as second largest steel fabricating concern in America, had a bright future and that its sale price at that time would have been high.

In claiming $3,089,000 back taxes from Mellon on his 1931 income, the Government is contending $1,000,000 is due because of the acquisition of McClintic-Marshall, in which he had a 30 per cent interest, by Bethlehem Steel.

The Government says Mellon's share in the company in 1913, the base year for income tax purposes, was not more than $1,500,000 and Mellon asserts it was worth more than $4,600,000.

"Efficiency is coal's worst competitor," Hotchkiss said in giving his explanation of the decline and his observation that there is little prospect of any increase in demand.

Davey Pictures Hopkins Loser In Relief Fight

'Nation-Wide Cleanup' Seen as Michigan Group Supports Ohioan.

By the Associated Press.

Columbus, Ohio, March 22.—Gov. Martin L. Davey forecast today "a Nation-wide movement to clean up the relief situation," as he sensed victory in what he terms his fight for elimination of "inefficiency and inhuman practices" in the administration of Federal relief.

Davey's prediction came as he announced receipt of a telegram from a committee of superintendents of the poor in Michigan, commending him for what the committee called "your gallant fight for a square deal instead of the raw deal in which Ohio seems to find itself in the administration of public relief."

The Governor reiterated previous assertions that relief costs could be cut 20 per cent. The first objective in his dispute with Harry L. Hopkins, Federal relief administrator, was accomplished, he said, when President Roosevelt directed Hopkins to assume "complete charge" of Federal relief in Ohio. The President acted after reading evidence Hopkins asserted indicated a "shakedown" for political funds from firms selling goods to the State Relief Commission.

His other objective, "to eliminate inefficiency and inhuman practices," the Governor said, "is on the road." He said the action of C. C. Stillman, who was asigned to Ohio by Hopkins to take charge of Federal relief, in dismissing 75 relief employes and calling conferences with county relief directors to discuss methods of improving services to relief clients, indicated victory in that phase.

Stillman asserted the dismissal today of ten employes of the surplus commodities division had no connection with his disclosure that 499,000 pounds of relief meat had spoiled in a Toledo warehouse and nearly as much more was believed to have spoiled.

The Department of Justice continued a quiet inquiry into Hopkins' charges that business firms selling to the relief administration were "shaken down" by solicitors for the Governor's campaign and inaugural fund deficit.

Bandit Describes Slaying of Cowley

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, March 22.—Jonn Paul Chase, relating from a Federal court witness stand his version of the fatal Barrington gun duel last November 27, today professed himself almost a novice in firearms, but admitted he stood shoulder to shoulder with the late George "Baby Face" Nelson during the gunfire which killed Nelson, Inspector Samuel P. Cowley and Special Agent Herman E. Hollis.

Threading his narrative with his counsel's preannounced "self-defense" contention, Chase testified he fired six shots during the fray; that he aimed high and that his gun began to smoke only after Nelson cried out their pursuers (Cowley and Hollis) were members of "the syndicate." Chase said he understood this to mean they were gangsters bent on killing Nelson and himself.

Defense counsel in the case, the first ever brought under the new Federal statute decreeing death for slayers of Government officers in the pursuit of their duties, repeatedly elicited from Chase testimony that neither Cowley nor Hollis were in uniform, that they sounded no siren or announced themselves as officers and that the "G" men opened fire first.

Arson Suspected In Warehouse Fire

Arson is expected as the cause of a fire which did an undetermined damage yesterday to the old stables of the Connecticut Pie Co. at O street and Wisconsin avenue northwest.

Two white boys and a colored boy are reported to have run from the building a few minutes before the fire was discovered. Earlier, the trio had asked for egg crates stored in the building, but had been refused.

The stable, which has been used as a warehouse for 15 years, was filled with empty crates and some unused machinery of the pie bakery. The fire spread rapidly through the building, but was extinguished after one end of the roof had fallen in. A crowd of about 1,000 persons saw the spectacle.

$30,000,000 Is Sought For Relief by Illinois

Chicago, March 22 (AP).—A $30,000,000 rural rehabilitation plan which would take almost 160,000 families off relief was approved "for study and investigation" by the Illinois Emergency Relief Commission today. It will be submitted to Washington soon for approval.

My name is Tom E. Jones. I am 33 years old, and reside, at 16 North Princeton Avenue, Columbus, Ohio. I am now and since November 28, 1933, have been assistant to the Director of the Surplus Commodities Division, of the Ohio Emergency Relief Administration. My immediate superior is William R. McNamara, who holds the office of Director of the Surplus Commodities Division.

Some short time after Martin L. Davey was elected Governor of Ohio, Mr. McNamara came to me and informed me that it was going to be necessary to raise some money to help pay for the Inaugural Ball of Governor Davey, and to help toward the campaign deficit. I asked him how much money we would have to raise and was informed that we would have to raise $10,000, and would have to raise it by soliciting funds from the men and the firms that had been dealing with our Surplus Commodities Division. Mr. McNamara told me that unless we would agree to do this we probably would not be able to keep our jobs, and that if we did collect this money he was to be appointed either as Director or Assistant Director of the Emergency Relief Administration for Ohio, and that John A. Lee and I would be promoted to better positions. He also told us that he had received these orders from Jack McCorb, who was the Treasurer of Governor Davey's campaign committee, and who stated to Mr. McNamara that these orders came from headquarters at the top. RFC-Controlled Utility Cited As a Violator of NRA's 7A

RFC officials received with wry smiles yesterday the news that a utility company which it now controls has been cited for violation of section 7(a), the collective bargaining provision of the national recovery act.

Specifically, the National Labor Relations Board ruled that the Laclede Gas Light Co. of St. Louis had failed to negotiate with Gas House Workers Union No. 18799 and had discharged for union activity one Joe Davis, a Negro employe.

The RFC's predicament dates back to its old loan of $90,000,000 to the Chicago bank of Gen. Charles G. Dawes. To March 15, the bank had paid back only $33,448,626.84, which made it necessary, according to Chairman Jesse Jones, to look after collateral.

The security includes a controlling interest in Public Utilities Securities Corporation, a holding company which owns a controlling interest in another holding company which owns a controlling interest in the Laclede Gas Light Co.

Despite the Administration's desire to exterminate holding companies, the RFC stepped in recently, naming five members to the top holding company's nine-man board of directors. This gave the RFC, technically at least, control over the firm which is now found guilty of violating Section 7(a).

Inquiries at the RFC brought the response, "We don't know what we can do about it." However, the Labor Board gave the Laclede company ten days to begin bargaining with the gas house workers and to reinstate Joe Davis.

Second Man Dies Of Race Riot Hurts

Grand Jury Indicts 4 More in Harlem Probe.

By the Associated Press.

New York, March 22.—August Miller, 57, injured in the widespread Harlem riots, died tonight. He was the second person to die from injuries incurred in the Tuesday night and Wednesday disorders, when rioters smashed more than 200 plate glass windows, looted stores and engaged in street battles.

Three new indictments charging four persons with burglary were returned by the grand jury investigating the trouble. In all, 10 indictments have been returned, naming 16 persons on charges that range from burglary and assault to inciting to riot.

Headquarters of the Young Liberators, Harlem organization blamed by many investigators for allegedly inciting race hatred, was entered by a marshal. Furniture was seized for arrears in rent.

Governor Commutes A Sentence of Death

Raleigh, N. C., March 22 (AP).—Jim Greene, confessed assailant of a woman, received a commutation to life imprisonment today, 45 minutes before he was to have been electrocuted for the crime.

Gov. J. C. B. Ehringhaus said he acted on admissions by the prosecutrix and on records of the State Farm Colony for Women, "which would prevent me from saying she had a good reputation for chastity."

Little Progress Made in Week On Building

No Sign of Settlement in Strike of Hoisting Engineers Seen.

The lightest work week on the Internal Revenue Building addition since construction began last year was completed yesterday without any sign of a settlement of the hoisting engineers' strike, which has all but tied up opprations.

"No change in the situation," was the terse reply of the construction superintendent for John McShain, Inc., general contractor, when asked if there was any indication that normal progress might be resumed next week. Approximately 250 men have been thrown out of work because of the jurisdictional dispute between engineers and elevator constructors.

R. J. Henderson, business agent of the engineers' local union, said no negotiations have been toward effecting an agreement. He can not send the men back to work except on orders of John Possehl, president of the international union, and Possehl was still out of the city yesterday.

The engineers, upon whom all the other trades depend for the hoisting of supplies and materials, walked out last Monday in protest against the elevator men doing their own hoisting.

Martin Insull Deported To Canada as Briton

Detroit, March 22 (AP).—Martin J. Insull, freed of charges which developed from the collapse of the utilities empire built by his brother, Samuel, was deported to Canada today as a British subject.

Insull, who had lived in the United States 40 years, was ordered deported more than a year ago when he was extradited from Canada to face charges of embezzlement in connection with the receivership of the holding company which he headed as president. He was acquitted.

Georgia Votes May 15 On State Dry Repeal

Atlanta, March 22 (U.P.).—Georgians will vote May 15 on repeal of the State's bone-dry law. Gov. Talmadge late today signed a bill enacted by the Legislature providing for the referendum and for county local option if State prohibition is repealed.

Separate bills providing a referendum on the same day on legalization of beer and tax-free domestic wine had not reached the Governor's desk, but he indicated he would sign them.

SEC Discloses Refinancing Of 180 Millions

Kennedy Believes Total for March May Reach $250,000,000.

By Franklyn Waltman, Jr.

With registration statements for approximately $180,000,000 in security issues already filed so far this month, Joseph P Kennedy, chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission, yesterday predicted that the total for March would reach between $200,000,000 and $250,000,000.

This unusually large amount of industrial financing, compared with recent months, has led Mr. Kennedy to believe that the log jam in the capital issues market has been broken, that confidence gradually is returning to the business community and that the country has set its feet toward a continued recovery.

The SEC chairman revealed he has information indicating that arrangements for security issues totaling about $300,000,000 are now being negotiated and that registration statements for such issues may be filed within the next two or three weeks.

New Financing Seen.

Although all but a small total of the financing for which registration statements have been filed is in the nature of refunding operations, Mr. Kennedy believes that new financing inevitably will follow within the next few days.

His contention is that just as gloom thickens on pessimism and gloom, so confidence and optimism in the future of the American business trend grow like a rolling snow ball, increasing as it moves along.

The fact that the SEC so far this month has received registration statements for securities totaling almost $180,000,000 came as a surprise to persons not intimately connected with the commission's work. Widespread publicity had given to the filing of registration statements for an issue of $45,000,000 and another of $43,000,000. But that statements covering small issues but totaling more than the combined figures of the two large issues had been filed, generally escaped notice.

Refunding Revealed.

The two large issues for which registration statements were filed early this month comprised one by Swift & Co. for $43,000,000 of 3¾ per cent bonds and another by Pacific Gas & Electric Co. for $45,000,000 of 4 per cent refunding bonds. The latter company estimated an annual interest saving of $675,000 by the refunding operation.

Mr. Kennedy contended the example of the packing company and the Pacific Coast utility had and would encourage directors of other corporations to overcome their fear of liability resulting from the signing of registration statements and take advantage of the cheap money market now existing.

"I think the bogey that the registration requirements are too severe and place an unreasonable burden on directors of companies is being dispelled," Mr. Kennedy said. "The risks imposed on honest business by the securities legislation has been so greatly reduced by amendment and administration that the requirements today do not exceed those of the common law.

Believes Progess Near.

"Directors are beginning to realize this and when they see other companies saving $675,000 a year on interest payments, they naturally want to achieve similar savings. The country is choked with money crying out for investment and interest rates are lower than ever.

"Once directors get the habit of signing registration statements for refunding issues, they will sign such statements to cover new capital issues, because their liability is no different. I believe that literally millions of dollars can be spent in renovating and modernizing industrial plants and I believe further it will be spent."

More than 45 registration statements have been filed this month. They cover issues ranging from $100,000 to the $45,000,000 Pacific Coast utility issue. The major number are for sums around $500,000. On Wednesday, for instance, the United Biscuit Co. of America filed a registration statement for $5,000,000 issue of 5 per cent bonds.

Expansion Behind Move.

The proceeds of these issues are for various purposes. Mining companies are seeking new capital for expansion purposes. Public utilities want to refund into lower interest bearing bonds outstanding securities. In some cases the purpose of all or a part of the issue is to refund bank or commercial indebtedness. In other cases, the proceeds of the issue are to be used in reorganizing companies.

But whatever the purpose, Mr. Kennedy sees in these registrations a renewed manifestation of life and activity in the capital issues market. He concedes that it is only a "trickling little stream" of financing compared with the former flood tide. But he holds that "the stream is large enough and representative enough to justify the statement that there is no longer any excuse for any corporation hesitating to go forward with confidence."

Mr. Kennedy believes that as soon as the public utility holding company bill is disposed of, one way or the other, utility corporations will make large demands on the capital issues market, not only for refunding, but for new funds to improve their plants and equipment. The present legislation created uncertainty which has caused many utilities to hold back, he said.

Illinois Court Strikes At Profits in Medicine

Chicago, March 22 (AP).—Chief Justice Michael L. McKinley of Superior Court ruled today that a corporation organized for profit can not practice medicine in Illinois. His ruling was against United Medical Service, Inc. The firm announced that it will appeal to the Supreme Court.

The ruling was expected to affect numerous corporations engaged in medical and dental practice. It had no bearing on the status of hospitals, clinics, dispensaries and sanatariums.

Richberg Discusses Revived NRA in First Press Conference

Harris & Ewing.

As Donald Richberg, co-ordinator extraordinary for the New Deal, held his first press conference since he became boss of NRA. He is seated on right side of the table. Behind him is S. Clay Williams, retiring head of the NIR board.

port, should be vigorously administered. There should be no question of the whole-hearted determination of the Administration to carry forward the industrial recovery program upon the reasonable assumption that this will be approved by Congress, and that the extension of the act will be authorized."

Richberg said the Recovery Board will serve two major functions: First, to determine broad questions of administrative policy and, second, as a supervisory body to recommend action, either by the President or by the acting chairman in behalf of the board.

"When Congress has laid down the standards and requirements to be effective after June 16, it will be possible very rapidly to put in effect a permanent organization, conforming to the provisions of the new law," he added.

Richberg said that the Recovery Administration has passed through one phase and nearly through a second one. The first 15 months, he said, were on an emergency basis when problems of administration became dominant. He said the Recovery Board, which succeeded the administration of Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, was created September 27, 1934, for three purposes: To stabilize and improve the details of administration, to analyze weaknesses, mistakes and strength, and to determine upon permanent policies and methods of administration, partially in preparation for new legislation.

He said that in the second phase it was necessary to have the services of men of different points of view so that a critical view of the whole process could be obtained. He said that as a result there was a great deal of misunderstanding of what the board was trying to do.

He said the different points of view thus established had been taken to Congress and put up to the members, in preference to presentation of an Administration bill. He said that Congress in this way could decide upon the fundamental principles to be followed. Richberg added that he believed that "all we are engaged upon should be permanent," but that he was not sure that the experimental stage was over.

Pending new legislation, Richberg said that the board would continue enforcement of present codes.

"We are restrained," he said, "in going into new fields of policy, pending action by Congress. But that does not mean that we shall just drift along."

Minimizes Difficulties.

Richberg minimized legal difficulties "except for a brief period during which every Federal District Court is a law unto itself." He said that for 100 years the courts had held that the Government could regulate intrastate commerce in instances in which it affected interstate commerce. The other legal problem, he indicated, concerned the anti-trust laws. He said that these laws were intended to prevent elimination of small industry and that NRA was working to the same end. He said codes of fair competition hit at trade practices which fostered monopoly.

Asked about future policies, Richberg said that there may be statements concerning pending policy questions, but that future policies would not actually be put into effect pending legislation. Among the policy questions on which NRA recently has held hearings are labor provisions, price control and distribution provisions of codes.

Asked about Gen. Johnson's statement that "NRA is as dead as the dodo," Richberg said:

"The dodo is an extinct bird. The NRA is a lively creature. It is inconsistent to say that hordes of complaints about NRA are being received and at the same time to say that it is dead."

Incidentally, Richberg today will move into the office formerly occupied by Johnson.

Richberg said he did not know how clear popular opinion is as concerns the NRA, but he added that an overwhelming majority of all industry, large and small, and of all labor, are for NRA.

"The fewer strong words we use and the more strong action we employ, the better we shall get along," Richberg said. "NRA is not a performance, a vaudeville show, nor a wicked, tyrranic or bureaucratic thing."

He concluded that codes will be enforced "as far as we have the power."

President Roosevelt conferred during the day with Senator Borah (Republican), of Idaho, whose amendment to the works bill restoring the antitrust laws and virtually killing NRA was defeated by only ten votes in the Senate Thursday. The President said that he and Borah discussed, among other things, the problem of excess production. He said the subject of NRA was not discussed specifically.

Fireworks flared during the morning in the Senate Finance Committee when Senator Barkley (Democrat), of Kentucky, accused Francis M. Curlee, legal representative of a group of clothing manufacturers, and an active enemy of NRA, of trying to intimidate him.

Before the hearing ended Curlee was sworn—a practice not previously followed in the hearing—and his personal correspondence since the hearing started was subpenaed.

Barkley produced a telegram from W. H. Brizendine, clothing manufacturer, which he said intimated that Barkley had not conducted himself properly in the hearing.

Curlee admitted, during questioning by Barkley, that he had talked with Brizendine by telephone after Richberg had been heard by the committee. Barkley said the telegram intimated he had been unduly friendly to the NRA in his questioning of Richberg.

"If you or anyone else thinks I can be influenced in this way, you don't know me," Barkley declared.

Curlee replied that it was "rather intemperate to denounce as contemptible conduct based on a hypothetical assumption."

Charges Evasion.

Chairman Harrison temporarily stopped the argument and continued the hearing. After a few minutes Senator La Follette (Progressive), Wisconsin, reverted to the telegram.

La Follette asked about the telephone conversation and what was said. As the questioning continued the Wisconsin Senator said that Curlee was being evasive.

Senator Couzens (Republican), Michigan, broke in with the suggestion that the witness be sworn. Chairman Harrison suggested that the committee go into executive session. Senator Black (Democrat), Alabama, moved that all future witnesses be sworn. Harrison put the motion and it was carried.

Then La Follette moved that all of Curlee's correspondence and files relating to the conduct of the hearings be brought in. His motion followed questioning of Curlee about how many letters he had written concerning the hearing.

Curlee later issued a statement in which he said he would be glad to comply with the order. He said that in addition to the material requested by the committee he would submit additional material "which will show the destructive methods of the NRA."

"My opposition to the NRA is well and widely known," he continued. "I have never concealed it. On the contrary, I have taken every opportunity to express by eternal opposition to an institution which is in essence the first flower of Soviet philosophy to bloom on American soil."

Curlee will appear before the committee again Monday.

Following the hearing Harrison announced that three persons had been engaged to follow through and co-ordinate evidence before the committee. They are James A. Horton, chief examiner of the Federal Trade Commission; Richard P. Whitely, assistant chief counsel of the Federal Trade Commission, and W. Jett Lauck, local economist.

Harrison also appointed a subcommittee to guide the future of the investigation. Harrison will act as chairman of the sub-committee.

Richberg Now Holds Four New Deal Jobs

By the Associated Press.

Donald R. Richberg, with his section as chairman of the National Industrial Recovery Board, has become a "four-ply" Federal employe.

His other jobs are:

Executive director, National Emergency Council.

Director, Industrial Emergency Committee.

General counsel, National Recovery Administration.

The last title, however, is largely technical, since the congressional directory lists Blackwell Smith as acting general counsel. Richberg, nevertheless, has not formally resigned the post.

Twice she was taken from her cell at her own request to view Johnnie's body. Each time she said: "I didn't mean to do it, Johnnie," and then collapsed beside the morgue slab.

Police pieced the story together from Marian's recital, together with notes and letters found in the squalid Royal street apartment they shared with Pierce's roommate.

Into this brief companionship were woven the experiences of a couple guided by a desire to live gayly and without care, but differences, "personal ones," the girl said, cut short a whirl of New Orleans night life that was to have ended today with a trip to Florida.

Gordon Stevenson, the room-mate and a medical student at Tulane University, supplied police with information leading to the time Pierce met Marian King. He said Pierce studied at Tulane until several months ago, quit to go into the real estate business and later gave that up to do free-lance writing for magazines.

He said Pierce received about $300 a month from his late father's estate, for which he was administrator.

"He met Miss King about six months ago, ran around with her about two months and then brought her to share the apartment," Stevenson said. He said she was addicted to narcotics, but that Pierce, a young interne, and himself persuaded her to "kick the habit." He then related how Pierce had nursed her jangled nerves back to normalcy.

Police records revealed that Miss King twice had been arrested on narcotic charges and that she had been arraigned for alleged violation of the moral code.

She had told Pierce, Stevenson said, that she was a former writer and worked for newspapers in New York, Detroit and Chicago. She said, the youth related, that she was beset by adversity upon arriving in New Orleans and succumbed to the lure of night life, later falling victim to narcotics.

Miss King was booked on a murder charge and Assistant District Attorney Culligan said a formal charge was being prepared.

Belgium Stays On Gold Basis, Bankers Insist

Aroused by Belga's Slump, They Point Out Law Protects Unit.

By the United Press.

Brussels, March 22.—Belgian officials, worried by a worldwide slump in the Belga, today hurried to spike rumors that the country intends to abandon the gold standard.

Aroused by reports from London that nervous speculators were unloading belgas in fear of its devaluation, the Belgian National Bank announced that "Belgium is on the gold standard and remains on the gold standard."

Financial authorities, answering what they termed a "midnight devaluation myth," pointed out the gold basis for the belga is part of a 1926 law having a definite life of 25 years.

The law, they said, can be repealed only by parliamentary action. No cabinet, they pointed out, can abrogate its provisions.

Furthermore, it was emphasized, the gold parity of the Belga is buttressed by a contract between the government and the national bank. This contract, it was said, was entered into on behalf of the bank's shareholders, who are the Belgian public.

Concern over Belgium's position on the gold standard was displayed today in foreign exchange dealings at London and Paris. In London, the belga weakened to 21.15 to the pound sterling after opening at 20.485.

In Paris, Belgian currency touched a new record low of 3.40 francs, after slumping from an opening of 3.53 francs. The close was at 3.45 francs.

Meanwhile, King Leopold's efforts to hasten formation of a new cabinet to succeed that of the veteran statesman and economist, Georges Theunis, received a setback when Louis Franck, governor of the national bank, declined to head a new government.

New York, March 22 (U.P.).—Reassuring advices from Brussels rallied the belga in local foreign exchange trading today after a wide-open break which temporarily halted dealings. The close was at 22.83 cents, off ½ cent. Par for the belga in terms of the new American dollar is 23.54 cents.

Cousin of Princess Barbara Carries a Pistol to Protect Her

Pair Ready to Sail for U. S.; Her Friendship With Count Told.

By the Associated Press.

London, March 22.—Young Jimmy Donahue packs a pistol under his left armpit for the protection of himself and his cousin, Princess Banbara Hutton Mdivani, it was learned today as the two said farewell to friends before boarding the S. S. Bremen for the United States.

Among those who will be left behind is Count Haugwitz, a handsome Dane, who revealed his "long friendship" with the princess. He insisted he is not going to the boat tomorrow.

Servants told of Jimmy's gun-carrying. Neither he nor the princess would be interviewed today.

Great secrecy surrounded the presence at the hotel of the young Danish Count. Clerks at first denied any knowledge of him. When he was accosted upon leaving the hotel the court at first denied knowledge of the princess, but finally admitted he was an old friend of both the princess and Donahue.

Apparently unintentionally, he said, "she is ill." Others who have seen the princess insist she is in the best of health.

Pretty, bobbed-haired Jeanne Steourton, private secretary to Sir Austen Chamberlain, was one of the few persons admitted to the princess' suite. She said the princess "is looking awfully good. She is in wonderful spirits."

The princess has set something of a record in not leaving the premises of the hotel since she arrived. During the last three days she has taken airings on the roof.

The count's full name is Kurt Haugwitz Hardenberg Reventlow, it later was learned. He is German born and German educated and a noted ski expert.

Soviet-Reich to Sign Trade Pact.

Berlin, March 22 (AP).—Germany and Russia are expected to sign a new accord tomorrow for the exchange of raw materials for manufactured products.

'Conan Doyle' Seance Assailed as Phoney

By the Associated Press.

Louisville, Ky., March 22.—The lone living man who knows what Sir Arthur Conan Doyle promised to say from beyond death derided New York's airplane seance as a publicity stunt tonight.

Howard Thurston, the magician, turned from "cutting off a girl's head" to declare that Sir Arthur's secret word is not quoted in accounts of the seance.

A piping voice claiming to belong to the great psychic devotee was among several heard from an aluminum horn in a darkened airplane 4,000 feet above New York last night. Others purporting to have spoken were Floyd Bennett and Roald Amundsen — without the accent which marked the Norse explorer's living speech.

Hitler Will Act To Double Size Of Reich Navy

Copyright, 1935, by the United Press.

Berlin, March 22.—Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler, confident of toleration of his arms program, plans to demand a navy more than double the Reich's present force when he confers the first of next week with the British peace mission.

A reliable informant tonight confirmed rumors in London that Germany plans to seek a naval ratio of 1 to 3 with Great Britain.

This would give her a navy practically the size of Italy's and more than half the size of the French.

The Desired Tonnage.

	Tonnage.
Great Britain	1,095,000
France	541,630
Italy	378,000
Germany (proposed)	365,000

However, a spokesman simultaneously made it clear there was no present intention of building up to this strength.

Quarters close to the government emphasized this still would leave Germany considerably below France's strength, but that at the same time it would provide ample force for Germany's coast defenses and protection of her overseas trade.

Hitler's plan caused a stir on the eve of the convening in Paris tomorrow of the three-power conference among Great Britain, France and Italy or the next step to be taken to curb the Reich's scrapping of the Versailles Treaty and proceeding with recruiting a conscript army of 500,000 men.

Will Demand Submarines.

Experts believed Germany will emphasize chiefly the smaller classes of ships, including "pocket battleships" of the 10,000-ton class. She also may stress the need of submarines on which German naval experts recently concluded exhaustive tests in foreign countries.

British experts say the German navy already is supreme in the Baltic, and since she has no overseas domains to defend, even a fleet one-third the size of Britain's would be formidable, because it would be available for concentrated action.

Germany's coasts are virtually invulnerable. The coast defenses are being rapidly improved. Her "pocket battleships" are capable of cruising from Hamburg to Shanghai without refueling.

Hitler is proceeding to start early conscription of German youth in defiance of the treaties. Reliable reports said Reichswehr (army) conscription would begin with men born in 1914, those between 21 and 25 receiving periods of training up to a year for regular conscripts. Training for six months probably will be compulsory for men between 25 and 35.

Prepares for Simon.

The chancellor at present is in Wiesbaden, in the south, where he continues in conference with numerous high Nazi party leaders, presumably drawing up the program for the visit of Sir John Simon, British foreign secretary, and Capt. Anthony Eden, lord privy seal, this week-end. They are due by airplane Sunday. The formal conversations will take place Monday and Tuesday.

Government quarters are speculating on what "trump card" Britain can now produce to replace her original offer of legalization of German rearmament—now in the discard, since Hitler has brought it into the open.

It is possible the former German colonial possessions taken from her at the end of the World War may be mentioned. This issue, however, will not figure prominently in the discussions.

Hitler is still little disposed to make any political concessions such as acceptance of an eastern Locarno pact or joining the Danubian pact proposed by Italy and France. He still is opposed also to early return to the League of Nations, particularly since France's abrupt demand for a special session of the council to check his arms program.

The foreign minister, Baron Konstantin von Neurath, on the eve of the British visit, repeated the Reich's hope for peace. He said:

"The German government anticipates the visit of the British representatives with interest and satisfaction. In view of the developments of the last few days, this open Anglo-German discussion can only profit all European nations.

"When complete understanding of our claim to equality eventually is achieved by all, it should not be difficult to advance matters considerably. Thus, I hope the visit will contribute fruitfully to clarification of our respective conceptions of the questions under discussion."

By the Associated Press.

Berlin, March 22.—Germany will play the European security game as an equal or she won't play at all.

That was the insistent assertion of Nazi officials, proud of their new "official" army and their new "official" air force, today as the time approached for the arrival of Sir John Simon, British foreign secretary, to talk peace arrangements with Adolf Hitler.

A government spokesman said Germany, provided her equality is fully and freely recognized, will give due consideration to Simon's expected proposal that she participate in conferences with Britain, Italy and France scheduled to be held in northern Italy next week, just as she will, consider anything else Simon has to propose.

Having herself seized arms equality by breaking down the barriers imposed upon her in the Versailles Treaty, however, Germany will not stand for any power trying to deal with her as an inferior, the spokesman declared.

That will be the German policy on all international affairs hereafter, it was stated.

The bombshell effects of the announcement included the shattering of plans for representatives of French delegates to come to Berlin this week and visit German veterans. All details for the visit had been arranged. German veterans say, French denials notwithstanding, but the army announcement rudely blasted their hope of playing host.

Espionage in Mexico Is Denied by Official; Says Father Pro Only Priest Executed

Dr. Quintanilla Accuses Williams of Untruths in His Articles.

Scouts Assertion Soviet Funds Used in Fight on Religion.

By Dr. Luis Quintanilla,
Of the Mexican Foreign Service.

There is no espionage in Mexico. As a matter of fact, espionage as an institution has never existed in that country since the gloomy days of the Holy Inquisition, which, during three centuries was employed by the Catholic Heirarchy to consolidate its material wealth and spiritual power, by sending non-Catholics to be burned at the stake or to be savagely tortured.

"The espionage of the government has come to be almost matched by that of the Catholics." Should this statement of Mr. Williams be true, there is no Catholic espionage whatever. And yet we read in his articles such "mystery literature" as this: "No one knew at what time the secret police might arrive." "I met men of affairs who lived in constant apprehension lest they be arrested any night in their homes." "Heads of families kiss their wives and children good-by . . . and are gone into hiding." Priests are constantly disappearing in his articles. "A man knocks at the door of my room." He "whispers" things into Mr. Williams' ears. They are always whispering things in Mr. Williams' ears . . . "Men pass on the way, men who stop and peer into our faces and exchange words with my guide . . ." "My guide says something in a low voice and we pass in, down a narrow hall." "The women defy espionage." "They hold secret devotions in their homes." "Confessions are heard by priests in secret." "One priest never slept more than a single night in the same house." Things are done in the "gray dusk." —"Masses are said on mountain sides and in deserts, in caves and basements." They are "celebrated in the early morning, before daylight." "The daughter of the house brought forth the hidden crucifixes." "The shades of the windows in the big living room were drawn tight." "Discovery of the celebration of this mass would have meant death for the priest, jail for the families and their friends." "I was told at the start of the mass that if the police and soldiers came, I was to remain kneeling."

Says Espionage Does Not Exist.

Espionage is everywhere in these articles, and yet it does not exist. Everybody in Mexico knows that I am speaking the truth. Why write such statements as this: "The army and the police are supplemented by corps of spies. These spies are everywhere, in churches, in offices, on the streets, in crowds, and they are paid a bonus per head for every man they catch." This "bonus-per-head" idea seems to attract Mr. Williams' colorful imagination. "The priests are reentering Mexico, returned from exile, living in disguise and hiding with prices on their heads, but functioning as priests," says Mr. Williams in his fourth article. It is deliberately untrue.

One does not have to be hidden in the basement or anywhere, nor to get up in the morning, "in the dawn preceding sunrise," in order to go to church and attend mass. You can do it in the open and when it is most convenient to you, just as you could do it in Paris, in Washington or in London. I myself was in Mexico City a few days ago. I am able to tell you—and I am sure that anyone living in Mexico will confirm my statement—that churches are open to attend the spiritual needs of all Catholics living there.

Baptisms, funerals, communion and weddings, all the usual Catholics rites are being carried on in Mexico City as normally as in any other place in the world. Buy any newspaper coming from Mexico. You will find in the society column, every single day of the year, many pictures and news, sometimes whole pages, of religious ceremonies which were celebrated the day before. Why, then, insist in giving the American public the impression that Catholics in Mexico are considered as outlaws; that the exercise of their cult is forbidden and that churches are closed?

Another constant item in Catholic anti-Mexican propaganda is murder. We find murder, killings and atrocities in almost every paragraph of Mr. Williams' literary production. After reading it one really wonders how Mexico still has a few inhabitants left, to make of their country one of the most prosperous in the world of today.

"I am told that 5,000 men in the federal district alone have been killed since the truce between Calles and the Church in 1929." "In addition to the killings in Mexico City thousands more met death in other states." Human life seems to mean nothing to Mr. Williams or the Hierarchy propagandists . . . "The killings are still going on." "Upward of 300 priests have laid down their lives since the war began on religion by reds in 1926." This is so childish that the most rabid Catholics in Mexico will secretly smile when they read the statement. One priest has been executed by the authorities. His name is known all over the world because the Hierarchy propaganda did not miss the occasion to give the case world-wide publicity.

Priest Executed After Murder Attempt.

But what neither the Catholic propaganda nor Mr. Williams say is that Father Pro, together with two Catholic laymen, Vilchis and Father Pro's own brother, Humberto, were executed by the authorities after the attempt to murder President Obregon had failed. A bomb was hurled at Obregon's car, the latter escaping by a hairbreadth. The police found that Father Pro, together with the two Catholic laymen mentioned above, were guilty of this criminal attempt.

Later on, July 17, 1928, a second clerical plot was successfully accomplished: Obregon, hero of the revolution, was treacherously murdered at a banquet give in his honor. Leon Toral, who had emptied his gun on Obregon's back, admitted before the jury that he had killed President Obregon under the pressure of a Catholic nun, "Mother Conchita" (Madre Conchita)—now serving a sentence at the penal colony of Islas Marias—and because he, Toral, a devoted Catholic himself and member of several religious associations, was also sure that the quickest way to end religious persecution in Mexico was to assassinate Obregon and Calles.

This murderer, together with Father Pro, became also practically a saint in the eyes of Catholic fanatics, much to the satisfaction of the hierarchy. Women and children go still to their graves and not only do they kneel down before them to pray for miracles, but they deposit money in provisional poor-boxes placed there for the "up-keeping of the graves." This money exploitation of fanaticism, which is a characteristic feature of the Mexican Catholic clergy, is what the Mexican government has recently forbidden and what Mr. Williams forgot to tell his readers.

To a reactionary mind, everything in Mexico looks "red." "Mexico is 90 per cent Catholic," says Mr. Williams, "and is ruled by 10 per cent governed by the tenets of the commune." The author is not very careful in regard to the terms he uses. "Commune," "Socialism," "Communism," "Bolshevism," etc., are to him but one single thing. When he says "Commune"—which, in fact, has no meaning whatsoever outside of French history—he has in mind, I am sure, "Soviet." And when he says "Socialist" he means, I suppose, "Communist." The fundamental ideologic difference between the Second and Third Internationales totally disappear in the author's mind. It really does not matter because what Mr. Williams wants is exclusively to frighten people with the old Bolshevik idea.

Denies Russia Backs Mexican Rule.

On February 24, 1935, at a mass meeting of 30,000 Catholics who attended it in goood faith, a primate of the Catholic Church, Cardinal Dougherty, of Philadelphia, also charged the Soviet government as engineering the persecution of Catholics in Mexico. This statement brought about a denial of the Mexican Consul General in New York, which reads as follows, and needs no comment.

"At a Catholic meeting held at Convention Hall in Philadelphia, on February 24, Cardinal Dougherty blandly asserted that communistic agents—and the Soviet government—were responsible for the present trend of Mexican politics affecting the Catholic Church.

"According to the cardinal, paid Russian agents are encouraging Mexico toward atheism and Communism, and, for the same purpose, they will soon invade the United States of America. Cardinal Dougherty textually said: 'The Russian government has so far spent $18,000,000 in its Mexican propaganda. The money has been handed over to Mexican officials for the purpose of Sovietizing Mexico. It is said that only $3,000,000 of these $18,000,000 can be accounted for . . ."

"We firmly deny the authenticity of such ridiculous assertions and wish to take advantage of this opportunity to show the American people, so often surprised by similar statements, the unsoundness and audacity of this kind of propaganda.

"Mexico has had no diplomatic or official relations with Russia since 1929. No agent from the Soviet government has come to Mexico since that date, and furthermore Mexican immigration laws expressly bar the admission of Communists into the country.

"The money and persecution charges, publicly asserted during the Philadelphia meeting, are too absurd to be even commented upon."

Says Williams Articles Overwritten.

In the sixth article of this extraordinary series, Mr. Williams writes that the image of the Virgin of Guadalupe, the patron saint of the Indians and of Mexico, was recently torn down, in Cuernavaca, by the red shirts of Garrido Canabal . . . The image of the Virgin of Guadalupe has never been in Cuernavaca, but near Mexico City, at the Catholic shrine of Villa de Guadalupe. The shrine is open to worshipers. The miraculous image is there. It has never been destroyed nor removed from its original altar in the shrine. Mr. Williams should have made this fact clear, and since he refers to the mutilation of the Guadalupe stone monument in Cuernavaca—one of the thousands of this kind erected throughout the country—he could have also mentioned the fact that recently a group of reactionary fanatics had beheaded the statue of the late President Madero, beloved apostle of the Mexican revolution.

In these frankly overwritten articles the author reaches quite often comical heights. He tells us that he has met "men who were afraid to spend the night in their homes . . ."

In his constant desire to thrill his readers, Mr. Williams employs the weirdest of descriptions. He insists on giving to his six weeks' trip to Mexico a touch of heroism and mystery, forgetting that thousands of other tourists are daily traveling throughout Mexico and seem to enjoy themselves immensely.

"One by one and two by two we slipped from the house, and in the distance we could hear the bugles of the military . . ."

I could quote many other passages typical of mystery stories, used by Mr. Williams in these whimsical tales. But it seems to me that I have already quoted too much of this author. Allow me, however, to give you one more example:

When compelled to admit that the big stadium of Mexico City, one of the largest in the world, was filled up to capacity with the masses of workers and farmers cheering the new President, Cardenas and the leaders of the revolution, Mr. Williams, in his seventh article, gives the following explanation:

"I saw these peons come running from their free trains, herded by police into the stadium where the inauguration ceremonies were to take place. They only knew that they had been rounded up, presented with money and given a ride on the trains without cost, and that they were to be witnesses to a big show."

Let us see now the facts actually behind all this and which the Catholic Hierarchy strives desperately to conceal.

The "Result Number" for Classified Ads is National 4200.

This is a clipping from a Mexican newspaper, showing a typical scene of a Mexican church with worshipers congregated in front. Such pictures can be found constantly in the papers, proving that the churches are in regular use.

This is the second of a series of seven articles in reply to a series written for The Post by Frederick Vincent Williams. The Williams articles gave a Catholic viewpoint of conditions in Mexico. The article below and others in the present series reflect the official Mexican viewpoint. They are printed just as they were written. Where expressions appear in blacker type, the emphasis was indicated by the author. Dr. Quintanilla has been in the employ of the Mexican government for 15 years.

Guerrilla War Looms as Italy Snubs Geneva

Italian Troops Mass for Ethiopian Campaign as Arbitration Fails.

By the United Press.

Geneva, March 22.—Guerrilla warfare worse than the French campaigns in Morocco was predicted tonight as Italy again bluntly refused to allow the league council to settle her dispute with Abyssinia in East Africa.

The Italian undersecretary for foreign affairs, Fulvio Suvich, telegraphed Secretary General Joseph A. Avenol, declaring that Article 15 of the league covenant, which Abyssinia invoked in appealing for league intervention, can not be applied.

Suvich said it was out of the question for the league to interfere because both governments had agreed on January 19 to settle the border dispute between Abyssinia and Italian Somaliland under the Italo-Abyssinian treaty of 1928.

Denies Aggression.

The Italian telegram denied all Abyssinia's charges of aggression and added "it is not true that Italy has mobilized a class" for action against her.

Italy, however, announced willingness to submit the dispute to arbitration as provided in the 1928 treaty, if direct negotiations fail. So far these have gained but little headway, and Italy continues to pour troops into her African colonies around Abyssinia almost daily.

Her message to the league added that "it is also untrue the Ethiopian government (Abyssinia) has vainly demanded arbitration."

The telegram put the league's jurists in a new and delicate dilemma. Avenol at once telegraphed Abyssinia, asking what attitude she intended to adopt in view of Italy's decision again to combat league interference.

The Rome dispatch added: "The dispatch of Italian troops to Italy's East African colonies was dictated by the clear necessity of providing for the safety of those colonies—a necessity which has been enhanced by military measures taken on a much larger scale by Ethiopia as well as the abnormal situation still existing on her frontiers, as demonstrated by repeated incidents which have occurred not in connection with Italy alone."

Pin Hopes on Diplomacy.

League circles hoped British and French diplomacy may yet settle the Italian-Abyssinian war threat before it is forced into discussion at a public session of the League Council.

Some believed Italy's place in the league was at stake, and feared if the league called the council to intervene Italy would follow Germany and Japan in withdrawing to settle her own disputes in her own way.

Military experts believed a war between Italy and Abyssinia would continue for months, perhaps years, if once started, despite the military superiority in equipment and manpower on the side of Rome. In the Moroccan campaign in 1925 there were only 800,000 Moors compared with approximately 10,000,000 inhabitants of Abyssinia. It took France 14 months to subdue the Tribesmen.

group of peace-loving nations against nations of prey. There are 82,000,000 in Germany and Hungary who want war and are tearing up the treaties. Opposed to them there are 400,000,000 Europeans who want peace."

He urged ratification of the Rome accords, reached between France and Italy last January, although he said he felt Premier Benito Mussolini had got the better of Foreign Minister Pierre Laval in bargaining.

"M. Laval paid generously for Italy's support," the deputy said. "As admirable as he is, Mussolini is guilty of errors. He believed in Hitler, in revision, in the natural hostility between Italy and Yugoslavia and Italy.

"There are important changes in Italy's gestures now, making friendly overtures to Belgrade and sending the note of protest against rearming to Berlin.

"France can not accept Germany's re-arming, and she can not particularly accept Hitler's arms project. Geneva should quit talking and act."

Foreign Minister Laval replied the government hoped diplomatic efforts could prevent war.

"I am confident of success of intergovernmental efforts at present in progress," Laval said. "France, in calm and sangfroid, awaits diplomatic results, but it is France's duty to remain vigilant."

Copyright, 1935, by the Associated Press.

Paris, March 22.—France tomorrow will endeavor to plant England firmly within a united front with France and Italy against a re-armed Germany.

Capt. Anthony Eden, British lord privy seal, who came here today for a tri-partite conference preparatory to Anglo-German conversations in Berlin, almost certainly will be asked to drop the role of mediator for that of ally.

Foreign Minister Pierre Laval, who will confer with Eden, and Italy's undersecretary for foreign affairs, Fulvio Suvich, himself told the Chamber of Deputies today:

"France seeks to regroup the allies."

Elsewhere influential quarters, alarmed at the Reich's swift rearmament and angered at her cool reception of the French protest note, were calling for "action rather than words."

"Don't Promise Anything."

French officials said Laval would warn Eden against Sir John Simon's "doing or promising anything" in his conversations with Adolf Hitler Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, reminding the lord privy seal of the Franco-British agreement to consult each other and Italy first.

A tri-power conference at Lake Como, Italy, with Benito Mussolini presiding and the British and French foreign ministers present, was proposed for next week, after Simon returns from Berlin.

France will object strenuously to inviting Germany to that meeting, expressing unwillingness to negotiate with Germany except within the framework of the League of Nations to which France already has appealed.

While Simon is expected to try to persuade Hitler to return to Geneva, the French said they believed there was little prospect of getting anything but "vague formulas and inadequate pledges" out of the Germans.

Hence the French are counting on Eden's subsequent trip to Moscow—his eastern tour also will include Warsaw and Praha—in the hope that it will bring Russia firmly into the western bloc.

"Platonic Results."

Foreseeing little more than "platonic results" from the French appeal to Geneva, some French quarters have suggested stronger action against Germany, such as negotiating collective and bilateral mutual assistance pacts and perhaps even an embargo on raw materials required by German war industries.

An increase in France's military conscription term from one to two years by law instead of by decree, as the government now intends doing, was sought in an amendment just introduced to the bill lowering the conscript age from 21 to 20.

Meanwhile, charges that German propaganda in northern Africa seeks to stir up an Arab insurrection against France were made in the senate by Senator Guetherot.

Reports made to the senate's French African committee, he said, showed that numerous leagues operating there were controlled by the German foreign and propaganda ministries and had headquarters in Berlin and Hamburg.

League Convokes Extra Session

By the United Press.

Geneva, March 22.—An extraordinary session of the League of Nations Council to consider France's appeal for action against Germany's violation of the Treaty of Versailles was convoked for the first week in April.

It was presumed the session would open immediattely after the projected conference among Italy, France and Great Britain in northern Italy, to convene as soon as Capt. Anthony Eden, British expert, completes hurried visits to Berlin, Warsaw, Moscow and Praha.

Philippine Plebiscite Is Sought by Murphy

Detroit, March 22 (AP).—Frank Murphy, Governor General of the Philippines, said today he would cable Manila Saturday calling a special session of the Island Legislature to fix a date for a plebiscite on the proposed Philippine constitution.

Murphy will leave tonight for Washington, where President Roosevelt has arranged to sign the proposed constitution at 11 a. m. Saturday.

be annihilated. The devastation of resources and the setback to present civilization would be incalculable."

Troyanovsky thought he need not apologize for bringing up the picture. He said the Soviet is "compelled to consider this situation from its own particular standpoint.

"The force of events," he continued, "has compelled us to be prepared for any emergencies. We are prepared to safeguard the integrity of our territory and as far as possible the lives and welfare of our people."

Bullitt Leaves City; Sails Wednesday

By the Associated Press.

William C. Bullitt, Ambassador to Russia, left yesterday for New York where he is expected to confer with Alexander Troyanovsky, Soviet ambassador, before sailing Wednesday for Moscow.

Members of the Soviet embassy staff were at the station here to say good-by. During Bullitt's three-month stay in the United States on leave, he has conferred with President Roosevelt, Secretary Hull, and other Government officials on Russo-American relations, and also gave the House Foreign Affairs Committee a comprehensive outline of present conditions in Russia.

Negotiations Sped By Coal Groups

Operators and Miners Cut Committees' Size.

By the Associated Press.

Appalachian soft-coal operators and the United Mine Workers, drafting new wage and hour contracts, reduced the size of their joint committee yesterday to speed negotiations.

D. C. Kennedy, secretary of the Kanawha (W. Va.) Coal Producers Association, was elected chairman.

Suicide Verdict Found In Death of D. C. Clerk

Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald yesterday returned a verdict of suicide in the death of Harry Goodrich, 52, colored, clerk in the office of the District tax collector, who shot himself to death at the home of his sister, Annie Jackson, in the 600 block of Davison avenue early yesterday. Officials in the office where Goodrich worked were unable to account for his act.

Strachey Sees Radical Equals In the New Deal

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, March 22.—Evelyn John St. Loe Strachey traveled back to New York tonight, determined to carry his fight to the courts if Federal officials decide to deport him as an alien Communist.

As a parting shot in the two-day hearing before immigration authorities, the British author declared he had never advocated overthrow of the United States Government by force and inferred his writings were no more radical than those of New Deal leaders.

His American Civil Liberties Union attorneys, Arthur Garfield Hays and Edgar Bernhard, introduced quotations attributed to Secretaries Ickes and Wallace and to Prime Minister MacDonald, of Great Britain, and Premier Bennett, of Canada, to bulwark his contentions.

Will Put Case to Test.

Strachey announced he would stay in the country until his case was finally adjudicated, although he had planned to sail next Thursday, and Hays warned he would throw the litigation into court if the Department of Labor returned an adverse decision.

Bernhard proferred this excerpt from the book "Statesmanship and Religion," by Henry A. Wallace:

"I am inclined to agree with Tawney and Weber that capitalism is a rather natural outgrowth of Protestantism; and that Socialism, Communism and Fascism are in turn rather natural developments from capitalism."

Comment of Strachey.

Strachey made this comment:

"I notice that Wallace is coming around to my point of view. I point out he is not advocating but stating facts."

Bernhard submitted the following quotation he said was credited to Secretary Ickes in the book, "A Primer of New Deal Economics:"

"Government has to go a new way because the old way is closed forever."

"Mr. Ickes," Strachey observed, "seems to be going a new way and our way."

Remark of MacDonald.

Bernhard ascribed this remark to Ramsay MacDonald:

"The capitalistic system has crashed in England, Europe and America. There is only one means of saving humanity and that is socialism."

Strachey appeared pleased when his counsel quoted Premier Bennett as stating at the annual dinner of the Montreal Board of Trade:

"Mr. Strachey is one of the profound thinkers of our time."

William Zuker, immigration inspector, who conducted the hearing, will take the record to Washington and submit his findings to a board of review. There Hays will have opportunity to argue the matter futher before a final decision is handed down.

Text of the President's Message On Food and Drug Legislation

To the Congress of the United States:

Every enterprise in the United States should be able to adhere to the simple principle of honesty without fear of penalty on that account. Honesty ought to be the best policy not only for the individual, or one enterprise, but for every individual and every enterprise in the nation. In one field of endeavor there is an obvious means to this end which has been too long neglected: the setting up and careful enforcement of standards of identity and quality for the foods we eat and the drugs we use, together with the strict exclusion from our markets of harmful or adulterated products.

The honor of the producers in a country ought to be the invariable ingredient of the products produced in it. The various qualities of goods require a kind of discrimination which is not at the command of consumers. They are likely to confuse outward appearance with inward integrity. In such a situation as has grown up through our rising level of living and our multiplication of goods, consumers are prevented from choosing intelligently and producers are handicapped in any attempt to maintain higher standards. Only the scientific and disinterested activity of government can protect this honor of our producers and provide the possibility of discriminating choice to our consumers.

Application of Principles.

These principles have long been those on which we have founded public policy. But we have fallen behind in their practical application. No comprehensive attempt at reform in the regulation of commerce in food and drugs has been made since 1906. I need not point out to you how much has happened since that time in the invention of new things and their general adoption, as well as in the increase of advertising appeals. Because of these changes loopholes have appeared in the old law which have made abuses easy.

It is time to make practical improvements. A measure is needed which will extend the controls, formerly applicable only to labels, to advertising also; which will extend protection to the trade in cosmetics; which will provide for a co-operative method of setting standards and for a system of inspection and enforcement to reassure consumers grown hesitant and doubtful, and which will provide for a necessary flexibility in administration as products and conditions change.

Points to Long Study.

I understand this subject has been studied and discussed for the last two years and that full information is in the possession of the Congress.

No honest enterpriser need fear that because of the passage of such a measure he will be unfairly treated. He would be asked to do no more than he now holds himself out to do. It would merely make certain that those who are less scrupulous than I know most of our producers to be, can not force their more honest competitors into dishonorable ways.

The great majority of those engaged in the trade in food and drugs do not need regulation. They observe the spirit as well as the letter of existing law. Present legislation ought to be directed primarily toward a small minority of evaders and chiselers. At the same time even-handed regulation will not only outlaw the bad practices of the few, but will also protect the many from unscrupulous competition. It will, besides, provide a bulwark of consumer confidence throughout the business world.

It is my hope that such legislation may be enacted at this session of the Congress.

Poderjay in Sing Sing, Says He'll Have Laugh

Ossining, N. Y., March 22 (AP).—Ivan Poderjay, Yugoslav adventurer who was brought from Europe to face a bigamy charge, entered upon his two and a half to five-year sentence at Sing Sing today, picturing himself as an actor in "The Great American Comedy."

Poderjay predicted that Agnes Tufverson, woman corporation attorney, who disappeared soon after his bigamous marriage to her, would return some day and that he would have "the laugh on 125,000,000 Americans."

honest enterpriser need fear" because of such a measure—which, he said, would merely prevent the "less scrupulous" from forcing "their more honest competitors into dishonorable ways."

By "outlawing" the "evaders and chiselers," such legislation would protect the great majority of honest business men and "provide a bulwark of consumer confidence throughout the business world," the President declared.

A split in Democratic ranks was disclosed in the Senate Commerce Committee vote on the Copeland bill, which would vest control over advertising in the food, drugs and cosmetic industry in the Food and Drug Administration, instead of the Federal Trade Commission.

Vote in Committee.

The vote on the question of reporting the bill to the Senate was:

For—Copeland, Fletcher, Sheppard, Maloney and Radcliffe, Democrats; McNary, Vandenberg, White and Gibson, Republicans.

Against—Bailey, Clark, Murphy, Bachmann, Donahey and Guffey, all Democrats.

While Senator Royal S. Copeland, of New York, declared that his bill meets all the specifications laid down by the President, Senator Bennett Champ Clark, of Missouri, protested so early a vote and reserved the right to file a minority report.

Opposition to the original Tugwell bill was aimed principally at provisions giving the Secretary of Agriculture "arbitrary" authority. In the Copeland bill, this authority is curbed by the creation of two boards, which would be empowered to overrule the Secretary.

Plan of Operation.

One board of five members would hear drug and cosmetic cases, while the second board of seven members would pass on food standards. All members would be appointed by the President.

The Tugwell bill made publishers subject to prosecution for false advertising, a provision which was dropped in the Copeland measure. Under the present bill, only the manufacturer or distributor is liable for advertising statements.

President Roosevelt's action in focusing attention on the food-and-drug law at this time followed a conference Thursday with Senator Copeland, Dr. Rexford Guy Tugwell, Undersecretary of Agriculture, and Dr. W. G. Campbell, chief of the Food and Drug Administration.

Reich Will Ban Jews From Conscript Army

By the United Press.

Berlin, March 22.—Jews will be banned from service in the new conscript German army, it was reported reliably tonight.

Their status remained unclarified officially, but reports persisted that full-blooded Jews might be subject to conscription in an army "labor battalion," while others of only partly Jewish ancestry might be given fuller "privileges" in the military service of the Reich.

U. S.-French Treaty On Taxes Approved

Paris, March 22 (AP).—Final ratification of a Franco-American treaty eliminating double taxation on Americans in France appeared imminent tonight after the Senate finance committee voted approval of the accord.

The treaty, which will shortly be submitted to the Senate, was signed in April, 1932, and has already been ratified by the United States Senate and the French Chamber of Deputies.

Work Measure Again Delayed In Senate Clash

Threats of Filibuster and Cloture Made; Thomas and Robinson in Dispute.

ant but one member of a committee of 21 Senators."

"Oh, no," parried Thomas. "In monetary affairs, the Senator from Virginia is not only the sub-committee, but the committee, and the United States Senate, the Congress and the financial Government of the United States. I wonder if I can make that broader?"

Glass hesitated, apparently undecided whether to be angry or complimented.

"I suppose not," he replied, "but it does not require me to buy a hat of any broader dimensions than the one I now wear."

Tribute to Glass.

Earlier Thomas had paid Glass a real tribute.

"When the history of the Senate is written," he said, "the name of the distinguished Senator from Virginia will be catalogued along with the few great Senators of the United States."

Not least of the threats in the path of early works bill passage is the new McCarran amendment to force presidential appointment and Senate confirmation of all State works administrators and other persons drawing $5,000 or more salary under the bill.

The amendment not only is expected to open up Relief Administrator Hopkins' row with Ohio's Governor, but may loose in the Senate long smoldering patronage resentment over FERA administrators sent into many States over opposition of Senators from those States.

May Accept Amendment.

One report was current that leaders may accept the amendment to avoid an extended controversy.

Thomas will resume his silver argument after the Senate convenes today. The Senate will meet an hour earlier, at Robinson's request. Senator Burton K. Wheeler (Democrat), Montana, will follow Thomas with another speech on silver. After that, Wheeler has a $4,000,000,000 greenback inflation amendment of his own.

"Congress is considering only the ways of spending money, not of providing it," Thomas argued yesterday. "I'm in favor of printing more money and making it cheaper. As prices go up and we reach the 1926 goal, then we can stop printing."

Two Held on Bond In Moonshine Raid

Brothers Accused of Firing On U. S. Officers.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Cumberland, Md., March 22.—Arthur and Harry Riggleman, of near Vindex, Garrett County, were held in $5,000 bond each yesterday by United States Commissioner Taylor Morrison on warrants charging firing with deadly weapons on United States officers.

They were arrested with James W. Riggleman, a third brother, and Fred Hoston, following a gun and revolver battle in a raid on a 100-gallon still in a tarpaper shack, 300 yards from the State highway near Vindex. Hoston and James W. Riggleman are held in $1,500 bond each as liquor violators.

The Federal officers, led by Chief Investigator William R. Harvey, seized a quantity of liquor mash, a roadster, a shotgun, a Swiss army rifle and a revolver. All three weapons had been used from ambush to fire on the raiding officers, it was charged, the latter replying with their guns, driving the moonshiners to cover and capturing all four. Harry Riggleman, Federal officers said, is a previous offender.

The still was destroyed and the shack burned.

commission authorize, and that he find the three prison guards imposed corporal punishment with prescribed departmental permission and that the superintendent failed in the case of W. W. Shropshire and Robert Barnes, the prisoners whose feet were amputated following discipline, and in the case of L. T. Hogan to see to it that the prescribed protection of the disciplined prisoners was accorded them."

Dismissing Dr. McLaughlin, it was said:

"It is our judgment that Dr. McLaughlin failed to guard the health of the prisoners under discipline as prescribed by departmental regulations."

Broke Department Rules.

Mr. Waynick stressed the fact that the commission's action was taken because the employes of the prison camps had broken the rules of the prison department and not because the commission was convinced that they had committed any illegal act. However, a special court session will begin April 8 to decide whether the prison officials are liable to criminal action because of the punishment and its results. The North Carolina law gives the guards power to use any measure necessary "to enforce discipline."

Representative E. R. Sentelle, chairman of the committee of the legislature which is investigating the charges of prison camp brutality, said his report would be ready by next week. Representative Sentelle today said he was sure the report of the legislative committee would not run counter to the report made by Mr. Waynick.

Patman Bonus Passes House; Vote 318 to 90

'aye' will indicate support of the Vinson bill; a vote of 'nay' will be in favor of the Patman bill."

Vinson made the formal motion and the clerk droned:

"Adair, Allen, Amlie——"

The vote was tied, 204-204, at the finish. But only for a moment, because Byrns glanced over the Speaker's dais and said, "I wish to be recorded as voting 'aye.'" That made the total 205 to 204 in favor of Vinson.

Then there was another burst of applause when Representative Cox (Democrat), Georgia, who at first voted "present," switched to Patman. The Cox vote brought a 205-205 tie.

Before many perplexed members realized what was happening Representative Oliver (Democrat), Alabama, was recognized and declared:

"Mr. Speaker, I'm against both of these bills. I now am taking the liberty of changing by vote from aye to nay."

As Oliver sat down, Representative Sumners (Democrat), Texas, who origially answered "present," shifted to Patman. That made the final count: Patman, 207; Vinson, 204.

In a lull after the vote was announced Vinson strode down the aisle and shook hands with Patman. After the manner of a victorious football team, Patman's cohorts roared their approval.

Vinson voted "aye" in the roll call on the Patman bill.

As a gesture of protest Representative Treadway (Republican), of Massachusetts, forced a vote on the amendment of Representative Andrews (Republican), of New York, to pay the bonus in small denomination negotiable bonds. The maneuver was defeated, 318 to 82. That plan is expected to be revived by Senator Tydings (Democrat), of Maryland.

Guarded Words Of Hull Carry Reich Rebuke

U. S. Impliedly Reminds Hitler of the Sanctity of Treaties.

By Elliott Thurston.

After further consultations with President Roosevelt, Secretary of State Hull inferentially rebuked Germany yesterday by declaring that the United States must always use its moral influence in behalf of the sanctity of treaties.

This was the first official comment to be made here since Hitler tore up the Versailles Treaty's provisions against the re-arming of the Reich. The Secretary made no mention of Germany, or the Versailles Treaty, or of our own separate treaty of peace with Germany in which we undertook to reserve an interest in the now repudiated anti-armament provisions. However, his reference to the sanctity of treaties was in response to a question on the European crisis precipitated by Hitler's defiance.

The American people, the Secretary said, measuring his words carefully, must always use every possible moral influence to encourage strict adherence to all treaty provisions. The United States, he remarked, has always asserted that treaties must constitute the foundation on which any stable peace structure must rest. The State Department realizes, he said, that the European situation is difficult of solution and that the American people are deeply concerned over possible developments. This Government is closely watching shifting events in Europe, but the State Department is following its usual normal course in its foreign relations, he added.

Roosevelt, Borah Confer.

There were further evidences yesterday that no note of protest, or other representations will be made to Hitler by this Government. And no issue will be raised over the fact that Hitler's action summarily flouts our own treaty of peace as well as the Versailles Treaty.

At his press conference later in the day, President Roosevelt signified that he had discussed the European situation with Senator Borah. That is, asked if the German situation had been discussed specifically, Mr. Roosevelt replied by saying, not the German situation specifically, but the European situation pacifically.

Coincidentally Senator Key Pittman, chairman of the Senate Committee of Foreign Relations, gave out a second interview declaring that this Government "should not inject itself directly or indirectly into the controversy in Europe."

One thing that prompted Secretary Hull's comment was a realization that if we let Hitler's defiance pass unnoticed, Japan might imagine that she was the only one whom we reminded of the sanctity of treaties. For the last Administration, at least, took the initiative in writing notes to Japan after her invasion of Manchuria, admonishing her to live up to the anti-war and Pacific pacts. We never quite got to the point of accusing Japan of violating treaties, but the non-recognition of Manchoukuo signalized our belief that this puppet state was set up through a violation of the peace treaties.

Considerable speculation is now current as to whether the Soviet in seeking to conciliate Japan so as to be free to concentrate on the German menace may decide to recognize Manchukuo, and incidentally get in on possible trade advantages. It was duly noted here that coincident with the Hitler bombshell came the announcement from the Far East that Japan's Manchukuan oil monopoly, against which we had protested, would take effect at once, regardless of our protest. In that case, we protested to Tokyo and were rather ironically advised to address our protests to Manchukuo.

Secretary Hull's guarded remarks yesterday were phrased with an eye to Japan and to any suggestion that we viewed complacently in Europe what we would not allow to pass unchallenged in the Orient.

Pittman Words Significant.

As a frequent adviser of the New Deal and head of the potent Foreign Relations Committee, Pittman usually speaks by the book, and his comments yesterday served further to confirm the conclusion that the Administration is not going to mix into the European trouble. In an interview given to the Associated Press, he said the United States is "not interested in whether the Hitler Government has violated the Versailles treaty." His statement said:

"The controversy existing between the governments of Great Britain, France and Italy on one part and the Hitler government on the other involves the question as to whether the Hitler government has violated the Versailles Treaty.

"It does not involve the question as to whether the Hitler government has violated any of the terms of the separate treaty entered into between the United States and Germany.

"The United States is not a party to the Versailles Treaty. The Versailles Treaty adopts the covenant of the League of Nations. The separate treaty between the United States and Germany does not adopt the covenant of the League of Nations.

"Under the Versailles Treaty the existing controversy may be referred to the council of the League of Nations.

"Under our separate treaty with Germany there is no provision for submitting a controversy to the League of Nations.

"It is very probable that on the twenty-eighth of March when the council of the league meets it will take up the question as to whether the Hitler government has violated the Versailles Treaty.

"Our Government is not interested in this question. It is not a party to the Versailles Treaty.

"My personal opinion therefore is that this is an added reason why our Government should not inject itself directly or indirectly into the controversy."

On the Air Today

By Katherine Smith.

ANOTHER amateur night is on! Here are details of Art Godfrey's venture, a local amateur competition whose opening night is March 30 from 6:45 to 7:15.

Definition of eligible amateurs—people who have never been paid for radio work. Minimum age is 16 years. Contestants must register on cards obtainable at WJSV, eighth floor, Earle Building, or at stores selling Southern Dairies' ice cream. These are to be filled out and returned to Arthur Godfrey, WJSV, who will notify talent of date of their appearance.

Three judges will be selected for each night. They will be newspapermen, musicians, radio officials (not directly connected with WJSV), radio artists, agency executives, etc. Judges will select their winner—the radio audience may vote for their winner, who may or may not be the selection of the judges. The judges' winner will be given one performance at the Fox Theater, the audience winner receives a paid return engagement on the amateur show two weeks from the date of first appearance.

Another main prize has not yet been decided. Also, a finalist will be selected after a designated period—also not definite—and this finalist will be given all sorts of prizes and a week's professional engagement at Loew's Fox.

The show will be held in a downtown auditorium, to be announced later, and the audiences will number from 600 to 800 people.

MUSICAL programs:

"La Boheme," with Lucrezia Bori and Frederick Jagel in the leading roles, concludes the Metropolitan Opera series of broadcasts. On WMAL, WRC at 1:55 p. m.

Minneapolis Symphony, with Anne Campbell, poetess, presents these selections: Overture to "Mignon," by Thomas, "The Kaiser Waltz" by Strauss, and Handel's "Largo." Miss Campbell will read "Baby's Bath" and "The First Heir of the Dohertys." WJSV, 10 p. m.

Control of Arms To Be Discussed

Last of Vote League Series to Be Held Today.

A panel discussion of "How Shall We Control Munitions?" will be conducted under auspices of the international co-operation committee of the District League of Women Voters at a luncheon meeting at 1:15 p. m. today in the Lafayette Hotel.

Senator James P. Pope, a member of the Senate munitions investigation and of the Foreign Relations committee; Constance Drexel, League of Nations correspondent and author, and William T. Stone, vice president of the Foreign Policy Association, will be the principal speakers.

The session will be the last of a series on the munitions problem sponsored by the committee, of which Mrs. Henry Chalmers is president.

Slum Area in District Viewed by Ruhland

Health Officer George C. Ruhland had his first glimpse yesterday of the District's alleys. Accompanied by John Ihlder, executive director of the District Alley Clearance Authority, Dr. Ruhland inspected a number of the slum areas in various sections of the city.

Dr. Ruhland expressed amazement at the lack of sanitary facilities in the slums, and immediately sought to determine whether he had authority to require better sanitary conditions. "If I find I have such authority," he said, "I will immediately try to remedy this unhealthy situation."

Solution to "What Would You Do?"

"MERCY MURDER"

Broadcast Friday, at 10:30 P. M., from WJSV

Dr. Bogardus had never been faced with this sort of problem before.

Here was a man whom he had known for years—a man who by his very nature could have no murderous thought in his mind.

But that was not the problem which lined the face of this family physician.

"If you had only waited——," Dr. Bogardus broke off.

"Waited for what? We have waited for years and years!" Richard Winton buried his face in his hands.

"If you had only waited until tomorrow," the doctor continued, "I would have told you that your wife would not have lived the week out!"

Richard arose slowly from his chair and walked dazedly toward the perplexed physician, speaking quietly as he moved.

"So—she—would—have died—anyway?"

"Yes."

Dr. Bogardus signed the certificate.

West Pushes Plans to Check Soil Erosion

Water Conservation and Project to Keep Down Dust Studied.

By the Associated Press.

Kansas City, March 22.—Farmers of the Midwest and Southwest were rising tonight with confidence born of past conquests to battle dust and drought.

Undaunted by crop failures and dust storms, agriculturalists of Kansas, Nebraska, Oklahoma and Texas pushed projects they hope will halt the weather's inroads and preserve this summer's rainfall.

Dust clouds rolled again in some parts of Kansas today. Eastern and southeastern Oklahoma reveled in heavy rains.

Through western Kansas—a land wrung from Indians, buffalo and the tall, tough grass of the plains—sounds the cry of men calling for that country's greatest struggle against soil drifting.

Washington is studying the proposal of Gov. Alf M. Landon, of Kansas, for a Federal soil erosion project. He planned to leave for the National Capital tonight.

His plan briefly is to list deep furrows across fields in the affected regions. The furrows, at right angles to the prevailing winds, are banked down to break the wind's force and cause it to drop its precious load of top soil.

Kansas agricultural agents have been directed to call community meetings, organize county committees and map stricken areas by townships.

Aided by Federal funds, farmers meanwhile are engaged in other projects designed to protect their lands from further drifting and to conserve water. Thousands of ponds—some for irrigation, others for stock water—are being built.

In Nebraska, CCC workers have, in two years, completed soil conservation work on 31,959 acres, according to A. E. Anderson, State and Federal agricultural statistician. They have completed 517 ponds, 62 dams, 500 acres of terracing and have planted 360,000 trees.

Nebraska farmers are being urged to plant soil-retaining crops and grasses by Dominic Gross, University of Nebraska extension agronomist.

In Oklahoma, the FERA is pushing the building of lakes at Duncan, Comanche and Bristow and others are planned, while farmers throughout the State are being urged to dig out small ponds. Gov. E. W. Marland is advocating a huge program, but the State Legislature has yet to appropriate funds.

The Kansas Emergency Relief Committee is sponsoring an extensive water conservation program. Lakes and ponds are being built and widespread experiments are being made with covering vegetation to hold the soil.

Texas farmers, without funds to prepare for possible future droughts, are looking toward the so-called Finnell plan, suggested by H. H. Finnell, director of wind erosion control. The plan was approved at a meeting of 900 farmers in the Panhandle region. It asks that government funds be provided for a general contouring of contracted and abandoned acreages and wide row planting of a variety of sorghum which would hold the soil and moisture.

By the Associated Press.

A major revision in the Federal Government's farm program impended yesterday as the result of drought and dust storms in the Great Plains.

AAA officials and others concerned with land-use policies said privately they saw in the present repetition of 1934 conditions a motivating factor that might force rapid purchase of millions of acres of land in the drought belt to undertake a vast soil erosion prevention program.

At the same time, additional modifications of crop reduction programs were believed likely. The 10 per cent cut in spring wheat acreage has been abandoned, allowing farmers to plant any area they desire.

Officials declared that the 10 to 30 per cent cut in corn acreage probably would not be abandoned immediately unless factors not now in sight required such action, explaining that farmers had been encouraged to plant grain sorghums and other drought-resistant crops on retired corn acreage.

The AAA and Federal relief agencies engaged in purchasing submarginal land during the past year declared that between 5,000,000 and 10,000,000 acres would be in the hands of the Federal Government or under option by July 1.

Continuance of dry conditions in the Great Plains and the resulting dust storms were held by some to make large purchases in that area imperative.

Soil erosion prevention now is confined to educating farmers owning the land in methods of meeting the problem and conducting demonstrations on State and Federal properties, they said.

Federal purchase would enable the Government to begin immediately planting grass, trees, and other cover crops to hold the soil and turn the land over for use of game, recreation, and some grazing.

Traces of Thursday's dust storm lingered in Washington yesterday although officials at the Weather Bureau reported that the main volume of the storm had moved out to sea.

Gray clouds and a slight haze masked the spring sun, and the mercury sank to a minimum of 52 degrees at 7 a. m. Temperatures rose gradually during the day, and achieved a maximum of 67 at 4 p. m.

Spring showers will patter today, and temperatures will rise slowly, the Weather Bureau predicted.

engineer, and W. T. Jarboe, radio officer.

By the Associated Press.

Oakland, Calif., March 22.—The Government's big radio-compass plane ran into bad weather and heavy static today when, after waiting almost two weeks for perfect conditions, it soared out of Oakland for a test flight at sea.

She immediately changed her course and headed southward to skirt lowering skies west of the Golden Gate. Just off Point Sur—near the spot where the Navy dirigible Macon collapsed and sank February 12—the plane found clear sailing.

Shortly after the take-off at 10:06 a. m. the plane encountered static that hampered her radio operations. Some apprehension was felt here for a time when she failed to report on a schedule, but a message at 1:25 p. m. reported her in good weather.

The liner Mariposa, about 400 miles out, reported the plane was overhead at 4:05 p. m.

At take-off time her projected destination was a round trip to a point about 700 miles out. Whether conditions would force a change of plans was not known here, and her crew made no report on that phase of the situation in radio messages.

The twin-motored cabin ship carried 1,100 gallons of gasoline, sufficient for about 2,200 miles of flying, but apparently not enough to reach Honolulu, 2,408 miles away.

Originally, she was groomed for a flight to the islands, but Secretary of Commerce Roper decided recently a hop all the way would not be necessary to give adequate tests to the new type of radio compass aboard.

Army Reserve Maj. Chester Snow, of the Department of Commerce, was in charge. At the controls were Capts. Albert F. Hegenberger and Clayton Bissell, of the Army Air Corps. Charles Snyder, Department of Commerce radio expert, handled the wireless equipment.

Submarines Adopt New Role In Rescue of Crippled Aircraft

By the Associated Press.

San Diego, Calif., March 22.—Uncle Sam's submarines have found a new role—the rescue of disabled aircraft.

The Navy's curtain of secrecy on submarine maneuvers was lifted sufficiently today to disclose this.

To Lieut. Comdr. Humbert W. Zirole, skipper of the 371-foot undersea cruiser Narwhal, fell the lot of the first rescue, it was disclosed in Submarine Division 12, of which Capt. Henry Martin Jensen is commander.

During recent maneuvers in the drill grounds off Coronado Islands, Southern California, one of the naval biplanes came down on the sea.

The Narwhal sped to the rescue—it has a surface speed of about 18 knots—and rescued the occupants. The submarine then took the craft in tow and delivered it to the North Island Naval Air Station here.

To the latest arriving submarine, the Cachalot, which came to the Pacific this month, went the honor of the second rescue. Lieut. Comdr. Merrill Comstock, its skipper, found his 260-foot fighting diver nearer to the distressed airplane than other craft engaging in maneuvers on the drill grounds and towed the plane to the air station.

With hundreds of Navy planes going through training and maneuver tactics above San Diego Bay and at sea over the drill grounds in the Pacific, through which no commercial ships pass, it is not uncommon for either the land-geared craft of the fleet's aircraft carrier squadrons or the seaplanes of the base force patrol and fighting squadrons to come down on the ocean.

chief of the Far Eastern department of the commissariat of foreign affairs, and S. M. Kuzenetsoff, vice chairman of the Chinese Eastern Railway's administrative board, for Russia, and Gen. Ting Chuichi Ohashi, Japanese who is vice minister of foreign affairs in Manchukuo, and Wu Cheng-Shen, of the Manchukuan finance ministry, for Manchukuo, signed the sale agreement and the general protocol covering the transfer.

Hirota and Yureneff exchanged notes, in which Japan gave and Russia accepted guarantees for Manchukuo's fulfillment of the terms of the sale contract.

Yureneff, Ting and Hirota signed a tri-partite protocol providing for the establishment of a commission to arbitrate disputes that may arise concerning Manchukuo's payments.

The sale price for the road, agreed upon after two years of hard-fisted bargaining which several times threatened to collapse entirely, was 140,000,000 yen, of which two-thirds may be paid in goods during the next three years.

In addition, Manchukuo agreed to pay retiring allowances and pensions for the more than 5,000 Soviet employes of the railway, which will add an estimated 27,000,000 to 30,000,000 yen to the price.

The documents signed today, in the opinion of the Japanese, recorded the end of Russian political and economic influence in Manchuria and the liquidation by the Soviet of the imperialist program in that region on which Czarist Russia embarked 40 years ago.

They marked, the Japanese believed, final victory for Japan in the four decades of Russo-Japanese competition for possession of Manchuria, which flamed into sanguinary war at the turn of the century and kept the two great Asian powers almost at sword's points during the last three years.

Furthermore the documents, in the opinion of Japanese and Russians alike, constituted the best guarantees just now possible against another Russo-Japanese war.

Far Behind in Work, Gandhi Won't Talk

Wardha, India, March 22 (AP).—So far behind with his work is the Mahatma Gandhi that today he vowed himself a silence until April 19 to catch up.

There is no political significance in the long period of silence, his secretary said, "Gandhi merely being desirous of getting his personal correspondence up to date and revising some manuscripts.

Red Snow Frightens Natives in Turkey

Angora, Turkey, March 22 (U.P.).—Red snow falling over Anatolia reached a depth of 1 inch, the local Meteorological Institute reported today.

Natives in Kars and neighboring villages were frightened by this unique phenomenon. Scientists sought an explanation.

"Grapefruit has been the best 'consumer buy' in canned fruits and juices"

Quoting from a trade letter just received from Florida . . . .

The ability of packers to operate to capacity during this season with rapid turnover of stocks has been due largely to the co-operation of interested distributors to pass out the goods to the consumer on equally narrow margins. Due to the attractive prices at which Grapefruit and Grapefruit Juice have been offered, consumption has greatly increased with shipments to date, both domestic and export, far in excess of any previous season in proportion to the pack. Grapefruit has been the best "consumer buy" in canned fruits and juices.

We are co-operating not only by maintaining low prices regularly, but by offering these very Special Prices until close of business Saturday Evening

A Victory For Inflation.

House passage of the Patman bonus bill by a vote of 318 to 90 is properly hailed as a victory for the inflationists. It is their proposal to pay the veterans in "United States notes not bearing interest." If the House had been chiefly concerned to meet the demands of the veterans, it could have done so without approving resort to the printing presses. Instead it rejected the rival Vinson bill, which would leave the Treasury free to provide the required funds either by bond issues or through taxation.

While the Vinson bill is an unsound measure, calling for an increase of over $2,000,000,000 in an already dangerously swollen public debt to pay subsidies to able-bodied men, it does not carry any suggestion of the "financial chaos implicit in the flat philosophy of the Patman bill." That designation of the Patman bill, expressed by Representative Lewis of Maryland in a minority report of the House Ways and Means Committee, is well deserved. The glee with which Senator Thomas has announced that he will offer the Patman bill as a rider to the work-relief measure, if his silver inflation amendment fails of passage, provides further evidence of the reason why the Patman bill is preferred.

The followers of Representative Patman are more eager to pay out flat money for any purpose than they are to satisfy the demands of veterans. It is worth noting that the House Ways and Means Committee, in summarizing its reasons for advocating cash payment of the bonus, mentioned first the advantage of increasing the purchasing power of the Nation.

It is of no avail to warn the House that a nation that tries to pay its debts with printing press money is headed for destruction. It can only be hoped that the saner counsels which have heretofore prevailed in the Senate will again bring defeat to the Patman bill. Failing that, reliance has to be placed upon a presidential veto.

The Harlem Riots.

The destructive riots that raged the other night in the Harlem section of New York City—the greatest Negro settlement in the world—were directly due to a false rumor that a Negro boy guilty of a minor theft had been beaten and killed. Of course the fundamental explanation of this alarming outbreak must be sought in other causes of unrest, as pointed out in an article on the opposite page today.

As usual, communistic agitation is regarded by some people as an all-sufficient reason for the public disorder and street fighting. Others emphasize the feeling aroused by Italian aggression against Abyssinia as an important supplementary cause of the vandalism which led to the wrecking of numerous shops owned by Italians.

Unquestionably these were both contributing causes. But they were also superficial evidences of much more basic causes of distress which Mayor LaGuardia is rightly concerned to discover and, if possible, correct. With that purpose in mind, he has appointed a biracial committee to investigate social and economic conditions in the affected area and to make recommendations for their betterment.

That is a constructive approach to solution of problems created by a serious state of social unrest. The remedy does not lie in ruthless punishment of ringleaders, or attempts to suppress free speech. What is needed is a thorough-going study of charges of exploitation of Negro workers, and complaints of inadequate relief allowances and intolerable housing conditions in congested areas.

If the true state of affairs is one half as bad as it is painted by certain Negro spokesmen for the Harlem community, the riots can easily be explained. Their repetition will not be prevented by anti-communistic drives, but by betterment of the economic conditions that make men and women fall ready victims to professional agitators.

"Pay As You Fight."

The idea of paying the expenses of war out of revenue made available through drastic taxes carries a strong appeal. First, the absence of war profits and the fear of crushing taxes upon everyone would be a significant deterrent to belligerency. Second, it would not leave the Nation under an appalling burden of debt after a war.

In practice, of course, the plan of the Senate Munitions Committee would break down because no country will ever worry about its credit when a life-and-death struggle has once been undertaken. For the moment, however, only the theory underlying this novel proposal seems to warrant attention. And so far as the theory goes the President is reported by Senator Nye to have given his tacit approval to the plan of "paying while we fight."

If the President were really converted to that principle it would be unnecessary to postpone its application until the tocsin sounds. Most politicians insist that we are already engaged in a war—against economic depression. But, instead of "paying as we fight," the Government is piling up deficits at the rate of millions of dollars every week. Surely the emergency by which the country is now confronted is less acute than a major war would be. Sincere conversion to the principle of "pay as you fight," therefore, would doubtless result in a veto for the $5,000,000,000 public works program, all of which must be financed by borrowing.

Senators who wax enthusiastic over the President's tacit indorsement of the "pay as you fight" idea might do well to inquire what he thought of paying for public works before he took over the job of fighting the depression. In those easy days he said: "All public works, including Federal, must be considered from the point of view of the ability of the Government treasury to pay for them."

The "Little Fellow."

The rider attached by Senator Borah to the work-relief bill, seeking repeal of that section of the Recovery Act which suspends operation of the antitrust laws, was defeated by the relatively narrow margin of ten votes.

The practice of appending irrelevant amendments to legislative measures is at all times indefensible. But it seems especially undesirable to endeavor to encumber the important work-relief bill with a rider which, as Senator Walsh said, was intended to "carve out the heart of the NRA." Since the Senate will have an opportunity to discuss recommendations for revision of the Recovery Act when the Finance Committee is ready to report, there was no excuse for this over-slick parliamentary move.

Undoubtedly there is strong support in the Senate for plans to eliminate from the industrial codes all price and production-control features, leaving only those provisions intended to safeguard labor. Senator Borah and many of his colleagues apparently share the views of Clarence Darrow that the NRA "was gotten up to help big business" by raising prices and encouraging the growth of monopolies.

Restoration of the antitrust laws in full force, however, would mean reversion to forms of predatory price-cutting that bear with especial severity upon small business units. It is difficult to follow the reasoning of those who argue that abolition of all code restrictions upon prices and output would benefit the little fellow. There are, of course, certain classes of small businesses of the sweatshop type that can live by charging less than larger concerns, surviving at the expense of downtrodden workers. But Senator Borah has no desire to perpetuate the life of these predatory concerns.

In most cases, it is not the legitimate small business, but the large-scale producer, who triumphs under conditions of unregulated competition. As the production costs of the latter are usually lower, his opportunities for cutting prices and forcing the small concern to the wall are better when there are no safeguards against sales below cost, and no restrictions upon output.

In some cases it is known that the percentage of business done by larger concerns has actually decreased following the introduction of codes. Moreover, there is no question that many small business units have been most eager to enter into agreements designed to end price cutting. Representatives of such groups are even now petitioning Congress for renewal of the Recovery Act, on the ground that it protects them against a few powerful competitors.

The process of industrial integration has been going on for many years, chiefly because large industrial units are, as a rule, able to produce more cheaply than small ones. Senator Borah and Mr. Darrow may deplore this trend and wish that it could be reversed. There is no reason to believe, however, that evolutionary forces which have been at work over a long period of time can be defeated merely by restoration of the antitrust laws.

Under those laws, combinations and monopolistic types of organization have not infrequently been fostered, because of the ruthless pressure of unregulated competition. If it had been adopted Senator Borah's rider might, indeed, have assisted instead of repressing those present-day tendencies toward bigness which he mistakenly attributes to the activities of the NRA.

Another NRA Reorganization.

Reorganization of the National Industrial Recovery Board so shortly in advance of action by Congress to perpetuate, revise or abolish the Recovery Administration, is very interesting. The new set-up encourages conjectures concerning administrative plans for the future. But it would be premature to pass judgment upon the wisdom of the changes made before the fate of the recovery act itself has been determined. The members of the NIRB, a majority of whom already hold office, are men of ability. But their success in rehabilitating the NRA will obviously depend upon the character and scope of the discretionary powers which Congress permits them to exercise.

The appointment of Mr. Richberg as acting chairman of the new board merely settles his status as titular head of the Recovery Administration, and sets an official seal of approval upon the policies that he has been advocating. That alone throws considerable light upon the kind of revisions that the Administration will be disposed to favor. The fact that labor has secured representation upon the new board is also significant. It leads one to infer that no effort will be made to separate the labor clauses of the recovery act from those relating to codes of fair practice.

There are many reasons for believing that such segregation would be conducive to more efficient enforcement of both the labor and the other provisions of the codes. On the other hand, there are unquestionably political obstacles making it inexpedient to urge such a separation of functions. Without separation, the demand for authoritative labor representation upon a board which administers codes covering the labor as well as the other provisions of the recovery act is fully justified.

The attitude of the Administration toward the Wagner bill and other measures favored by organized labor remains obscure, but restoration of amicable relations between Mr. Richberg and President Green of the A. F. of L. indicates that labor is satisfied the new organization will give it much greater influence in the formulation and interpretation of codes of fair practice than heretofore.

A Senseless Proposal.

Reports that the House District subcommittee on parks and playgrounds will recommend development of an entirely new temporary airport for Washington are decidedly unwelcome. The Commissioners have clearly indicated that the District government can not afford to finance a landing field merely to replace Washington Airport while a permanent air terminal is being constructed. A bill for that purpose would probably deadlock the entire airport project.

Washington already has a temporary airport. Certainly that field is acutely in need of improvements, particularly the closing of the highway which bisects it. But with this airport close to the heart of the city already in operation, it would be worse than ridiculous to spend upward of $1,000,000 on a distant site inappropriate for development as a permanent air terminal.

A fantastic touch is given to the conclusions attributed to the sub-committee by suggestions that it has come under the influence of air lines interested in lowering rental charges at Washington Airport. It is incredible that a congressional committee would try to beat down rental charges by the roundabout and undesirable method of putting the District government into competition with a private landing field. If Chairman Randolph and his colleagues should be induced to advance such a proposal they would probably retard consideration of a practical airport bill and arouse a storm of criticism.

Airline operators might well ask Congress to regulate charges for the privilege of landing at Washington Airport if those rates are as exorbitant as reported. Responsibility for fixing these charges could be assigned to the Interstate Commerce Commission, along with authority to adjust air mail and passenger rates, since the expense of terminal facilities has an obvious bearing upon the cost of air transportation. But an attempt to reduce terminal charges through wasteful competition in building airport facilities would be absurd.

A majority of the committee members appear to favor Gravelly Point for development of a permanent airport. But this constructive attitude is completely overshadowed by the proposals to condition Benning Race Track or the Episcopal High School site for temporary use. If Congress should force the District to sink several hundred thousand dollars in preparing a second-rate air terminal for temporary use, the hope of a model landing field would suffer severe set-back.

Perhaps the talk of a "surprise" solution of the airport problem is only a trial balloon. If so, the sooner it is pricked the better. The sub-committee has the alternative of bringing in a constructive plan, fashioned to serve the needs of the community, or of further entangling an already highly controversial issue and thus defeating the purpose toward which its efforts are supposed to be directed.

The Leggings Of The Law.

A report, statistically demounting the Royal Northwest Mounted Policeman from his horse, has just been issued by the auditor of that branch of Canadian service. The fact will be a blow to die-hard romantics. For many years, the idea was engendered in the public mind that those red-coated protectors of the northland and their mounts were as inseparable as an Indian and his feathers or a Pullman porter and his grin.

Time and our Department of the Interior are responsible for the awe-inspiring feathers giving way to the fedora. A thin dime and the depression handed a knock-out to that "train service with a smile." And now comes the disheartening news that picturesqueness is yielding to speed and the "Mounties" are forsaking the saddle for plane, rail and water.

The records and accounts of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police have been, from its very inception, tinged with color and unusual heroism. In legend and in deed, these men have stood shoulder to shoulder with the French Foreign Legion and the redoubtable Texas Rangers. So successful have they been in their capture of criminals that the world has come to accept the phrase "get your man" as the official creed of the Mounty. Movies have played a large part in familiarizing people with the glamour and hardihood of the eternal fight between Canadian law and troublous half-breeds.

There is no gainsaying that both his dashing uniform and his gallant steed have lent romance and luster to the stern and otherwise prosaic guardian of the borders. But it would be ridiculous to credit any of his success and bravery to either of these factors. There is something undeniably fascinating about brass buttons and leather leggings, yet the most thrilling criminal round-ups in our own country have been made by "plain clothes" men. Therefore, this is not to decry the lack of flavor resulting from modernity's encroachment on picturesqueness, but simply to mark the passing of another tradition.

The Post welcomes letters from its readers. All communications must be signed with the writer's name and address. Upon publication initials or pen names will be used if requested. Letters are subject to condensation, and in no case should they exceed 250 words.

Marching On The Capitol.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I have read with interest, and with more misapprehension, the reports about the civic organizations of Washington organizing to "march upon the Capitol" to demand the removal of Representative Blanton, of Texas, from the subcommittee on appropriations that concern the District of Columbia.

I served 12 years as a member of Congress. To me the saddest things I encountered during those years of service were such marches on the Capitol. When it becomes the fashion for hordes of men to march upon the Capitol parliamentary government will come to an end.

The residents of the District of Columbia ought not to set such an example. Their interests in the Capitol are too near and too vital. If they do it, others will do it, and do it increasingly. Instead of encouraging such mass movements they ought to discourage them. The proposed march is simply a proposition conceived in hysteria. It would be no more than an expression of mob psychology. The people of the District of Columbia ought to set a better example.

No member of Congress is worth such a demonstration. Any complaint that the District of Columbia has to make against Mr. Blanton can be heard by Speaker Byrns and those in authority without so much noise. They will listen to reasons intelligently presented through proper committees more quickly than to the noise of a mob.

Finally, let not the people of Washington set an example that those less intelligent and less patriotic will use as a precedent. The time may come when the mobs that come marching on the Capitol may have to be dispersed by the armed forces of the Government.

The Unredeemed Dodecanese.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: From the Capitol of the United States, a decade and five years ago, came to us the pleasing tidings of the acceptance of Senate Resolution No. 324, which emphatically declared that the Greek islands of Dodecanese, occupied by Italy, must be awarded to their mother Greece.

From the Capital of the United States comes now the March 3 issue of The Post to champion the righteous cause of the yet unredeemed isles of Greece.

Then we lowered our heads in prayer for the prompt realization of our national aspirations. Today, groaning under the gloomy despotism of Italian Fascism, the Dodecanesians can not but be deeply appreciative of the kind deeds of those who endeavor to inform the American public of their lamentable conditions, and advocate the return of these undisputed Greek lands to Grecian sovereignty.

For the Dodecanesian League of America.

N. NICKITAS, President.
JAMES STRIKES, Secretary,
New York City, March 12.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I was very much pleased listening to the secretary of our Dodecanesian League at the meeting of March 19, when he was reading the article of The Post, dealing also with our beloved islands of Dodecanese.

As one of the islanders who fought under the United States flag, permit me to thank you for your nice article. ANDY LOUIS.
New York City, March 21.

Nestor Of Pianists.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The appearance of Harold Bauer on March 21 in the reading of Schumann's A minor concerto would seem an epochal and inspirational moment for those who heard him.

Harold Bauer comes to us in America as almost the Nestor of pianists—if not in years, in profound nature, mature wisdom, artistic achievement. In appearance, Beethoven would be suggested: short, stocky, similar physiognomy, noble head, shocky hair. In profound art, similar comparison, dominance and inner vision to the regions of cosmic and subconscious reincarnation, to those who may believe.

From spiritual demands evolves a technic of the deeply imbedded singing tone and scintillating runs of loveliness.

So, accompanied by the Washington Orchestra, the reading of Schumann's romantic composition was given with varying and sensitive touch of the true poet. One felt again the freshness of spring flowers, the romantic glamour, encircling the love of Robert and Clara Schumann.

OTTO TORNEY SIMON.
Washington, March 22.

The Antilynching Bill.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: May I call the attention of your readers to the fact that millions of citizens have registered in favor of the passage of the Wagner-Costigan antilynching bill, because they believe its enactment will go a long way toward checking a barbarous practice which is a disgrace to our Nation. Reports of all the hideous details of these outrages against law and decency at once make copy for sensational papers and are reported with exaggerated horrors in the hostile press of other countries, thus fostering prejudice and hatred abroad.

The local Y. W. C. A., the Friends Peace Committee and the Washington Federation of Churches, through its committee on race relations and with the indorsement of its board of directors, have given their support to the bill.

Power to deal with this evil must be given to our Federal courts. State and Federal courts working together have greatly reduced cases of kidnaping. The antilynching bill will, we believe, in a similar way, lessen the number of these brutal attacks.

D. BUTLER PRATT,
Washington, March 20.

Voice From The Limbo.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I hope I may be pardoned for referring to the technocrats—those doughty scholars who two years ago analyzed our present economic difficulties with unequaled, or at least unsurpassed, accuracy. I have kept in close contact with the unfolding of events in order to see how many of their prognostications were correct.

The technocrats two years ago predicted that during the coming years the American people would stampede from one political nostrum to another in order to get out of the "depression." First the Republicans would be tried and found wanting. Then the people would turn "en masse" to the Democrats, with no better, or even worse, results. Then back to the Republicans—or to any demagogue possessing the voice and lungs of rodomontade.

Such a prophecy is doubly significant now that President Roosevelt's popularity is apparently suffering a rapid decline. Some predict a Republican avalanche in 1936; others believe that soon we shall all be kings.

Was technocracy right? It seems so. PLEBEIAN.
Washington, March 21.

Recovery First.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: President Roosevelt makes the grave mistake of putting relief and reform before recovery. Today we face the startling fact that there are more on relief than a year ago—for a full 12 months, we have made no real progress in recovery.

Recovery means relief. Of course, no one should be without food, clothing and shelter, but relief and reform should be interpreted in terms of recovery. Work-relief will cost $4,000,000,000—money-relief $2,000,000,000. It is better to have the dole and as soon as possible a real job than an unreal job that delays the coming of a real job!

In the inaugural address, the outstanding statement was, "The only thing we have to fear is fear"—and yet, today, President Roosevelt is so handling relief and so drastically pushing reform that he is bringing back much of that devastating fear which was so happily eliminated in the first year of his Administration.

Give relief and bring reform in ways that do not hinder recovery.

Make The Tax Snoopers Register.

If the Government is to insist that everyone's income account for last year be placed on public display, it is only fair that the identity of every income tax snooper who takes advantage of the iniquitous publicity law also be made public.

Should the move under way in Congress to abrogate the pink slip provision fail, citizens will have a complete record of their gross earnings, deductions and net income within easy reach of every extortioner, every curiosity seeker, every business competitor, every neighborhood gossip.

If there is any reason to make these returns a matter of public record, there is no reason to keep hidden the persons who would pry into them. The taxpayer whose private affairs are to be dragged out into the open should at least be able to learn just who is snooping into his business.

Every income tax snooper should be compelled, by regulation or, if need be, by special legislation, to register his name and address alongside the names of those whose returns he examines.

"Rain At Stresa"

Post Office, Saturday.

"THE British Cabinet has approved an Italian suggestion for an emergency French-British-Italian conference at San Remo or Stresa after Sir John Simon returns to London from his forthcoming and portentous interview with Hitler. On this conference vast issues will probably depend."

Such is the tenor of the dispatches.

They ran away with our imagination—and then our memories ran away with it.

* * * *

If the Powers must confer on vast issues, let them do so at San Remo. Let them let Stresa rest. . .

Spring at Stresa!

* * * *

Out of Rome, where "the 4 o'clock wind" still whistles cold from the bare gardens above the Spanish Steps, a Minister of State—with the fur collar of his overcoat turned high, with fingers nipped that nurse his padlocked brief-case—huddles into the Simplon Express and is hurtled toward the Lombard Plain.

The British Foreign Secretary shivers away from London, crosses the choppy Channel—though he's a poor sailor, this Sir John!—and picks up a chilled French statesman at the Quai d'Orsay in Paris. Together they board the night train—but surely not before eating a Provencal dinner at the station restaurant. Before they have passed St. Amour, they are ringing for extra blankets.

* * * *

The night is cold along the valley of the Po.

The night is cold across the Burgundian uplands.

* * * *

Yet all three of these tired politicians wake up to Springtime and sunshine, the purple mountains, the white Piedmontese villas, and the warm blue of Maggiore, at Stresa. . .

* * * *

"A village . . . in the Province of Novara . . . 10 m. N. of Arona . . . Pop. (1921), 2,051. It is remarkable for the beauty of its scenery . . . and is a favorite health resort."

That is about all the Encyclopedia Britannica has to say about Stresa. But this Column has its own opinion of the Encyclopedia Britannica's descriptive powers. Why, to be sent to Stresa at this season would almost reconcile a diplomat to being a diplomat: no wonder that thereabouts Ernest Hemingway's unheroic hero said a farewell to arms!

* * * *

"Yes," the hotel proprietor told us, "all is peace here, always.

"I was born here, very poor. I went as a boy to London and worked for years at the old Savoy Hotel. Yet always I saved my money, and always I said to myself: 'Ha, ha, you wait, Beppo'—I am Beppo—'you wait a little and just see. For soon you will go back to Stresa and buy that hotel.'

"The war came, the peace came, and I had still my savings. The communistic troubles were sweeping Italy: I arrived here anyway—and, ecco, I did buy the hotel.

"Next day—very next day—my friends call on me, whom I had not seen since we were boys. 'Don't buy him,' they say. 'But I have bought him,' I say—'and why not?' 'Because,' they say, 'we are the local Soviet; in ten days, a week, tomorrow we shall seize all for the people—this with the rest—and we do not want see you lose your money.' Yet I say: 'Ha, ha, you just wait a little and see!' And, ecco, in ten days, a week, the morrow, there are the Blackshirts marching, there is Mussolini—and Beppo still owns this hotel in peace."

Of course in peace.

There is peace from one horn of the vast mountains' semicircle to the other, from the Pennine to the Ligurian Alps. There is peace and glamor.

* * * *

By earliest April, though there is snow on the peaks, the narcissus fields are the only likeness to snow on the lower hills around Stresa. There are red and yellow flowers at the roadside. The poplars are emerald. Tiny steamboats bob up and down the lake, and Isola Bella and her sister island, with their reminiscences of good Charles Borromeo, already dream of summer.

Through the haze of the afternoon, through the mauve shadows of the mauve-and-silver heights, patient ox-carts lumber down dusty ways. The very vineyards are stirring. Sheep munch the young grass in the valleys, tended by shepherdesses in every color who nurse bambinos just as brightly swathed. A distant tinkle of cowbells tells you that the herds are being driven to the uplands.

And, out on Maggiore, fishermen are singing Piedmontese songs, which, though half French in these latter days, are songs that their Tuscan ancestors must have sung as long ago as when Stresa was a town of Rome's Gallia Transpadona.

"Rain at Stresa?"

Tennyson complained that he encountered wild weather there.

But won't Stresa have charms to soothe even the savage breast of diplomacy?

What a place in which to try to talk statescraft! Let those politicians close however many doors they can, the shocked mountains would echo aloud any whisper that such odd visitors uttered of war.

Harlem Riots Caused By Misery, Not Reds

With 80 Per Cent Unemployed And Only 14 Per Cent On Relief, Situation Is Serious.

By Ralph E. Renaud.
Special Correspondence of The Post.

New York.

TWO developments in the life of the city this week indicated on what an insecure foundation Father Knickerbocker has built his seemingly solid estate. Scientists say there is an earthquake fault running southeast from the Saguenay River in Canada, which once, in the thirties, toppled many a chimney in Manhattan and has excited occasional quavers since. But no earthquake could have caused more consternation than the sudden Harlem riots, which blazed almost into insurrection. And no earthquake in this vicinity is likely to cause more physical damage than the threatened strike of power key men could inflict. Both are in the technique of the modern revolutionary.

It was not the casualty list of the Harlem riots which made them stand out. It was their mass and vigor. In the past the police have at times broken more heads. But this time the whole population seemed to rise in window-smashing protest at something vague and obscure which it scarcely understood. It is perfectly plain now that Negro Communists, and white ones, too, stirred the trouble with printed reports of a colored boy who was supposed to have been beaten by white merchants, but who never was. But they didn't cause it.

For some time the colored population of Harlem, which is the greatest aggregation of the African race in any of the world's cities, has been growing more uneasy. Ordinarily they are a peaceful and happy people. Lately, however, they have found cause for irritation in matters they would have ignored a few years ago. They haven't liked the closing up of some of Father Divine's "Heavens" by the police, for instance. The little fat man is a prophet up there as well as a source of free meals. And they haven't liked police interference in their numbers game, despite the fact that they gamble against 1,000 to 1 hazard for the profit of white racketeers.

But primarily they are unhappy because of their economic condition. Harlem looks neat enough on the surface, but, underneath, it is one of the most miserable spots on the face of the earth. The people in it are wretched and becoming more so every day. The great migration from the South took place in the days of the big prosperity. It would have been better to have stayed on the land. Now, after five years of the depression, only 12,500 out of Harlem's 250,000 colored population remain employed. Allowing four to a family this makes an unemployment average of 80 per cent. Yet only 14 per cent are on relief. The others just haven't been lucky no matter how hard they rubbed the wishing elm, which is Harlem's mascot.

CORRELATIVE miseries follow in the wake of this unemployment. While the death rate has fallen in the rest of the city, it has risen in Harlem. The average is 18.15 per thousand and in some of the "bad spots" it is 21. The tuberculosis death rate alone has leaped from 191 per thousand to 250. Infant mortality is almost double that of the rest of the city. Yet, with these conditions, rents are higher than elsewhere, perhaps because they are mostly unpaid. The answer of the tenants has been to "bunch up." As many as five families have been found living in six rooms.

Friends of the colored man say he is last to be hired and first to be fired. As one of their papers put it the other day: "If you shut off a man's chance at a good job you dull his sense of ethics. If you despise him as a social and economic outcast you have done your best to make him act like one. If employers and trade unions would throw open their doors to Negro workers there would be far less Negro crime in Harlem and elsewhere."

There will be more riots in Harlem. The material is there. It is a tinder-box for the most vagrant spark. Perhaps 650 police can't handle the trouble next time. Meanwhile Mayor LaGuardia has appointed a fact-finding committee. What is more urgently needed is a job-finding committee.

• • • •

RIOTS, too, would inevitably follow a strike of the power key men, say civic experts. These are the highly developed technicians whose skill makes the big power plants, such as that of the Brooklyn Edison Co., function.

If they walk out most of the activities of the city would shut down. Not an elevator would run. The subways would be crippled. New York would be more candle-lit than a Christmas tree. Cold storage plants would become hot boxes and supplies would spoil. The police telegraph system would be paralyzed. Criminals would have a holiday. These are just a few of the happy little thoughts engendered by a situation which, so far, remains unsolved.

It is useless to talk of the city taking over the plants, or to dream of the National Government marching in soldiers to take charge. They simply couldn't do it. Fortunately, however, the key men have offered to keep "essential services" running, whatever that means.

• • • •

WITH all this gloom around it is pleasant to see a worthy young man stepping briskly out into life with a $25 a week job and a good chance to rise. The young man is John Jacob Astor 3d, who has just gone to work for the International Mercantile Marine. Fortunately, in these times of sudden change, Mr. Astor has a little money of his own. While telling how much he enjoyed his 48 hours of work a week, he constantly flipped a bright half-dollar into the air. In addition to that, however, he is one of the world's richest young men.

As Mr. Astor gets his lunches f. o. b., which is free on board the Mercantile Marine Line ships, he can probably save a little out of his salary, even though he has a wife, Miss Ellen Tuck French that was, to support. He denies that he has ever been a playboy, and thinks he would like to stay where he is as long as they will keep him around. Between your correspondent and the gate post, he can look confidently for promotion. His half-brother, Vincent Astor, is vice president of the company and one of the largest stockholders.

• • • •

RICH young men like Mr. Astor (speaking only in the generic sense) can sleep a little more easily at night now that the New York Legislature has passed the bill against breach of promise suits, for the Governor is expected to sign it. Thereafter the heart balm industry goes into the ash can as far as this State is concerned. Of the three women in the Legislature, only the lone lady Senator objected.

It is difficult to understand how legislation of this type lagged so long. The cat popped out of the bag, however, when one of the Senators remarked, "If this were followed to its logical conclusion, all sorts of action would be abolished and you would have to create a pension system for members of the bar."

Some people wonder if legislatures all over the United States, blocking some bills and furthering more foolish ones, haven't spent most of their time creating a pension system for members of the bar. In fact, if a poll of American legislatures, including the Congress of the United States, were taken according to professions, it might reveal another pension system for members of the bar.

IF YOU are behind on your mortgage, or your tailor is duning you, why not dig around in your cellar a little? Thomas Malinowski, a Hempstead grocer, did just that and as a result has (or had) a glass jar containing $1,960 in gold and silver certificates and a 35-year-old bottle of cognac brandy with which to celebrate the discovery.

The story is not quite so simple as that, however. Unfortunately, Thomas hired a friend to do the digging and now the digger comes forward and claims half the swag. Thomas points out that he can't give it to him because as soon as the treasure was found and placed on the kitchen table the money, the cognac and Mrs. Malinowski all disappeared together. Strangely enough, though, the lady had the forethought to pay $1,200 of her husband's bills before she vanished.

A systematic search of America's cellarage might prove quite a profitable undertaking, especially since so many of the banks closed. Merely the most casual poking about has unearthed about a million dollars around New York in the past year.

Pastors Here To See Leader

Moderator of Presbyterian Church to Be Guest at Meeting.

Dr. William Chalmers Covert, moderator of the general assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States, will be the guest of the Presbyterian Ministerial Alliance Tuesday night when it meets in the Covenant-First Presbyterian Church, Connecticut avenue at Eighteenth and N streets northwest.

Dr. Covert was honored by the Presbyterian Church at large in Cleveland last May, when he was selected moderator. For several years he was pastor of historic First Presbyterian Church in Chicago. Later he was general secretary of the Presbyterian Board of Education, from which he retired a year ago.

He is the author of several books. During the last year he has traveled throughout the country in the interest of the church.

A luncheon in his honor will be held Tuesday noon in the Y. W. C. A. Following the service in the Church of the Covenant there will be a reception in the church chapel.

Along The Potomac

With Carlisle Bargeron

Don's Return.

DEAR ALECK: I know you will share my excitement when I tell you that Donald Richberg returned to us at the NRA yesterday. It was so good to see an old face and notwithstanding, Aleck, that some people had said Hugh Johnson's drubbing had aged him, Donald hasn't changed a bit. He has been off coordinating, if you will recall, Aleck. But now when he makes his speeches he will be introduced as the head of the NRA which will cause people to ask what is the NRA and in that way we will be heard about.

BARGERON.

We are all so enthusiastic about the prospects we hardly know what to do. Donald told the newspaper boys upon his return that the comic opera which has been our NRA is no longer to be and that the old Blue Eagle will fly higher than ever. Aren't those encouraging words, though, Aleck?

• • • •

Mr. Roosevelt has shown his determination to keep us alive by adding two more members to the board. It is understood he intends to keep adding two or three members at the time and as it becomes necessary to keep the organization alive, even if he has to appoint every man and woman in the country. We all just love Mr. Roosevelt. It shows he has a lot of fight in him, doesn't it? But wouldn't it be funny if he had to appoint so many men and women to the NRA that it would be necessary to put the children back to work after we had saved them from the sweatshop? Then we could adopt the Russian slogan of "everybody is employed, even the babies."

I am afraid, Aleck, you people on the outside do not appreciate this injection with a view to keeping us alive as much as we in the organization do. For months we have been trying to dope out some way by which we could check the expected recovery this summer. The continued optimistic predictions on the part of business leaders proved we were getting nowhere in our efforts.

But we do hope to be able to do something toward this end now and if we get the Wagner labor dispute bill our enthusiasm will know no bounds. I don't want to brag, Aleck, but I do believe that with this bill, with the old team of Donald, Bill Green and John Lewis working together again, we will be able to stop the recovery dead in its tracks. We did it once before, you know.

I have a proposition myself which I intend to advance as soon as we get to functioning again, and which I believe will stir up a lot of trouble. I know five men, Aleck, who made a living last year by removing the fat from around canaries' hearts. One had a net income of $20,000, the second an income of $14,000, the third $13,000, and the other two $10,000 each. Undoubtedly there are hundreds of other men in the country who make their living by removing the fat from around canaries' hearts, but I have confined my studies and conclusions to the five I know.

Well, now, Aleck, you know as well as I do, that one man could remove all the fat from around canaries' hearts which those five men did. Four of them are inefficient and chiselers. Had the fellow who made $20,000 not been compelled to divide the canary fat removing business with the four inefficients he could have made $67,000 instead of $20,000. It is chaos in the canary fat removing business, that's what it is, Aleck.

I suppose you will say that the fact that five men made a living by removing fat from around canaries' hearts disproves our theory the country is overbuilt and shows, instead, we are a little stupid about developing new ideas but this is because you do not understand economics, Aleck, or at least not NRA economics.

• • • •

I know I will get the assistance of Bill Green and John Lewis in my proposition to combine the five canary fat removing firms into one and place four of the operators on Mr. Roosevelt's rural electrification project, because Bill and John are farseeing men. As it stands now each of these firms employs only one or two assistant canary fat removers and being in small shops they can't be induced to join the union. But if we put them all in one canary fat removing firm then we can get them to join together to protect themselves against the big, malevolent, canary fat remover trust.

Super-Meanings

By Wm. Lyon Phelps

THIS is the title of a delightful little volume by the Hon. John Garland Pollard, Governor of Virginia, from 1930 to 1934. (Published by Thomas Y. Crowell & Co.).

The title-word is not to be found in dictionaries, in which it resembles all the other contents of this book, for the full title is a conotary. Definitions not found in dictionaries—collected from the sayings of the wise and otherwise—illustrated by Fred O. Seibel.

I think the fun you are going to get out of this diverting little book may be most accurately foretasted if I give a few specimens.

Gossiping—a keen sense of rumor.

Friend—One who comes in at your door when riches fly out of your window.

Committee—A group of men who keep minutes and waste hours.

Intolerance—A thing which never made any contribution to Christianity.

Cuban Stability Hinges On Bayonet Measures

Correspondent Relates Fate Of Three Under Severe Regime of Strike-Breaking.

By Paul Vanorden Shaw.
Special Correspondence of The Post.

VERY few Latin-American revolutions have been able to succeed unless the army switched its support from the "ins" to the outs."

As long as the Cuban army remained loyal to Machado he was as unmovable as the Rock of Gibraltar. And this was also true of the regimes of de Cespedes and of Grau San Martin. The latter fell only when the army ceased its allegiance. Mendieta owes his real or apparent success over the strikers who have almost paralyzed the life of the island to the fact that the army has not split and has given his regime its full support. In fact, it is reported that "the Mendieta government through the enactment of the severest measures in the history of the republic appears to have broken the revolutionary strike movement."

The full significance of the measures taken to achieve this result can best be illustrated by the fate of three Cubans whom I interviewed not three months ago. One is in exile, one is in prison, and the other is dead.

• • • •

WHEN your correspondent arrived in Cuba in the last few days of December, 1934, he was met by Dr. H. Portell Vila, formerly a professor in the University of Havana, formerly a Guggenheim fellow and one of the island's most distinguished and best-known historians. He had been one of the most critical of all Cubans of the interventions of the United States in Cuban affairs, and on December 19 had delivered a radio address in which he attacked the American policy vehemently.

When he met me he was expecting at any moment to be given the famous "castor oil cure," since it had been promised him. However, during the days of my stay in Cuba at that time he was not molested.

On January 2, as I was returning to the United States from Mexico by way of Cuba, I was met at the boat by a young man who signaled to me to keep silent until we had an opportunity to talk out of earshot. He then told me that Dr. Portell Vila had been arrested at 12:30 of the morning of my arrival and was now in one of the military barracks, although no reason was given for his arrest. It was assumed that he was connected with a party known as 'La Joven Cuba," then involved with the authorities.

I was able to get through the guards where he was being held. There I met one of the members of this party to which Dr. Portell was alleged to have belonged. He stated categorically that his own arrest might be justified since he was a member of "La Joven Cuba," but that Dr. Portell Vila's arrest on these grounds was completely unjustified.

A visit to the family of this professor brought vividly to light the full meaning of the suspension of constitutional guarantees The mother and wife were helpless because no lawyer could appeal where there was no law. The family envisaged a fate for Dr. Portell which at best might be imprisonment in one of the many prisons for political offenders, or at worst, exile to the Isle of Pines, the "castor oil cure," the application of "ley fuga," or the facing of a firing squad. Shortly afterwards, however, Dr. Portell Vila was released, only to be among the first to be arrested when the recent student strike led to the repressive measures which have been adopted by the Mendita regime.

• • • •

THROUGH Dr. Portell Vila, two members of the Autentico Party asked to see me at my hotel. One was Dr. Carlos Hevia, president of Cuba for 40 hours after the fall of Grau San Martin, and former minister of Agriculture. Dr. Hevia expressed great concern with the situation in Cuba at that time and was apparently rather hesitant to speak freely. Whether he believed that even the walls had ears, or that he should be guarded in speaking to an American correspondent I don't know. In any case he was gloomy with respect to the future of Cuba and felt that as long as the island was in control of the army, no peace would ever come. He has now fled to Miami in the interests of his personal safety.

Dr. Hevia's companion on the morning of that interview in the Bristol Hotel spoke more frankly and more fervently of the hopes of his party and of the needs of Cuba. He showed distress at the failures of the revolution and spoke of the sense of frustration which Cubans feel. He refused to admit that it was more a question of psychology than of fact which kept the Cubans from achieving their goals. He insisted that American intervention was a reality.

When Dr. Hevia reached Miami last week he gave out an interview in which he asserted that more than 200 Cubans had been massacred. President Mendieta immediately denied the truth of this statement. But of one certain victim I am sure Dr. Hevia was thinking when he made his accusation. His body riddled with bullets, Enriques Fernandez, the companion of Dr. Hevia the day we talked in the hotel in Havana, is now another martyr to Cuban liberties.

One in exile; one in jail; one in his grave. That is the fate of three prominent Cubans whom I interviewed less than three months ago.

Schedule of Sermons and Services in Churches of Capital

Major Brown And 100 Police Church Guests

Superintendent and Men to Attend Services at Petworth M. E.

The Right Rev. Edwin D. Mouzon, senior bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, will be the guest preacher at Mount Vernon Place M. E. Church South, Massachusetts avenue and Ninth street northwest, tomorrow.

In the absence of Dr. W. Angie Smith, pastor, the bishop will be in the pulpit at morning and evening services.

Bishop Mouzon, who has served as pastor in many of his denomination's prominent churches, is a widely known American clergyman. He made official visits to the Methodist mission in Mexico in 1911 and to South America in 1915. He is the founder of Southern Methodist University in Dallas, Tex. He was chairman of the commission sent to South American in 1930 to set up the Autonomous Methodist Church of Brazil. He has written several books on theological subjects.

Dr. Smith is now in Raleigh, N. C., preaching at revival meetings in the Edenton Street Methodist Church. He will return to conduct the Thursday night prayer meeting in Mount Vernon Church. The Rev. James Shera Montgomery, chaplain for the House of Representatives, will teach the A. B. Pugh class Sunday morning.

Members of the Washington police department will be guests of Petworth Methodist Episcopal Church, New Hampshire avenue, at Grant Circle, tomorrow night, when the Rev. R. L. Wood, pastor, will conduct special services.

Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police, is expected to head a delegation of more than 100. Maj. Brown will speak and Policeman Henry C. Nestor will sing. Lieut. W. H. Thomas is chairman of the committee planning the service.

The pastor's sermon theme will be "The Signs of the Times." This will be the third annual police officers' service conducted in the church.

At the 11 a. m. service the pastor will talk on "The Call to Prayer." A story sermon for the children will be given on "The Lamp That Would Not Burn."

Central M. E. Church, South, Fairmont avenue, Bethesda, Md. The Rev. John H. Blakemore, pastor.

The pastor will have "Your Destination" as the subject of his sermon at the 11 a. m. service. At the evening service he will begin a new series of sermons on "The Thought of Jesus."

The members of the young peoples' organizations will have an oratorical contest at the 7:15 meeting.

Chevy Chase Methodist Church, Connecticut avenue and Shepard street. The Rev. Edward G. Latch, pastor.

The pastor will speak on "Conquering Our Fears" at the 11 a. m. service on Sunday.

At 6:45 p. m. the Young People will meet at the church, with Miss Mary Fowler as leader. The subject will be "Devotional Use of the Bible."

Roberts Memorial Free Methodist Church, Twelfth and N streets northwest. The Rev. Moses Hayden, pastor.

The Rev. J. M. Jennings will be the pastor's guest preacher at the 11 a. m. services. At the evening service the pastor will speak on "Take Heed How Ye Hear."

Francis Asbury M. E. Church, South, Sixteenth and Lamont streets northwest. Dr. E. C. Beery, pastor.

"The Kingdom's Worth" will be Dr. Beery's theme at the 11 a. m. service. His evening sermon on "Before Men," will follow an organ recital by Allen H. Watson.

Marvin Methodist Church, Independence avenue and Tenth street southwest. The Rev. Charles Carroll Burruss, pastor.

The pastor will speak on "The Second Best" at 11 a. m. services. The evening sermon on "Christ and Criminal America" will be followed by an open forum.

Foundry Methodist Episcopal Church, Sixteenth and Church streets. Dr. Frederick Brown Harris, pastor.

Dr. Harris will preach on "Wings of the Morning" at the 11 a. m. worship. Dr. Carl C. Rasmussen, pastor of Luther Place Memorial Lutheran Church, will speak at the 8 p. m. service.

Metropolitan Memorial Methodist Episcopal Church, Nebraska and New Mexico avenues. The Rev. Chesteen Smith, pastor.

"Christian or Pagan, Which?" is the pastor's subject for the 11 a. m. sermon. An illustrated lecture on Christian work in China, conducted by Dr. Wesley M. Gewehr, will feature the Young People's service at 7 p. m.

Wesley Methodist Episcopal Church, Connecticut avenue and Jocelyn street. The Rev. J. Luther Neff, pastor.

The pastor will preach on "The Authority of Jesus" at 11 a. m. He will lead the Young People's meeting at 6 p. m., when discussion will be centered on "How Shall We Think of God?"

Woodside Methodist Episcopal Church, 8814 Georgia avenue, Silver Spring, Md. The Rev. R. D. Smith, pastor.

Dr. Benjamin W. Meeks, district superintendent, will be guest preacher at the 11 a. m. service. The evening service at 8 will be featured by a missionary talk, illustrated by lantern slides. Pastor Likes His Puzzles Difficult

"The harder they are the better I like them," commented the Rev. L. L. Bowers, pausing to solve the newest crossword puzzle. Puzzles and indoor tennis are hobbies for this pastor, who presides over the Fifteenth Street Christian Church congregation. The Rev. Mr. Bowers began his first pastorate with this church 20 years ago, when its 125 members worshipped in a chapel at Fifteenth and D streets southeast. He returned three years ago, the congregation meanwhile having grown to 700 members, who now worship in an edifice at Fifteenth street and Kentucky avenue. This is the tenth of a series of informal pictures of local ministers.

What Religion Means to Me

By Joy Elmer Morgan,

Editor, the Journal of the National Education Association.

Mr. Morgan contributes the following article to The Post's series of informal discussions on the everday benefits derived from religion.

The world is now passing through one of its great periods of transition. Confusion is everywhere and even the wisest men disagree on the most fundamental things of life.

There are three points of view which I have found helpful in dealing with the problems of religion.

First, the historical point of view, the study of religious ideas and institutions, gives perspective. It helps one to see beneath the superficial forms to the underlying ideals and motives of mankind. It gives one an appreciation of the tremendous part which religion and religious institutions have played in the history of the race.

Function of Religion.

A second point of view that I have found helpful is to look at religion from the point of view of function—to look into the lives of people of different communities, nationalities, faiths, and races, and to select the things which religion actually does in practice. A list of functions of religion and the church includes such points as the following:

(1) To give m[illegible] sense of values—[illegible] seek and to find truth, goodness, and beauty.

(2) To give the individual an opportunity for loyalties and service which will lift him above the petty trivialities and monotonies of life to something higher and nobler than himself.

(3) To sustain mankind in times of weakness and disaster when other sources of comfort and control have broken down.

(4) To give an opportunity through the organized church for the practice of worship as a fine art in a socialized setting which will preserve and perfect the varous rites and ceremonies.

(5) To dignity and beautify life by performing the ceremonies associated with its more significant events such as marriage, christening, death and burial.

(6) To give an opportunity for meditation, a place for the mystical element in human nature which seeks through meditation to achieve a consciousness of the unity of all creation.

(7) To afford an atmosphere for neighborhood social life and the formation of friendships under the most wholesome conditions.

(8) To serve as a rallying point for the application of the highest ethical principles in social idealism and reform.

(9) To arouse and quicken the faith of mankind as a fortification against the uncertainties and difficultes of the indvdual life.

(10) To dramatize and personalize the religious spirit in lives which inspire imitation.

Affects Daily Life.

A third approach which I have found helpful has been to survey the religious experiences of my own life which have stood out with sufficient force to make an impression and to be remembered.

There are two phases of my personal religious experience which have meant a good deal. The first is the conviction that religion should make a difference in the spirit of one's daily life and work.

A second phase of my personal experience is the realization that religious insight requires constant study and the sense of intellectual freedom.

'Optical Slaves' Is Topic At Unitarian Church

"Optical Slaves" is the subject the Rev. Ulysses G. B. Pierce, D. D., will discuss before his congregation in All Souls' Church, Unitarian, at Sixteenth and Harvard streets, at 11 a. m. tomorrow.

"Great Expectations" will be the subject of the motion picture hour at 7:30 p. m. A program of Bach music will be presented at 5 p. m. in the church.

Mission Society Plans Tea.

The Woman's Missionary Society of the First M. E. Church of Chevy Chase, Md., will meet for an annual Lenten tea from 3 to 5 p. m. March 31, at the home of Mrs. E. B. Adams, 103 Leland street, Chevy Chase.

"Matter" Is Topic For Scientists

Subject Is Selected for Churches of Christ.

"Matter" is the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, tomorrow. The golden text is from Habakkuk 2:19, "Woe unto him that saith to the wood, Awake; to the dumb stone, Arise, it shall teach! Behold, it is laid over the gold and silver, and there is no breath at all in the midst of it."

Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "That which is born of the flesh; and that which is born of the Spirit is spirit." (John 3:6.)

The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Divine Mind is the only cause or principle of existence. Cause does not exist in matter, in mortal mind, or in physical forms."

Crash Survivor Church Guest

R. W. Hambrook, one of the four men rescued from a plane grounded in the Adirondack Mountains last winter, will be the guest speaker at the Potomac Heights Community Church at Cathedral avenue and Conduit road on Sunday.

Mr. Hambrook, who is a special agent of the U. S. Office of Education, will speak at 8 p. m. on "Rescuing Each Other." Mr. Hambrook was found by searching parties after he and his companions had been marooned on a snow-covered mountainside for several days.

The Rev. O. J. Randall, pastor of the church, will speak at the 11 a. m. service on "Come and See." Mrs. Hans Sorenson will lead the 7 p. m. Christian Endeavor meeting, at which members will discuss "Why Join the Church?"

Lectures on Christian Science.

A lecture on "Christian Science: The Science and Art of Spiritual Living" was delivered last night in Fourth Church of Christ, Scientist, by William E. Brown, C. S. B., of Los Angeles, Calif. Mr. Brown is a member of the board of lectureship of the Mother Church, the First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

Righteousness Is Topic.

"Righteous Men Rejoice" will be the subject of a sermon by the Rev. George W. Raines at 3:30 p. m. tomorrow in the Volunteers of America mission at 471 Pennsylvania avenue northwest. Capt. Paul Kelly will direct the musical program.

BEYOND THE HORIZON . . . WAR?

From an etching by William Strang. Courtesy of Kennedy & Co.

●LIKE A MADMAN plunging into a flaming building, Europe again is engaged in a frenzied armaments race. Adolf Hitler, defying the Versailles Treaty, has become a hero in his own land and a threat to the peace of other nations. Soviet Russia continues to swell her Red Army, already a million strong. Austria, Hungary, France, England . . . all Europe seems to be rushing headlong into a repetition of the Blunder of 1914.

IS HITLER planning a war of aggression? Will he march on France—or on Soviet Russia? Is the Treaty of Versailles a mere scrap of paper? What is the position of the League of Nations? And what part would the United States of America play in the drama of death and destruction, if war should break out?

THESE QUESTIONS, and others of importance to every thinking citizen, will be authoritatively answered by Leonid I. Strakhovsky in an article in tomorrow's Sunday Post. Be sure to see it . . . Special Articles Section.

Clever Garb Will Feature Press Party

Newspaperwomen's First Ball Scheduled Week Hence at Willard.

Stage, Radio Celebrities Lend Assistance to Benefit Affair.

By Evelyn Peyton Gordon.

A week from tonight the Newspaper Women's Club is giving its costume ball in the Willard ballroom and at dinners, teas, receptions and cocktail parties the subject most discussed is "What are you wearing to the press women's ball?"

The other day at Mrs. Curtis' Club, Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth was having measurements taken for a headdress, one featuring the Saturday Evening Post, the weekly to which she contributes occasionally. The Cabinet wives, who are associate members of the club, are puzzling over costumes, and inquiries are pouring into headquarters requesting ideas.

Large firms and small firms, art schools, printers and decorators are all contributing to make the ball a success, thereby boosting the heating plant fund of the Children's Hospital and the club's own fellowship fund. Most of the time the newspaperwomen stay in the background, but this, their first ball, has them planning entertainment features, programs, costumes, lighting and supper long after working hours are over. For it is going to be a brilliant ball with Mrs. Roosevelt occupying the center box and everyone in Washington's politico-social life subscribing.

Bishop Contributes.

The Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington, has sent in his contribution, wishing the newspaperwomen great success. Members of the Diplomatic Corps are among the subscribers, and even in the cloakrooms on Capitol Hill there is much discussion about the forthcoming event.

Prominent newspapermen are members of the floor committee, with Mr. Newbold Noyes in charge, but so far they've put their collective foot down on costumes of any description. Stage and radio stars, well-known singers and dancers—all are contributing their services for the occasion. And there will be a fashion parade, gypsy fortune tellers, astrologists, and best of all, dance music by one of the town's most popular orchestras.

Additional boxholders and subscribers for the ball include the Minister of Denmark and Mme. Wadsted, the Minister of Austria and Mme. Prochnik, the Minister of Canada and Mrs. Herridge, the Minister of Siam and Princess Damras, Senator Arthur Capper, Senator and Mrs. Arthur H. Vandenberg, Senator and Mrs. Key Pittman, Senator and Mrs. James Couzens, Representative Ralph O. Brewster, the Assistant Secretary of State and Mrs. Wilbur J. Carr, the former Ambassador to Spain and Mrs. Irwin B. Laughlin, former Representative and Mrs. Thomas W. Phillips, jr., former Representative and Mrs. Frank W. Mondell, Gen. and Mrs. Louis Little, Mr. Theodore W. Noyes, Mr. and Mrs. F. Mott Gunther, Mrs. Jacob Leander Loose, Mrs. Eleanor Patterson, Mr. Frank Morse, Mr. and Mrs. Reginald S. Huidekoper, Dr. and Mrs. James Alexander Lyon, Mrs. James W. Helm, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Parsons Erwin, Mrs. Gibson Fahnestock, Mr. and Mrs. Victor Kauffmann, and Mr. and Mrs. Edward A. Harriman.

Galli-Campi to Sing.

Galli-Campi, coloratura soprano, is coming from New York to sing a group of songs. Stars from "Life Begins at 8:40," Lasar Galpern, Russian dancer and organizer of the Children's Theater of New York, and other artists will contribute to the program. Pupils of the Felix Mahoney Art School, Abbott's and Cora Kimberley are getting out posters advertising the ball, and Mr. Beverley H. Harris, who did all the lighting effects for the Bal Boheme, will have charge of the lighting. Fifty of the town's prettiest girls, all in colorful costumes, will sell programs. And, as a "side" attraction, there will be a cocktail room where drinks will be served during the evening.

Ned Brunson Harris, chairman of the ball committee, has assisting her Mrs. Homer S. Cummings, Mrs. Peter Goelet Gerry, Representative Edith Nourse Rogers, Representative Isabella Greenway and Mrs. Eliphalet Andrews, associate members of the club; Mrs. Kate Scott Brooks, Miss Roberta W. Bradshaw, Mrs. Mary MacCracken Jones, Mrs. Malvina Lindsay, Miss Flora MacDonald, Miss Katherine McKeiver, Mrs. Marie Manning Gasch, Mrs. Newton Brewer, Mrs. Robert Crawford Milliken and Mrs. Sarah Bowerman.

Mrs. Greenway Marks Birthday At Capital Home

Infant Grandchild Is Honor Guest of Representative From Arizona.

By the Associated Press.

With her one infant grandchild as honor guest, Representative Isabella Greenway, of Arizona, celebrated her forty-ninth birthday anniversary yesterday in her charming home close to the British embassy.

The real party was put off until today, when the baby's father, Mr. Charles Breasted, of Chicago, will arrive to take his wife and son back home. The baby, born shortly after Congress opened, has not been named yet, but he has already been received at the British Embassy by Mrs. Greenway's close friend, Lady Isabella Lindsay.

The grandchild opens the latest chapter in a most colorful 49 years.

Not long ago, Mrs. Greenway, who tells any story well, was inveigled into reminiscing on her own life—and she told this true tale about the start of it:

"I was born in an old farmhouse, now 102 years old, in Boone County, Ky.—and the same little bed on which I was born is still standing in the same little room.

"This farmhouse was at the foot of the hill, the top of which is crowned by the burial place of five generations of my family. In one corner, under the evergreens, are the unnamed graves of the family slaves. One of them had been a prince in Africa.

"In the house today there hang on pegs in the closet the little, old-fashioned silk gowns of three generations ago, worn by my great-aunt, Susan Dinsmore, and hung there by her 73 years ago. They have never been lifted from their pegs.

"In its parlor is an old piano, tuned the last time by a traveling tuner who came through the year that I was born. It still gives out the best music I have ever heard."

Style Suggestions From Film Capital

By the Associated Press.

Hollywood.—New leaves for Eve—straight from Hollywood's fashion garden:

Take that black dress classic (which every smart woman should have some place in her wardrobe) and make it spring, 1935, by tying a wide pierrot ruff of snowy white accordion pleated silk voile about its neck.

Dolores Del Rio did this with a frock of black ripple crepe, but along lines of severe simplicity, donned a soldier boy cap and a stunning coat of black broadtail, and drew virtually all the attention when she appeared at luncheon in a smart Beverly Hills restaurant.

Since the costume edict declares "every Jill must have a jacket this season," be sure that that new spring ensemble boasts a clever coat. Many of the smartest ones match the dress in fabric, in color, or in both, and are contrasted by a lining or facing in a contrasting color.

At this same luncheon Sally Eilers wore a sheer twill ensemble in navy, its coat lined in taffeta with quilted taffeta bandings matching the dress' regency collar.

Be sure that there's lots of lace woven into the pattern of your spring and summer garments. Even Garbo is going in for the frothiest, fussiest, most feminine clothes of her career in her next picture, declares Adrian, famed studio designer.

He's made a taxi coat of this webby fabric. Its finger-tip flared coat has long raglan sleeves, flaring into a bell at the bottom, and a flattering stand-up collar.

Son and Granddaughter Guests of K. B. Conger

A "three generation" luncheon was given out at The Little Tea House yesterday by Mr. K. B. Conger, of Irvington, N. Y., his guests being his son, Mr. K. B. Jesica Lee Recites Today Before Club

Congressional Group to Hear Artist's Sketches.

The Congressional Club will present Jesica Lee, in a group of "original character sketches" at the regular tea today. The artist appeared at the White House in a group of sketches last January.

Members presiding in the dining room will be assisted by Miss Sarah Ghe Corey and Miss Jeroldene Patterson, new members of the club.

The associate members of the Congressional Club will give their regular bridge tea at the club from 2 to 5 p. m. tomorrow. These teas are given the fourth Saturday of each month. Tomorrow's tea will be a "friends party."

Spring Festival To Raise G. W. Hospital Funds

Plans for Party April 4 Include Fashion Show; Tea to Be Served.

Mrs. Gilbert Grosvenor, president of the Woman's Board of the George Washington University Hospital, is chairman of patronesses for the spring festival and card party for the benefit of the hospital to be held April 4 at Chevy Chase School under the general chairmanship of Mrs. Frederic E. Farrington.

Mrs. Charles W. Richardson, Mrs. Joshua Evans, Mrs. Lloyd Wilson, Mrs. William C. Borden, and Mrs. William J. Mallory are members of Mrs. Grosvenor's committee. The festival will include a fashion show under the direction of Mrs. Cabot Stevens, attractive displays of bags, white elephant articles, cakes and candies, and a fortune-telling booth withal. Tea will be served by a committe headed by Mrs. Eugene Byrnes.

The "bags" committee promises an attractive table, with Mrs. William H. Sholes as chairman, assisted by Mrs. Charles E. Mann, Mrs. F. Dickinson Letts, Mrs. Frederick Coville, Mrs. Augustus Simpson, Mrs. George Jenkins, Mrs. Norman Smith, Mrs. L. S. Fristoe, Mrs. Edward Smith, Mrs. H. P. Hevenor, and Mrs. Frank Wolff.

Operatic Night Set Wednesday

Four Capital Artists to Present Excerpts From Three Works.

The Minister of Venezuela and Senora de Arcaya, the Minister of El Salvador and Senora de Castro and the Minister of Panama and Mme. Alfaro will attend an operatic evening at the Washington Club Wednesday at 8:45 o'clock.

The program is sponsored by the International Art Forum, of which Amelia Conti is founder-president and presents four well known Washington artists in a group of excerpts from three popular operas, "Pagliacci," "Carmen" and "Rigoletto." The singers are Regina Vicarino, soprano; Anne Yago McGuffey, contralto; Justin Lawrie, tenor, and Harlan Randall, barytone.

Miss Marjorie Lowe, of Gunston Hall School, is in charge of arrangement of the program and attendance.

J. S. McGroarty Will Be Sponsor For Cradle Song

Serra's Drama of Spanish Convent Life to Be Presented Here.

Representative John Steven McGroarty, of California, has accepted the invitation of the Blackfriars Guild to act as sponsor of its forthcoming production of Gregorio Martinez Serra's "Cradle Song," which will be presented April 8, 9 and 11 at St. Paul's Auditorium, 1421 V street northwest.

Mr. McGroarty brings to his association with the guild's production of Serra's classic drama of Spanish convent life a wealth of literary, dramatic and poetic background. As poet, playwright, author, lawyer and newspaper man, he was named poet laureate of California by the Legislature of that State in 1933 after he had long been regarded as the bard of the State's colorful history. As an authority on the mission history of early California, he drew upon his fund of knowledge of the State's beginnings and wrote the Mission Play of California, which is produced annually in a specially constructed theater just outside Los Angeles at the San Gabriel Mission. The Spanish and religious atmosphere of "Cradle Song" causes Mr. McGroarty's sponsorship of the guild production to be something more than a formality.

Mr. McGroarty will also give a lecture on the "Mission Drama of California" at the National Catholic School of Social Service on Sunday.

The guild production is under the direction of Miss Lucy Ann Rogers. Two special performances will be given before the public presentations. The first will be for the Catholic clergy, March 31, and the second will be for the parochial school children, April 7.

World Peace Leading Topic At Convention

The National Federation of Temple Sisterhoods in Session Here.

INTERNATIONAL PEACE and birth control are among the topics being considered at the eleventh biennial assembly of the National Federation of Temple Sisterhoods which opened yesterday at the Willard Hotel. Discussion of these subjects is part of a program to interest the Temple sisterhoods in national and international problems.

Mrs. Morris Cafritz, president of the local sisterhood chapter, is active in promoting action on the part of the sisterhood to branch out and become an influential feminine organization.

"I believe," Mrs. Cafritz said, "that besides carrying on the many familiar and sacred duties set aside by our constitution, such as cooperating in the synagogue, aiding the blind by our Brailled Library of Judaica or furthering parent-teacher activities, we should live up to this new era now before us. We must accept the challenge to our sex and generation. The time has come for us to be, not merely a ladies' auxiliary, but a semipolitical organization."

So closely connected with peace is birth control that Mrs. Cafritz hopes the Sisterhood Federation will follow the example of its sister organization, the Council of Jewish Women, and adopt a resolution in behalf of birth control.

To Mrs. Cafritz, birth control is tied up with the cause of peace because back of all wars is the desire for further territory to care for the overpopulation of the mother country.

"Peace is the Jewish ideal," Mrs. Cafritz said. "The Jewish women of this country who know their Isaiah and Jeremiah must realize that without the restriction of population, peace can not be attained. Speaking some time ago to Lion Feuchtwanger, author of 'Power' and many other famous books, the subject of peace came up, and he contended it is a question up to the women of the world to solve."

Mrs. Cafritz has no patience with the philosophy of those who throw up their hands in despair and say "What can we do, we who, after all, are only women?"

"The 'only women' part is a fallacy," she said. "Those days are over. It is true only three generations have passed since we escaped the yoke of not only prejudice but nigh on slavery, but we have made excellent use of the power that has been placed in our hands, and we will continue to do so.

"We women have no traditional past. All our vision is directed toward the future."

A luncheon will be given in honor of the executive board of the Federation of Sisterhoods today at the Willard. The Washington section of the National Council of Jewish Women will be hostess to the board members.

The sisterhoods will join the union and the brotherhoods at the formal opening and reception of the thirty-fourth council of the union tonight; tomorrow night at a symposium on "Judaism and American Ideals," and on Monday night at the council's banquet.

The assembly will close with the elections Tuesday. Mrs. Samuel Kubie, of New York, will deliver the benediction.

Pen League Recital.

The local branch, League of American Pen Women, will present Ruth Sherman Jones, of the Peabody Conservatory of Music, in a recital at 8:30 o'clock tonight at the league's studio, 1120 Vermont avenue northwest.

In the receiving line with the president, Dr. Frances Moon Butts, and the artist and her sister will be Representative and Mrs. Louis Leon Ludlow, Mrs. Emil Hurja, Mrs. Azalea Green Badgley, Lieut. Col. and Mrs. Dawson Olmstead, Mrs. Helen Ray Hagner, Commander and Mrs. R. R. Lukens, Mrs. Agnes Giles Newman, Miss Clara Manderscheid, Mrs. Inez Sheldon Tyler and Mrs. Ernest Wiggins.

Relief Corps Reception.

The Burnside Woman's Relief Corps, auxiliary to the Grand Army of the Republic, will hold a reception in honor of the department president and staff from 8 to 10 o'clock tonight at the home of Mrs. Rosalie McKee Shelton, 2936 Porter street. All members are invited to attend.

This BUSINESS of LIVING

Judge Persons by What They Are, Not What They Seem, Reader Urges.

By Mary Haworth.

DEAR MISS HAWORTH: I find your column to be one of the reasons why I never wish to miss a single issue of The Washington Post.

Your reply to "Conservative" in Monday's paper appealed to me as typical of the fairness with which you consider every problem presented. It seemed to me that it must be accepted by everyone as a challenge to revise their sense of values and cease to discount evidences of real character and sterling worth, while attaching undue importance to polished manners and purely superficial evidences of training in social arts.

* * * *

I liked your attitude. I noticed particularly how careful you were to define the meaning of the word "snob" before applying its implications to the reactions of "Conservative" to the manners of her friend.

* * * *

I find that the people most worth knowing, those who contribute most to the real joy of inhabiting this globe as social beings, enjoy persons for what they really are, rather than for what they seem to be. Polished manners may be likened to an attractive wrapping which calls attention to the package. But if the contents do not measure up to that promise, the wrapping has little value.

* * * *

Very plain manners may signify that more attention has been given to fostering such attributes of character as kindliness, honesty, purity of thought—real character, in short. Almost anyone, by imitation, can acquire in a very short time what are known as "the social graces," but it takes a lifetime of right living to develop real character.

* * * *

Again I like your way of viewing human problems. Very truly yours,

QUIET OBSERVER.

Truth in Nutshell.

DEAR QUIET OBSERVER: Thank you for your heartening praise of the column. In your apt simile likening character to the contents and manners to the wrapping of a package you have summed up in a nutshell the intrinsic relationship and relative importance of the two.

* * * *

However, the detached observer can not deny the tremendous value of poised and graceful deportment. In the grab-bag of human competition, both social and economic, the package done up in attractive wrappings is sure to excite the most spirited bidding. But it depends upon the nature of the contents whether the presumable prize is cherished and kept, or discarded altogether after more leisurely inspection.

M. H.

Aside to Correspondent.

DEAR WHAT-SHALL-I-DO: Rationalization of fiction writers and your own belief to the contrary, your predicament is rooted in a subconscious desire to evade adult responsibility and is not at all a congenitally endowed vagary of Nature. Since it is both dangerous and futile to flounder along, as you have been doing, in the quicksands of half-baked, pseudo-scientific self-analysis, I suggest you take your problem to the finest psychiatrist you can find.

* * * *

Perhaps the Washington Life Adjustment Center, 1410 Columbia road, of which Miss Beulah E. Smith is director, can give you the help you need. The director's office hours are from 1:30 to 4:30 p. m. from Monday to Friday, and clinics are conducted Monday evenings at 7:30. Problems are treated with strictest privacy, and on the staff of this institute of mental hygiene are leading psychiatrists, neurologists, psychologists and psychiatric social workers.

M. H.

HOW to KEEP WELL

By Dr. Irving S. Cutter.

Arthritis—A Summary of Treatment.

THE arthritis problem is always with us. In fact, more of the letters received from readers of this column deal with arthritis than with any other single disease. The importance of focal infection has been pointed out from time to time, and most physicians appreciate keenly the necessity of removing infected teeth and tonsils. The obliteration of a focus of infection is sometimes followed by spectacular results, but, unfortunately, no improvement may result if the infection has localized in other parts of the body or if the diseased tonsils are removed unskillfully.

Vaccines made from cultures of bacteria taken from joints, teeth, and other localities have been prepared, and yet vaccine therapy in chronic arthritis remains debatable ground. Many of our ablest clinical observers feel that vaccines are useless. On the other hand Wetherby and Clawson have reported improvement in 75 per cent of their cases, particularly when the vaccine is given directly into the circulation.

During recent years sulphur has been used, particularly in Europe, and one writer reports recoveries in three-fourths of the cases treated. It is explained that the infection causing arthritis uses up the sulphur reserves of the body, and hence supplying sulphur with the food is indicated.

Salts of gold, at first employed in the treatment of tuberculosis, are now being used in arthritis, chiefly in England and France. Although some reports are favorable, other authorities note that severe reactions occasionally follow the injections.

There is not much new relative to diet other than the generally accepted belief that carbohydrates should not be used to excess; in fact, a reduction in amount is advised. The vitamins should be high and hence green vegetables and fruits should be employed in great profusion.

If pain is severe, physical therapy offers some relief. Heat and rest followed by massage as soon as the inflammation has subsided are helpful.

We may as well admit that the arthritis problem has not been solved. Fundamentally arthritis upsets body functions to such a degree that numerous measures will be required for their restoration.

Most physicians recognize that arthritis is not a local disease, but a disease of the entire body. Anemia must be combatted, as well as loss of weight, and hence an excessive amount of rest must be insisted upon. In other words, the general plan of treatment seeks to build the normal resistance of the body. Recovery proceeds more rapidly in a warm, dry climate.

New York Conference Next Week Seeks Answer To Employment Problems of Career Women

MRS. CASPAR WHITNEY is chairman of the New York committee, in charge of arrangements for the first national conference, sponsored by the Institute of Women's Professional Relations. The conference will focus attention on the problems facing women seeking employment today.

MRS. FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT (right) heads the list of those who will take an active part in the Conference on Women's Work and Women's Stake in Public Affairs, to be held at the Astor Hotel, in New York, for three days beginning March 28.

DR. LEONARD D. WHITE will talk on Government positions for women.

MR. JOHN IHLDER will conduct a round-table discussion on housing problems.

MISS AMELIA EARHART is a director of the Institute of Women's Professional Relations.

Mrs. Catherine F. Shouse, Director of Professional Institute, Sees Need for Coordinating College and Business Fields.

By Hope Ridings Miller.

THE OCCUPATIONAL panorama is constantly changing. Positions open to women a year ago are closed today, while developments of new industries have created still other occupations.

What jobs are open to women today? What qualifications do they demand? And what, in turn, does the current job-seeker have to offer?

In an effort to provide answers to these questions the Institute of Professional Relations has planned a "Conference on Women's Work and Women's Stake in Public Affairs" in New York City for three days, beginning Thursday, March 28.

Functioning as a sort of coordinator between the college and business worlds, the conference will focus attention on demands of available jobs, point out overcrowded lines of employment and show ways in which educational programs can be more closely related to employment problems that face college graduates.

Student of Employment.

Mrs. Catherine Filene Shouse, chairman of the board of directors of the institute, yesterday told of the aims of the conference. An authority on occupational opportunities and compiler of two books on "Careers for Women," Mrs. Shouse has been interested in the employment situation as it affects women since her undergraduate days at Wheaton College. As a result of her research along this line, she is convinced that since the supply and demand in jobs vary each year, women could find employment more easily if they could keep in touch with the changing occupational situation.

"Supply and demand are largely influenced by fluctuating economic conditions and by scientific inventions," said Mrs. Shouse. "Each new invention, each new development in the business world either does away with an old job or creates a new one. If college women can keep posted on these, they can slant their preparation accordingly. The time has come when wise persons prepare themselves for a definite line of work long before they finish college.

"The time has passed when there were only two niches for women seeking positions. Fifteen years ago girls finishing college drifted either into welfare work or teaching. Now women are competently filling positions in countless lines of employment."

Cites Business Opportunities.

Mrs. Shouse also pointed out that many women have been more successful in the business world as a result of preparing themselves for positions that are peculiarly suited to women's aptitudes and women's qualifications, such as jobs created by the production of commodities pertaining to the home.

"The conference will show which types of employment call for feminine qualifications," Mrs. Shouse continued. "It should, therefore, prove of interest and benefit to college students, preparatory and high school seniors, deans and faculty members who are seeking to answer 'What comes after graduation for the average girl?'"

Mrs. Shouse said the conference also is designed to give information to public spirited men and women who desire to help young women.

"This should prove of as much concern to employers as to the job-seekers," she said, "because adapting the square hole to the round peg is costly. Executives taking part in the conference will have the opportunity to explain their requirements to personnel officials, deans of colleges and representative students."

The conference is the latest project of the institute which has been established six years. The research carried on by this organization and the resulting publications serve as a vocational guide for women. Activities of the institute were first carried on from the North Caroline College for Women and since September, from the present headquarters at Connecticut College. There are, also, three other offices of the organization—in Washington, New York and Greensboro, N. C.

Feminism's Clearing House.

Recognizing that women's problems are community problems, and in turn world problems, the institute aims to be a national clearing house for information on occupational opportunities for women in America. It would seem that a conference sponsored by such an organization would be especially valuable at this time when women are having an increasingly difficult time in finding employment.

The conference will be divided into three sections, the first designed for college students and recent graduates; the second, for deans and personnel officials, and the third for secondary and junior college students. The second will be open to the public.

The board of directors of the institute is composed of Mrs. Shouse, chairman; Mrs. Cleveland E. Dodge, Miss Amelia Earhart, Dr. Charles R. Mann, Mrs. George Sloane, Mrs. Caspar Whitney, and Mrs. Chase Going Woodhouse (managing director).

Among Washington residents whose names appear on the list of sponsors for the conference are Mrs. Franklin Delano Roosevelt, Miss Mary Anderson, Mrs. Caroline O'Day, Frances Perkins, Miss Josephine Roche, and Dr. Zook. Mrs. Roosevelt will take an active part in the conference, as will Senator Robert F. Wagner, Dr. John Studebaker, Miss Bess Goodykoontz, Mr. William H. Stead, Dr. Louise Stanley, Mr. Boris Shiskin, Dr. Leonard White, Mrs. Florence Brewer Boeckel, Mr. John Ihlder, Maj. Julia Stimson, Miss Anna O'Neill.

Among the leaders and co-leaders of round tables at the conference will be Miss Mary Lewis, vice president, Best's; Miss Dorothy Shaver, Lord and Taylor; Miss Margaret Fishback, Macy's; Elizabeth Hawes, designer; Miss Katerine Fisher, director of the "Good Housekeeping" Institute; Charles E. Pynchon, general manager, Federal Housing Corporation; Coleman Woodbury, National Association of Housing Officials; Miss Ethel Barrymore, Miss Eva Le Gallienne, Miss Olga Samaroff, Mrs. Helen Damrosch Tee-Van, New York Zoological Society; Miss Margaret Bourke-White, famous photographer; John Royal, of the National Broadcasting Co., and Dr. William R. Russell, dean of Teachers College, Columbia University.

Educator Sees Less Sentiment In Woman Juror

Urging the passage of a bill to permit women to serve on juries in New York State, Dean Gildersleeve said:

"The presence of women on juries would, I think, result in more evenhanded justice to women. Decisions on cases involving women would be made on less sentimental grounds than is often the case at present. Men jurors, are of course, more likely to be swayed by sentimental feelings in cases involving women. Indeed, on the whole, I think men are more sentimental than women.

"The verdict in the Hauptmann case shows that the presence of a woman on a jury does not make impossible a verdict involving capital punishment."

Dean Gildersleeve pointed out that a larger proportion of educated women had time to give to jury duty than did men, and that the presence of women on juries would improve their quality.

"If women are included," she said, "the juries will be a better cross section of the community and reflect more fairly the point of view of the whole body of citizens."

The bill giving women jury duty is urged by the New York League of Women Voters and other civic organizations.

Chinese Women Waging Battle On Harsh Laws

WOMEN of China, 200,000,000 of them, are fighting the harsh laws recently instituted by mandarins in all the big cities.

According to the new laws, Chinese women are not permitted to use cosmetics, dance with men, walk level with their husbands on the sidewalk, accompany their husbands to restaurants, wear sleeveless frocks, bare their legs, smoke, or work as waitresses.

Feminine organizations fighting this campaign to reduce women to virtual slavery believe Marshal Chiang Kai-shek is to blame for the stringent rules. Chiang, on the other hand, says it's all the fault of the mandarins; they took him too seriously when he said it would be a good thing if Chinese women took their Oriental culture a little more seriously.

He has made it plain that he believes woman's place is in the home. His own wife, a Vassar graduate, acts as his aid de camp.

What Today Means

"Aries."

IF MARCH 23 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 12:30 to 2:30 p. m. from 4:30 to 6:30 p. m. and from 9:30 to 11:30 p. m. The danger periods are from 10:30 a. m. to 12:30 p. m., from 2:30 to 4:30 p. m. and from 6:30 to 8:30 p. m.

There is a strong probability that you will meet someone for the first time on this date, and that a faux pas will only be avoided if you keep your wits alert.

If a woman and March 23 is your birthday, be very careful not to form habits tending toward indolence of self-indulgence. If you will force yourself to cultivate the habit of being punctual for engagements, regardless of whether or not they are of a business or social nature, your personal interests will be benefited greatly. Self-control is another thing you need to practice, if happiness is your goal, for quickness of temper always is the greatest obstacle in the path leading to it. Office, educational, and secretarial work, may provide satisfactory employment.

If a man, and March 23 is your natal day, the limitations to the amount of success you make, may be predicated upon the amount of system as well as energy, you employ in trying to advance your earning power. Law, educational work, writing, politics, as well as mechanical construction, offer unlimited opportunities to a man of your intellectual attainments.

CHILD CHATS

By Alice Fox Pitts.

THERE'S a creative urge within all of us, and nowhere is it more evident than in the delight a child takes in making something. If he has a bent for carpentry, and you buy him lumber and tools to build a playhouse, don't be disturbed if, as soon as it is completed, he tears it down. The fun was in building it. When it is finished it has little lure. It will be only a short time before he uses the lumber again to make a dog kennel or a wagon.

The same lure makes modeling clay, blocks, logs to build log cabins and similar playthings more entertaining than mechanical toys. Keep this in mind when buying gifts for him; constructive toys and raw materials with which he can create his own entertainment are highly desirable.

This does not mean that he is to be denied the joy of owning a tricycle or a scooter or a wagon. Toys of this type provide a thrill all their own, but it is wise to provide the other kind, too, to achieve the maximum in entertainment value for the money expended.

From Declarer to Dummy.

Defensive players naturally always try to make declarer's task as difficult as possible, and an unimportant discard may be made to mislead the declarer. The intelligent dummy player must continually be on the alert for false cards by the opponents.

There are times when the drop of high cards by the defense must be believed. On the hand below South could see no point to West false-carding on the opening lead. Consequently, he decided to play the West player for having a singleton in that suit and later realized the only way he could fulfill his ambitious slam contract was to make dummy declarer, to ruff dummy's losers in his own hand instead of ruffing losers in dummy.

South, Dealer.

	♠ K Q 7 ♡ A Q 6 2 ◇ Q 9 8 6 ♣ A K
♠ 9 4 3 ♡ J 8 5 ◇ 7 ♣ Q 9 7 4 3 2	N W E S	♠ J 10 6 2 ♡ K 10 9 7 4 ◇ 4 3 2 ♣ 10
	♠ A 8 5 ♡ 2 ◇ A K J 10 5 ♣ J 8 6 5

South	West	North	East
1◇	Pass	2♡	Pass
3◇	Pass	4♣ (1)	Pass
4◇	Pass	4NT	Pass
5NT	Pass	7◇ (2)	Pass
Pass	Pass

1—North wants to find out whether South has the Ace of diamonds and the Ace of spades. He is arranging the bidding so he can later bid Four Notrump.

2—South's diamond rebids have convinced North, the suit is solid. The Five Notrump bid also shows the Ace of spades. At worst the Grand Slam may depend upon a heart finesse, but favorable distribution may furnish an even better chance.

The Play.

West, in desperation, opened from his longest suit—a low club—hoping to give his partner a ruff. The King automatically was played from dummy and East dropped the ten. South did not know this card was a singleton, but he was aware of that possibility. If it were a singleton, any line of play which involved playing out two rounds of clubs first and then ruffing clubs in dummy would be nipped in the bud. South did lay down one round of diamonds and the drop of the seven from the West hand made him suspect a three-one divison in that suit. He suddenly perceived he could fulfill his contract without risking a ruff of the second round of clubs if only he could play two rounds of spades without a ruff.

At Trick 3 a heart was led, the Ace played from dummy, a low heart returned and ruffed by South. Dummy was entered by the spade Queen and another heart ruffed by the trump King. Dummy again entered with a spade, and dummy's last heart trumped with the diamond ten. The Jack was led and overtaken in dummy. The last trump was drawn and the declarer spread his hand, with the dummy's only low card — a spade — being taken care of by the declarer's Ace. Had South played the hand in the more normal manner and tried to ruff clubs in dummy, the contract could not have been fulfilled as East would have trumped the second club.

Women Oppose Proposed Curb On Dietitians

Organizations Arm for Fight on Bill to Aid Wheat Producing States.

By the Associated Press.

WOMEN'S organizations are arming here to fight members of Congress from wheat-raising States who are sponsoring a measure which might, the women believe, prevent Government scientists from advising housewives on health diets.

The measure lies in a brief rider to the Department of Agriculture's appropriation bill. It asks in part, and in effect, that "no part of the Department's funds be used to pay an employe who issues a statement which advocates reduced consumption of any wholesome agricultural food."

"In other words," says Dr. Kathryn McHale, general director of the American Association of University Women, "no governmental nutritionist could persuade pellagra patients to eat more fruit and vegetables and less pork and corn-pone, without violating the law. Pork and corn pone are 'wholesome' enough if you disregard the proportions in which they are eaten.

Milling Interests Blamed.

"If a nutritionist recommended that children drink more milk her advice could be construed as a violation since the capacity of the child's stomach is limited and more milk in children's stomachs would mean less of some other food.

"The amazing rider was written at the instigation of milling interests. For a long time they have protested against the Bureau of Home Economics for suggesting the housewife increase purchases of fruits and vegetables."

The rider is a good example, says Alice Edwards, executive secretary of the American Home Economics Association, of "the manner in which commercial interests are fighting for the largest possible share of the consumers' stomach."

Kansan Fights for Rider.

Representative Clifford R. Hope, of Kansas, who led the argument in the House for the rider, drew a picture of distressed wheat farmers, disturbing wheat surpluses, and then turned his fire on two publications of the Bureau of Home Economics: Circular 296 and Miscellaneous Publication 183, which discuss balanced diets.

No. 183 prints a great variety of yearly diet schedules for people of different ages, different degrees of activity and for different-sized incomes. It advises the weights of foods to be included in a year's consumption.

Hope said if everyone could live on the "liberal diet" suggested in the pamphlets the Nation would consume 280,000,000 less bushels of wheat a year than it does now. He says that wheat consumption dropped 10 per cent in this country from the five years before the war to the ten years after it.

Protection in Phrase Denied.

The rider includes a last phrase which in effect absolves any Government nutritionist who suggests a "balanced diet for food or feed purposes."

"But the exception is no protection," Dr. McHale said. "The home demonstration agent, for instance, who wants to tell a farm wife not to feed her baby sausages would have to bear the burden of proof to show that her advice was in accord with a balanced diet."

Women's club organizations represented here are organizing national support to fight it, and will demand a hearing before the Senate's Appropriation Committee.

Curves Return In Paris Modes

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, March 22.—So that "men shall be no longer condemned to live midst planed down women," Patou has brought curves back to the style spotlight, launching gowns and frocks closely molding the feminine figure and curves.

The new mode is intended for women "whose worry over their figures prevents their enjoyment of good cooking—the producer of good humor," Patou explained.

Frocks of organdie, lace net and satin were designed with very low, square decolletes, the lines fitting under the bust and curving over the hips. Many skirts were fairly full, with much embroidery and shimmering tube beads.

The outstanding color was amber yellow, which was used for evening gowns and day hats, frocks and coats.

An earlier exhibition by Lanvin was marked by extreme opulence, indicating the belief of Paris designers that the day of frugality for women shoppers is past.

To catch the eye of buyers were navy blue taffeta frocks with skirts measuring five yards at the hemline, topped with lattice work collars standing up around the chin.

Those Who Diet Afforded Help Of Restaurant

...nager, a Former Nurse, Is Glad to Aid in Food Selections.

By Ruth Anne Davis.

...HOSE who want to diet to reduce and those who want to diet to gain should be interested in a certain little restaurant where personally supervised and regulated menus are a specialty.

You've probably passed the place a hundred times and thought of it as "just another place to eat." But it's far from that. True, you can drop in and order the regular dinner and for 65 cents you won't find a better meal anywhere. But you can do more than that. You can make arrangements with the manager and he'll see to it that you get exactly the kind of food you need. She studied to be both a trained nurse and a dietician and has had years of experience at both, so you can place yourself in her hands with perfect confidence that your dinners will be carefully prepared, well balanced—and what you should have.

Traveling Clock.

Here at last is the perfect little traveling clock. When you first see it you'll vow it's a cigarette case, but when you open it you'll find yourself staring at the face of a small, smart, neat little clock.

Just think what a boon to have a clock you can pack as easily as you could a cigarette case, a clock you can carry in your pocket or purse! This one is available in either black or white enamel and is made by a widely known watch manufacturer.

45-Cent Bargain.

Forty-five cents may not seem like much money, but it will buy a lot in a local store. Just go down an see for yourself. Look in the food corner and you'll see a lovely little glass cookie jar filled to the brim with crisp cheese crackers. Both jar and contents are yours for this humble price.

Children's Kerchiefs.

The birds and the beasts are there, and so are a couple of acrobats, a bareback rider, a saw horse, a baby carriage, a sailboat and the alphabet. All these are printed on the children's handkerchiefs featured in a downtown store.

If you find them interesting—and you will!—think how a child will like them. Think what fun a tot will have counting off such a heterogeneous collection of pictures on one fair-sized hankie.

Miniature Sachets.

Those large silk-tassled sachets scented with a certain irresistible perfume have seen such a successful season that their manufacturer is now featuring miniature sachets with the same fragrance.

You'll be bound to recognize them. They're little balls covered over with silken threads, and the threads hang down in long, full tassels. Just one of these in your closet or by your dressing table will fill your room with a haunting, alluring perfume.

Stocking Bargains.

A certain well-known stocking manufacturing company has just brought out knee-length hosiery in two of its most popular lines, Queen's Lace and Myth. The Queen's lace stocking in this length sells for $1.95 a pair—and is well worth it. The top is finished with a specially styled fold-on webbing of lasting elasticity, flat and smooth.

The new Myth hose are called "hold-ups"—but don't take the name seriously. They're anything but "hold-ups" in the price range, for they cost only $1 a pair. Very little to pay for clear, shadowless, long-lasting chiffons.

You can bank on the elastic webs holding up till the last, for they had to pass durability and washability tests at Pittsburgh testing laboratories and at the American Laundry Institute before they were adopted.

Closet Cedarizer.

Cedarize your closet and make a cedar chest out of your trunk by using one little gadget known as a cedarmatic.

The cedarmatic is a little bottle filled with a certain moth-repellent fluid. It is attached to a wooden base which fits in a little metal frame. This fastens onto the baseboard of your closet or the inside of your trunk.

The fumes are so light and fragrant that they do not cling to your clothes, but they do protect them from the onslaught of the pesky little moth.

Powder and Cologne.

One of the loveliest looking and best selling items in the toilet goods department of a downtown store is a beautifully shaped, hand-painted bottle filled with a vividly-colored eau de cologne. Matching this is a small powder jar filled with a bath powder.

Both powder and cologne are available in three scents, gardenia, lavender, and amber.

Fine Bridge Prizes.

These sets make lovely and inexpensive bridge gifts although when you buy one you'll probably want to keep it. They are so exquisitely made, so artistically painted, and such a happy combination of colors that they would give a charming touch to your boudoir or bath room.

Latent Energy in Women Leads to 'It,' Says Duchess

Avoid Fatigue, Destroyer of Charm, Advises Miss Thornton.

By Frances Mangum.

PERSONAL magnetism is no longer a vague "it." Renee Thornton, in private life the Duchess Carafa D'Andria, has reduced it to such simple terms that both the woman in the bungalow apron and the siren in silks and satins may know what "it" is.

Yesterday Miss Thornton explained her theory by saying that magnetism was really concentrated energy.

"The reason so few women are magnetic," she said, "is because they scatter their energy with the result they are all 'worked out.' They fret about the house, they shop, or they play golf, or indulge in some other sport until they're literally worn to a frazzle. They dispensed with so much of their energy that there's not sufficient left to give them a spark of magnetism."

Must Ascertain Fatigue Point.

"If a woman wants to develop personal magnetism she has first of all to find her capacity for physical activities," she said. "She has to find out whether riding all morning, or working or shopping, will fatigue her. And then she must limit her activities accordingly."

She explained that she certainly didn't mean that in order to have that "certain something" you had to sit on downy cushions all day and confine your output of energy to crocheting or reading poetry.

"Why, heavens!" she said, "there are women who can swim all day and dance all night without feeling the worse for wear. But there are others who tire more easily. It's all in knowing what and how much you can do before you exhaust the energy which is necessary for magnetism."

Importance of Beauty.

Miss Thornton also pointed out that not only do very few women fail to cultivate their personal allure, but they also focus too little attention on being beautiful.

"I don't want to sound like one of those ads that say 'And you, too, can be beautiful!' but I sincerely believe that every woman in the world can lay claim to a certain amount of beauty. She just has to think about three things. First, developing an inner spirituality which shines forth in the form of intelligence, humor and romance; the second, a dignity of physique, an aristocratic carriage, and third, a clear, clean-looking skin."

Miss Thornton deplores the fact that women do not appreciate the importance of being beautiful.

"Why, if they only knew that, along with magnetism, it is their greatest power. Men adore beautiful women! They might deny it and claim to prefer unadulterated intellect, or something of the sort, but don't be fooled. A beautiful woman is a man's Waterloo every time.

"An intellectual woman can't hold a candle to her," she continued. "She might, it's true, divert a man's attention for a while, but you'll see who wins in the end!

"A woman wants her husband or lover to be strong and superior. She wants him to be dominating—providing he's sympathetic and understanding, too," Miss Thornton said.

"But a man wants a woman to be utterly feminine and beautiful," she laughed.

Mrs. Hayward Submits Prize Orange Recipe

Gingerbread Formula Wins; Many Citrus Dishes Are Received.

By Dorothea Duncan.

THAT the orange is no longer merely an aid to the dessert but has invaded every course of the dinner is evident in the orange recipes received this week in The Post contest.

A recipe for orange gingerbread, submitted by Mrs. B. M. Hayward, 2121 H street northwest, has been awarded first prize of $3. A candied stuffed orange recipe entered by Mrs. Edward M. Allen, 2145 California street, received second prize of $2, and an orange fritter recipe by Mrs. C. J. Hargis, Vienna, Va., received third prize, $1.

Honorable mention was given to the orange meringue pie recipe submitted by Mrs. Emma L. Wilkerson, 1515 Twenty-fifth street southeast, and to the steamed orange roll by Mrs. George Canalle, Winchester, Va.

Orange Gingerbread.

Warm over hot water the following:
1 cup shortening
1 cup dark molasses
1 cup brown sugar
4 teaspoons ginger
1 teaspoon nutmeg
2 teaspoons cinnamon

Add:
2 eggs, beaten
1 cup orange juice
1 teaspoon grated orange rind
½ teaspoon grated lemon rind

Add:
4 cups flour, sifted with
1 teaspoon soda

Mix well. Bake in greased and floured pan in moderate oven (325-350 degrees F.) about a half-hour. Cool. Serve plain or with whipped cream, or any butter icing to which is added the juice and grated rind of one orange in place of milk or other liquid.

Candied Stuffed Oranges.

Wipe small navel oranges and make three holes through each orange at right angles to one another, using a pencil-shaped vegetable cutter about ⅜-inch in diameter. Stuff with seedless raisins, candied cherries and pineapple, filling the center through the holes. Cover with cold water, bring to boiling point and boil gently for 20 minutes. Drain, cover with water and repeat the boiling process twice.

Drain again, cover with syrup made of two parts of sugar and one part of water and cook to 220 degrees on the sugar thermometer. Remove from fire and let stand until cold. Add ¼ cup water, again bring to boiling point and cook to 220 degrees, then again set aside to cool. Repeat until skin is easily pierced. Bring to boiling point and pack in sterilized jars.

Orange Fritters.

1 egg
½ cup milk
¼ cup sugar
1¼ cups flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1/16 teaspoon salt
Oranges

Beat egg light, add sugar and milk. Stir to smooth batter with the flour in which baking powder and salt have been sifted. Batter should be thick enough to coat the pieces of orange. Dip sections of peeled orange into the batter, fry in hot deep fat, dust with powdered sugar and serve immediately with meat course.

Orange Pie.

Sift together:
1 cupful of sugar
⅛ teaspoonful of salt
2/3 of a cupful of flour

Then add gradually two cupfuls of hot water, stirring constantly to prevent lumping. Cook over hot water until thick, then turn over the beaten yolks of two eggs. Add one tablespoonful of butter, the grated rind of half an orange and ¾ cup of orange juice. Beat until smooth and pour into a baked pie shell.

Meringue.

Beat until stiff the whites of 2 eggs and add gradually 2 tablespoonfuls of powdered sugar. Turn over the orange filling. Bake in a moderate oven about 15 minutes until the meringue is cooked through and delicately browned.

Steamed Orange Role.

2 level cups flour
2½ level teaspoons baking powder
½ level teaspoon salt
1 level tablespoon butter
⅞ cup milk
3 or 4 oranges
¾ cup sugar

Mix the flour, baking powder and salt together and sift twice. Work in the butter with the tips of the fingers and add the milk. Toss on a floured board, pat and roll out in an oblong sheet, lay oranges peeled, sliced and seeded thickly all over it. Sprinkle with sugar and a teaspoon of grated orange rind. Roll up closely, folding in the edges to keep in the syrup, put in a well-buttered pan and steam one and one-half hours. Serve with lemon sauce made as follows:

3 eggs yolk only
½ cup butter
1 cup of sugar

Mix ingredients. Add juice of two lemons and grated rind of one. Cook slowly in double-boiler. Stir till it thickens. Do not boil.

Fashion Menu for 1935.

THREE MEN AND DIANA

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

Diana Carmichael's grandmother kept a boarding house down where the town trailed out into empty lots and railway fences, and Diana suffered at being poor. But then she met Bruce Palmer, and fell in love with him, only to learn that he did not love her and was going abroad to live. Fortunately sickness proves a counterirritant to the pain in her heart. Upon her recovery she marries a movie actor, Neal Tressady, and they move to Hollywood where Neal obtains a job. He falls in love with Deidre Dean, the famous star, and they elope to New York.

THAT night Diana regaled the Rogeres and Mrs. Petri and her grandmother with an account of the movie world that kept them entranced for an hour. She finished the dishes singing, put her young arms about her grandmother more than once with an affection she never had shown before.

But after a few days her grandmother saw a change.

Letter Told All.

"Your letter today was from Neal, dearie?"

"Yes." The tone leaden; the heavy eyes Diana raised leaden.

"Neal hasn't left you, Di?"

"For Miss Deirdre Dean."

"What's he say?" her grandmother asked, stupefied.

"Oh——" The girl sighed deeply, audibly, glanced absently at her letter. "The usual thing," she said.

"But does he think for one minute—did you know—had you any idea——"

"Yes, I think I knew this was coming," Diana presently offered in a far-away voice, her forehead drawn into a frown, her eyes fixed on the bright faucet in the kitchen sink, a dozen feet away. "I knew she wanted him to go to New York with her—I knew she was in love with him," she said slowly.

She tore the letter into scraps, threw it into the stove. All that day and the next, as her grandmother spluttered and argued, reasoned, protested, threatened, she had little to say.

Ten days later Diana Tressady—she gave "Miss" before the name—had a long talk with Albert Roach, one of the managers of Rowley & Palmer's big wholesale hardware house in San Francisco.

"Married woman?"

"Yes. But I'm not living with my husband." It sounded so cheap!

"Experience?"

"Yes. In the Bayhead Hardware Store."

She was to leave her application; they would let her know. A week later she entered the sporting-goods department of Rowley & Palmer at a salary of fifty-five dollars a month.

Slowly—slowly the tides of youth and hope and courage flowed back to fill the empty spaces in her soul. She had been one year with Rowley & Palmer—two years. She knew the stock now, knew the customers; the men downstairs—Billy Moore, Billy Mayo, Irving Evelyn, even the detested Roach, often sent their own customers upstairs with special directions to be handled by Miss Tressady.

An Unusual Offer.

Diana was twenty-one, twenty-two, twenty-three. She was one of the great army of office women who moved through the world monotonously, steadily, filling omnibuses and cafeterias and streets, obeying telephone calls, office bells, noon whistles; always neat and responsive and unobtrusive; machines.

"Miss Tressady?"

"Mr. Cates."

"I've come up here about something kinder funny—good morning, Miss Torney. I've come up here about something rather funny. I don't know whether you'll want to do it or not."

"All of us, Mr. Cates, or just me?"

"Just you."

"It sounds like an offer of marriage," Diana said, smiling her own serious smile at the fat, middle-aged salesman.

To Demonstrate.

"Well, you could have that, too, if it wasn't for my wife and my two boys. But here's what I want to ask you to do, and if you don't want to do it, all you've got to do is say so. We're demonstrating the Kozikitch Kabinet this month, and what I want you to do is pose for a photograph, showing it off, see?"

"With a lot of spices and jams and flours in it?" Diana encouraged him.

"Exactly. Only—and here's the catch. We want you to be the Kozikitch Girl, see? And we want to advertise that once every day, for an hour or so, you'll be there, in the window, yourself, to sort of flourish about with it. Look, there'd be that in it for you," the salesman said. He penciled something on a piece of paper, displayed it, crumpled up the paper and threw it into the wastebasket.

A Change in Routine.

It was not much of an adventure; it was a change, anyway. The taking of the photographs up in the advertising department was rather fun, and it was amusing to see what the enlargement made of them; such a pretty, smiling young wife Diana looked, in her striped pink gingham, pointing happily to her new Kozikitch Kabinet.

Various trade magazines wanted it to reproduce, and on the much-heralded day when Diana stepped into the window, to display herself as well as the cabinet, there was quite a gathering on the sidewalk outside.

Every day, at 11 and at 3, she seriously and silently repeated the process, opening the cabinet drawers to show flour and sugar bins, shifting the spice boxes and egg beaters to and fro, turning sometimes to smile at her audience.

It had rather shaken her up, this experience, and she felt younger and happier for it. She had met men in the other departments; they had made her feel that she was young and likable.

Divorce Pending.

Diana could say to Margaret what she could say to no other human being, and Margaret, in return, would comment even upon Diana's unfortunate marriage.

"Diana, you'll never marry again?"

"Im barely divorced now. My interlocutory year isn't up."

"I know," Margaret sighed. "It seems a pity," she said, "for you to go all your life this way."

"I don't know why not. Lots of women do."

"But not——" Margaret laughed. "Not outstanding women like you."

"I thought you thought remarriage was awful, Mag."

"It would be, for me. But—maybe it wouldn't be for you."

"I have no religious scruples, if you mean that," Diana said, "I have no religion. I wish I had."

"Oh, I wish you had, Di!"

Happiness Was Hurt.

"I've nothing I ought to have—I'm nothing I ought to be," Diana summarized it bitterly. "I'm 23 and a flop. There's something broken inside me. It's all like a dream—loving Bruce—oh, loving him so, Mag!—and then marrying Neal, and loving him, too, in a different way, really being terribly fond of him and his songs, and being down there with him, where everything was so new and queer. Our little house, and waffles on Sunday, and pressing his ties for him—I thought it might go on forever. And it only lasted a few months."

"He may be breaking his neck to make good, Di, and get you back."

"I'd never go back."

"And he's never written?"

"No."

"How do you account for it?"

"I don't."

Peter Was Back.

"Well, we know this," the young wife and mother would say with her own earnestness—"we know that it will come out right, somehow. That was what an old nun I used to know used always to say to us, 'everything shall be well, and everything in all ways shall be well.'"

One evening when Diana had come across the gully in her office clothes to help Margaret put the babies to bed, Margaret Said:

"I saw an old friend of yours yesterday, Peter Platt."

"Peter Platt! No, did you? I haven't seen him for—oh, years. How does he look and what's he doing?"

"He's going to New York."

"Peter Platt is? How on earth is he going to get there?"

"He's with that Frank Cope."

"Senator Cope. The man who ran for Governor or something?"

"Ran for Lieutenant Governor, Mrs. Brock's cousin."

Invited to Dine.

"And what is Peter to him—secretary?"

"Something like that. Politics, you know."

"And is he happy?"

"Peter? You know he always was happy. The same old grinning boy that used to give us our malted milks. Only much older. His father died, you know, and I guess he has to help them out at home. He sort of suggested it."

"He was always nice," Diana said in an almost apologetic tone. "I'd like to see Peter."

The next day he telephoned her at the office. Could she and would she dine with him that night? He was going away the next day.

He sounded stiff, almost unfriendly, but Diana, following a sudden impulse, said that she would be delighted.

"If you don't mind my office clothes, Peter?"

"Why, no; not at all, of course." He was taking himself a little seriously, she thought.

Pattern No. 897.

CORRECTLY designed for the beginning-to-be-active tot, and daintily styled, too—these creepers are the perfect answer to "after dresses, what?" The little pleats in the front serve as a trimming, but they also make allowance for sprawlings and tumbles. The pleat at the center back takes care of that creeping position that can ruin a less well designed garment. The buttoned crotch anticipates baby accidents and habit training.

Sturdy cotton, fast color and preshrunk, is recommended for this pattern, for it will be washed frequently and vigorously. The pattern, guaranteed perfect in cut, and accurately sized, is available in sizes 6 months, 1 and 2 years. Complete yardage requirements are given on the pattern envelope.

Brains Needed By Housewives

Should Use Heads to Plan Arrangement of Aids in Kitchen.

BRAINS AND not brawn are required to run a kitchen today. Unless labor-saving equipment is used with intelligence it isn't a worthwhile investment, said Katherine A. Fisher, director of a housekeeping institute, at a recent meeting of homemakers in New York.

Miss Grace Pennock, associate editor of a woman's magazine, spoke at the same meeting, declaring the work area of a kitchen should be shaped like the letter U with all doors at one end of the room. She advocated placing the range against the right wall facing the sink at the base of the U-shaped area. The cabinet and refrigerator should then be placed against the left wall.

A trend away from vulgarity toward simplicity in the American home was mentioned by Emily Post, etiquette authority. She said:

"Some people have a charm and a sensitiveness toward others by which they can bring out the best in everyone they meet. These are the people possessed of the three great qualities of every lady: Serenity, sincerity and sympathy, expressed with utmost simplicity."

Contest Editor Seeks Recipes For Hot Bread

HOT BREADS are always in demand. What kind is your family's favorite? Perhaps it is the famous Southern crackling bread. Whatever it may be, enter the recipe in The Post's contest next week.

Three prizes will be awarded, $3, $2 and $1. Recipes should be sent to Dorothea Duncan, Home Economics Editor of The Washington Post. Only one from each contestant will be considered.

Type recipes if possible. If not, write them neatly in ink. Check carefully for omissions. Name and address should appear on each sheet. Recipes should be received on or before Thursday.

Filmy Frocks Create Sensation in Paris

Paris (AP).—Paris stylists went all the way back to Salome today for the newest sensation of the spring shows—dresses made entirely of lace and veils.

Ardanse launched gowns fashioned of 66 yards of filmy white and black veiling eight inches wide swirled and shirred over a slim silk foundation until the skirt was a yard and a half wide.

Mannequins clad in the creations looked like great fluffs of thistledown.

Other evening gowns were fashioned of the new hair lace, as fine as hair net, which was inspired by the spider's web. They were designed in tones of pink and black with off the shoulder decolletes topped by great lace medici ruches.

Horn of Plenty Motif.

Paris (U.P.).—The horn of plenty not only has inspired a design for a hat trim, but it has given the idea for a belt buckle which is concocted by means of cutting the horn of plenty out of a piece of paper, filling it to overflowing with myriad bits of confetti and plastering it between two rectangular pieces of mica, framed all around with navy blue leather like a picture, and attached to a strip of navy blue leather as a belt.

Irish Spiralspun Linen.

Paris (U.P.).—That grand Irish Spiralspun linen, which has thrown its hat into the Paris style ring, is getting encore after encore from the sidelines as well as the royal boxes. It dosn't wrinkle half as much as "regular" linen and comes in terribly attractive designs and colors. It makes whole outfits of itself, including hat, purse and shoes, and works up in combinations with other fabrics like black crepe romain, for instance, with all charm you could be looking for.

A Public Statement

BY L. GREIF & BRO., INC.

Our business and the jobs of 3,500 of our employes are being jeopardized by the demands and activities of 35 of their co-workers who are members of a labor union, the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America. These 35 workers, through this union, brought charges against us alleging that we have violated Section 7-A of the National Industrial Recovery Act; and the Regional Labor Board now threatens to cause the removal of our Blue Eagle and N.R.A. labels and thereby prevent us from having our case heard by a regularly constituted court of the United States. We are making this statement so that the public, our employees, and our customers may know our position in this matter.

WE have been continuously engaged in the manufacture of popularly priced men's clothing for the past seventy-five years, during which time we have endeavored to produce the best men's clothing we could at the lowest possible price to the consumer and secure a reasonable profit for ourselves. That we have been successful in these efforts is demonstrated by the fact that we now employ approximately 3,500 persons and our plants, which are located in Maryland, Pennsylvania, and Virginia, occupy about 400,000 square feet of floor space.

Since the adoption of the National Industrial Recovery Act and the Code of Fair Competition for the Men's Clothing Industry, all of our employes have been paid at least the minimum wage, and 80% of them have been receiving wages substantially in excess of that amount.

Because of the fact that we operate open shops and because of the opposition of our employes to unionization, as well as because of the unsympathetic attitude of the communities in which our plants are located toward this union and its activities, we and our employes have been, ever since the inception of the National Recovery Administration, subjected to continuous harassment, intimidation and persecution at the instance of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, whose president is a member of both the Men's Clothing Code Authority and the National Industrial Recovery Board. Not only have we had unjustifiable and untrue charges laid against us, but we have been subjected to scurrilous and defamatory printed and verbal attacks, which have been directed at destroying the morale of our workers and interfering with the conduct of our business.

For many months this union has sent organizers into the cities in which our plants are located, for the purpose of unionizing our workers. All of these efforts have been unsuccessful. For the past six months, the effort has been centered particularly on Staunton, Virginia, during which time thirty-five out of our five hundred employees in the two plants which we operate there have joined the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America. We have in no way discriminated against any of these workers, nor have we discharged any of them because of their union membership or union activities, and our plants in Staunton have been and are now open and operating.

Beginning March 5, 465 out of our 500 employees in Staunton, resenting the propaganda and efforts of the organizers who had been sent there from the headquarters of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America to organize our employees and force unionization of those shops, staged a demonstration against the 35 employees who had joined this union. They massed themselves outside of our plants, barred these 35 union-workers from entering, despite the efforts of our superintendent; and publicly declared they would not work beside them.

Complaint was made by the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America to the Regional Labor Board for the Fifth District, and its Director went to Staunton to investigate the situation. At the invitation of Mr. Irvin Greif, Vice-President of the Company, and of Mr. Leonard Weinberg, our attorney, he addressed the 465 non-union employees and attempted to prevail upon them to abandon their position.

Despite the fact that L. Greif & Bro., Inc. took an absolutely neutral position in the matter, the Company was cited before the Regional Labor Board on Friday, March 15, on the charge that "union employees have been discriminated against by a large group of non-union employees" and that the Company "failed to protect union workers who were interfered with in their pursuit to perform their employment by non-union employees, and that it has failed to ask the local authorities for assistance in protecting union workers to gain lawful entry upon the factory premises."

Although Mr. Francis Biddle, Chairman of the National Labor Relations Board, publicly declared on the previous day, before the United States Senate Investigating Committee, that there has been a "virtual suspension of enforcement" of Section 7 (a) of the National Industrial Recovery Act, and that the Regional Boards had no authority or power, under the law, to compel the attendance of the accused or of witnesses; nevertheless L. Greif & Bro., Inc. appeared before the Regional Labor Board at the hearing of this complaint, out of courtesy to the Board.

However, in view of the fact that we have maintained that Section 7 (a) of the National Industrial Recovery Act is unconstitutional, and that decisions to that effect have recently been rendered by several United States Courts, and in the light of Mr. Biddle's statements, this Company offered no evidence.

The sole testimony at the hearing was that of witnesses produced by the union. This evidence conclusively showed that the non-union workers had been encouraged and supported in their position by a large number of the leading citizens of Staunton. It also proved beyond doubt that the 35 union workers had never been discharged, nor discriminated against in any way by this Company or its officials.

On March 19 we were notified by the Regional Labor Board that we had been found guilty of violating Section 7 (a), in that since March 6, 1935, our Staunton plants had been picketed by non-union employees, who have prevented union employees from proceeding to their work and carrying on their normal occupations; that the Company has not used normal disciplinary measures to restrain this activity; and has failed to call upon the local police authorities to enter upon Company property for the purpose of preventing non-union employees from molesting and refusing to work with union workers.

At the same time, the Regional Labor Board notified us that we would have to agree, on or before March 21 (two days later), to guarantee safe entry into the plant and protection therein for these thirty-five union workers; and to pay them for all of the days they have been away from work, under threat of transmittal of the case to the National Labor Relations Board with the recommendation that the Company's Blue Eagle and right to use N.R.A. labels be removed.

L. Greif & Bro., Inc. never has employed and does not intend to employ private police to maintain order inside its factories. It does not intend to discharge 465 of its employees to satisfy 35. It does intend to protect all of its rights and the rights of 3,500 workers against any unlawful demands of 35.

Because of this attitude on our part, the Regional Labor Board for the Fifth District has threatened that it will cause the immediate removal of our Blue Eagle and of our right to use N.R.A. labels, and thus prevent us from continuing to conduct our business. The national Recovery Administration, admittedly, without any legal authority, requires us to use these labels in our garments. By an unlawful boycott, they are trying to prevent us from obtaining a decision of a Court of the United States upon the constitutionality of Section 7 (a) of the National Industrial Recovery Act, attempting to put us out of business merely because we have questioned their authority.

We maintain that pending a decision of this matter by the Courts, these N.R.A. boards have no right to deprive us of the use of N.R.A. labels and we shall continue to manufacture and deliver our clothing with these labels until the Courts have ruled otherwise.

This Company never has violated the law and does not intend to do so now or in the future. All that we are seeking, and what we intend to obtain, is the opportunity to have our rights determined by the Courts and while doing so to continue to conduct our business without interference from the National Recovery Administration.

Free State's Senate Kills 2% Sale Tax

lice, However, Believes First Plan Will Win at Showdown.

A Staff Correspondent.

Annapolis, Md., March 22.—The Maryland Senate today furnished further indication that it will block any attempt to impose a 2 per cent sales tax as a solution of the unemployment relief problem, when it adopted the Sasscer-Prescott bill providing for a consumers' utility tax. The bill was sent to the House. The vote was by the decisive margin of 22 to 6. The sales tax bill, passed by the House last night, is scheduled to come before the Senate late tonight.

The utility bill provides for a flat 5-cent levy on gross sales of electricity, gas and telephone utilities, with a 1 per cent tax on power for industrial purposes.

With the utility tax as a basis, the majority of the Senate plans to solve the relief problem by giving favorable consideration to several other revenue measures now before the finance committee. These include the 3.25 cents gallonage tax on beer, a pet measure introduced by Senator Milton L. Veasey, Worcester County, and other special taxes.

To Fight for Sales Tax.

Administration leaders, headed by Gov. Nice, and a number of Assembly leaders, however, still maintain that when the showdown comes there will be sufficient votes to approve the sales tax measure and discard all other proposals.

The Senate administered another setback to the administration when it defeated the bill to repeal the declarations of intent act relating to registration of voters. The bill failed for lack of a constitutional majority, the vote being 14 for and 12 against. The necessary constitutional majority is 15. It was the first time in the current session that a measure failed to receive a majority of votes cast.

With the deadline for presentation of new legislative proposals at hand, more than two score measures were offered in the House and a number of others in the Senate.

License Law Changes Proposed.

Four bills amending the State license laws were filed. Three were introduced by Delegate Kent R. Mullikin, Prince Georges County, majority floor leader. One would require beauty parlor operators to pay an annual license of $25; another would require a like fee from bona fide growers of produce or fruit when selling from motor or horse-drawn vehicles, and the third would prevent all persons except growers or manufacturers from selling at wholesale only or from any fixed place, without a traders' license. The fourth measure, by Delegate Mitchell, Caroline County, fixes $25 as the license for hucksters, hawkers and peddlers in that county. The measure, however, does not apply to farmers selling home produce.

Speaker Emanuel Gorfine presented several bills affecting the oyster and crab industry. The measures were sponsored by State Conservation Commissioner Swepson Earle.

One bill provides that State residents or corporations organized under State laws shall have the right to plant oysters; another would allow the leasing of a maximum of 250 acres of bay bottoms to such lessees; a third strikes out the limit of 1,000-acre limitation placed on reserved areas by the conservation commissioner, and a fourth would allow the commissioner to determine small oysters which would give better results in transplanting and allow oysters to be removed and up to 40 per cent sold for replanting.

A bill by Delegate Bennett, Dorchester County, directs the conservation commissioner, upon petition, to drag oyster bottoms with bagless dredges for the purpose of cultivating depleted beds.

Crab Bill Offered.

One of the crab bills is designed to fix the closed season from November 1 to May 1, except as to Worcester County, and the other raises the legal size of crustaceans from 5 to 6 inches. Worcester County also would be exempt from this provision. Five inches is the stipulated limit there.

Speaker Gorfine and Delegates Sothoron, Prince Georges County, and Harvey Miller, Washington County, jointly presented the black bass bill, designed to prevent catching either large or small mouth fish of that specie, except by angling, from July to November, inclusive. This measure has been before the Assembly at previous sessions. Taking of bass under 10 inches would be prohibited and the limit of a day's catch would be ten under terms of the bill.

The bag limit on woodcock, doves, rabbits, squirrels and partridges is laid down in another bill. The proportionate limits are: Woodcock, 4 a day and not over 25 a season; doves, 18, not over 50 a season; squirrel, 6, not over 30 a season, and partridges, 6, not over 100 a season.

Liquor Fee Provided.

Proprietors of hotels of more than ten rooms and owners of bona fide restaurants in Frederick would be required to pay $750 annually for liquor licenses under a bill by the Frederick County delegation. Another Frederick proposal directs the commissioner of motor vehicles to refuse automobile markers in Emmitsburg unless municipal taxes have been paid.

Repeal of the law governing fishing in Chester River, Eastern Bay and Cox Creek is provided in a bill by Delegate Joseph Evans, of the Queen Anne County delegation.

A joint resolution by Delegate Meade, Baltimore City, authorizes the Governor to appoint a commission of five members to survey occupational diseases of employes in the State, determine methods of compensation and protection, and report to the Governor by December 1. A bill by Delegate Abramson, Baltimore City, authorizes the Governor to suspend from time to time operations of the merit system law whenever, in his judgment, best interests of the public would be served.

Parents, 10 Children Take Insurance; 1 Dies

By the Associated Press.

South Boston, Va., March 22.—The Thames family, of Mecklenburg County, believe in life insurance.

John R. Thames, the father, and ten children submitted applications for $1,000 policies at the same time. Shortly afterward Mrs. Thames also took out a $1,000 policy, making coverage on the family complete.

Wilson Thames, 20, died several days after the policy was written.

Delegates Get Redraft Today Of Milk Bill

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Annapolis, Md., March 22.—The proposed Maryland "milk control" bill, stripped of many of the controversial provisions contained in the original draft introduced by Delegate William G. Knapp (Democrat), of Baltimore County, will be reported by the agricultural committee tomorrow, it was learned here tonight.

In its amended form the measure sets up a milk commission similar to that of the Maryland Public Service Commission. The bill guarantees full right of appeal in all cases and its provisions are to take effect only in those areas in which a majority of the persons affected desire the act enforced.

One of the principal changes in the bill as it will be reported from committee is that the members of the commission, three in number, will be appointed by the State board of agriculture instead of by the Governor. Compensation of the members is to be fixed by the board. The commission is empowered to rent offices and employ such officials as necessary to administer the act.

Administration Costs.

It is provided that the entire expense of administration shall not exceed the amount of the taxes and fees collected under terms of the bill, which fix a levy of not more than 1 cent per 100 pounds on milk. This is to be paid in entirety by producer-distributors and on a half-and-half basis when the milk is handled by separate producers and distributors.

The commission would have power when requested by a "substantial" number of producers, consumers and milk dealers in any milk marketing area to supervise and regulate the entire industry of that section. It would be empowered to regulate the production, transportation, processing, storage, distribution, delivery and sale of milk.

General powers of the commission would include the fixing of minimum prices to be paid by milk dealers to producers and those charged by producers to milk dealers. The commssion would also establish minimum wholesale and retail prices to be charged for milk handled within the State for fluid consumption.

The commission would be authorized to examine the business, papers and affairs of milk dealers and producers and to require the filing of reports, which would be subject, with limitations, to dissemination in the discretion of the commission.

Retail License Fees.

Retail stores selling milk in fluid form in marketing areas designated as such by the commission would be subject to a license fee of $1.

The revised bill is framed so as not to interfere in any way with co-operative associations either in or outside of specified marketing areas, in the event that agreements of the co-operative members are approved by the commission. In order to set up agreements, the proportion covered of the normal milk supply of the area must be equivalent to not less than 65 per cent of the total production and the agreement must be approved by not less than 10 per cent of the distributors representing not less than 35 per cent of the milk handled in said area.

Exemption from provisions of the proposed act is given to all milk handled in interstate shipment. Numerous court decisions in other States led to abandonment of efforts to regulate shipments out-of-State. Sale of ice cream, butter and cheese is exempted from provisions of the bill.

The bill is classed as an emergency measure and will require a three-fifths majority vote of both Houses of the Assembly. Provisions of the measure will terminate June 1, 1937, unless extended by the Assembly.

Mortality Rate Shows Decline In Hagerstown

Town's Health Improves Despite Depression, Health Chief Says.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hagerstown, Md., March 22.—A marked improvement in health of the community and a decrease in the mortality rate during the depression, "when ordinarily there should be a higher death rate," is noted by Dr. W. Ross Cameron, city and county health officer, in his annual report submitted to the board of county commissioners.

The decrease of the mortality rate from 12 per 100,000 population in 1931 to 10.9 in 1934 was attributed by the health officer to three reasons, namely, recent advances in the practice of medicine, which made possible the prevention of numerous premature deaths; increased efficiency of social agencies, making it possible for every one to obtain sufficient food and clothing, and activities of the public health agencies in limiting the spread of communicable diseases.

Statistics showed that the tuberculosis death rate here was reduced from 43.5 per 100,000 population to 28.2 in four years, typhoid fever from 12 to 2.8, diphtheria from 4.5 to 1.4, and the infant mortality rate from 81.5 per 1,000 live births to 68.8.

Births showed a decrease over a four-year period, dropping from 20.1 per 100,000 to 17 in 1934.

There was a noticeable decrease in typhoid fever cases, from 97 in 1931 to 12 in 1934. Isolation of cases and supervision of "carriers," the protection of water and milk supplies were held responsible for the decrease.

The reduction in diphtheria from 47 to 25 cases annually in four years was attributed to the use of a relatively new toxoid, 80 per cent of those immunized being protected by a single injection.

Young Democrats Club To Study County Set-up

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Leesburg, Va., March 22.—County government will be studied by the Young Democratic Club of Loudoun County at a meeting to be held at the courthouse in Leesburg on Tuesday evening. This is the second of a series of meetings dealing with town, county and State governments.

Speakers for the meeting on Tuesday will include County Clerk E. O. Russell, Treasurer Howard E. Cole, Sheriff E. S. Adrian, Commonwealth's Attorney John Galleher and Commissioner of Revenue R. L. Nixon.

32-County Spelling Bee Wins School Heads' Commendation

Sidney B. Hall, Virginia's Superintendent of Public Instruction, Praises Endeavor Co-Sponsored by The Washington Post.

The National Spelling Bee has been indorsed for the last ten years by leading educators the country over. With the announcement that The Washington Post will co-sponsor the bee in 32 counties in Maryland, Virginia and West Virginia, county superintendents and others in school work in this territory have added their commendation to swell the tide of approval.

Sidney B. Hall, superintendent of public instruction, Commonwealth of Virginia, says: "My observation of spelling bees makes it possible to say that I believe they are worth while, and that they certainly stimulate children's interest in learning to spell. I therefore commend this endeavor and hope that it may be of value to all parties concerned."

W. H. Keister, superintendent of schools of Harrisonburg, Va., writes: "Spelling, to me, is very important and one of the things that ought to be taught, dwelt upon and again dwelt upon in the school system."

"Spelling is a thing that needs to have more emphasis," D. N. Davidson, superintendent of schools in Orange County, Va., believes. He adds, "Anything within reason that tends to stimulate more interest in correct spelling, I welcome. I believe you can do a good deal to help us, and I shall be glad to cooperate with you in this respect."

"I feel that the children will have pleasure and will develop a lively interest in the spelling bee proposed by The Post," Edwin W. Broome, superintendent of public schools of Montgomery County, Md., comments. "To make spelling a more conscious thing is one of the tasks of the schools. This attention will contribute to the good of the children."

Among other county or division superintendents who have offered their indorsement of the project are Harry B. Hanger, Page County, Va.; Archie E. Robertson, Clarke County, Va.; Mrs. Emile D. Windle, Loudoun County, Va.; R. C. Haydon, Prince William County, Va.; F. B. Gwynn, Charles County, Md.; Nicholas Orem, Prince Georges County, Md.; W. T. Woodson, Fairfax County, Va.; A. W. Yowell, Green and Madison Counties, Va.; A. L. Bennett, Albemarle County, Va., and R. C. Jennings, supervising principal of Waynesboro public schools.

Counties eligible in the bee are: Augusta, Arlington, Albemarle, Clarke, Culpeper, Fairfax, Fauquier, Green, Loudon, Madison, Orange, Prince William Page, Rockingham, Rappahannock, Stafford, Shenandoah, Spottsylvania and Warren, in Virginia; Allegany, Anne Arundel, Calvert, Charles, Frederick, Howard, Montgomery, St. Mary's, Prince Georges and Washington, in Maryland, and Jefferson and Berkeley in West Virginia. Sixth, seventh and eighth grade pupils in schools in this territory are invited to take part.

Each school will send its best spellers to the elimination match for the county in which it is situated. The county winners then will meet to determine the champion of the area, who will compete for $1,750 in cash prizes in the National Bee. Liberal prizes, including a 12-volume set of the Encyclopedia Britannica Junior, will be awarded in the elimination matches. For a leaflet, giving full details of rules and prizes, write Alice Fox Pitts, Spelling Bee Director, in care of The Washington Post.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Winchester, Va., March 22.—Plans are being made for the annual meeting of Shenandoah district of the Cooperative Education Association of Virginia which will be held at Stephens City April 4, according to an announcement made today by R. E. Aylor, principal of the Stephens City High School.

The Shenandoah district is composed of Frederick, Clarke, Warren, Shenandoah, Rockingham, Rappahannock and Page counties, and the cities of Winchester and Harrisonburg.

Officers of the association are Ralph M. Ware, Berryville, president; Mrs. Claude B. Stickley, Stephens City, and Mrs. Carl Boyer, Woodstock, vice presidents; Lewis J. Turner, Washington (Va.), secretary and treasurer.

Virginia Fears Deficit Despite Tax on Liquor

Unbalanced Budget Likely Unless Revenue Soars, Bradford Says.

By the Associated Press.

Richmond, Va., March 22.—Budget Director J. H. Bradford said today he was "not very optimistic over the probability of a balanced budget" for the current fiscal year, despite anticipation of the State's share in ABC liquor profits.

Exclusive of a possible $500,000 for the State out of surplus alcohol beverage profits, revenue collections during the last five months of the fiscal year ending June 30 must be $2,000,000 higher than the last five months of the previous fiscal year in order to avoid a deficit, Mr. Bradford estimated.

Of the liquor profits, $1,675,000 has already been earmarked partly to offset the deficit of the preceding biennium. After a revolving fund is set up for the ABC board, an estimated $1,500,000 surplus will be divided two-thirds among the localities and one-third to the State.

Collections for the first seven months of the 1934-35 fiscal year totaled $8,490,192. Mr. Bradford said, leaving a balance of $7,325,808 to be collected if the budget estimate of $15,816,000 is to be met. The State's income during the last five months of the previous fiscal year was $5,466,192.

Delay on Postoffice Seen at Waynesboro

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Waynesboro, Pa., March 22.—Protests against the type of postoffice building proposed for Waynesboro were met today with the statement that if the Postoffice Department at Washington stands by its determination, either the structure will be built according to this years' plans or another year will be permitted to go by before a start is made on the building.

Representative Harry L. Haines said he is endeavoring to have a better structure for Waynesboro obtained. Protests to Mr. Haines said that Red Lion, his home town, has a much better building, although only half as large as Waynesboro.

FERA Laborer Eats Everything But Road

By the Associated Press.

Norton, Va., March 22.—Burleigh Freeman, FERA laborer, yesterday had a light lunch—something on the order of those meals which Diamond Jim Brady used to eat.

Freeman, who lives on Stone Mountain near Coeburn, is proud of his gastronomical abilities. So, while working on a road project he consumed for lunch a four and one-half pound chicken, thirteen boiled eggs, a loaf of bread, a quart of huckleberries, a pint of water, a pint of coffee and a large ten-cent bakery cake. The articles were furnished by fellow workers.

$12,435 Credit Put to Account Of Coblentz

Assets of Ex-President of Bank Are Entered Against Decree.

Frederick, Md., March 22.—John J. Ghingher, State bank commissioner and receiver for the defunct Central Trust Co. of Maryland, was authorized in circuit court today to enter a credit of $12,435 on the decree for stockholders' liability to the account of Emory L. Coblentz, former president of the bank.

The order was signed by Chief Judge Hammond Urner.

The amount represents the assets of Coblentz, against whom the court had passed a decree for payment of $63,780 for double liability on Central Trust Co. stock he owned.

Ghingher said he had the consent of W. Clinton McSherry, attorney for the People's Liquidating Corporation, which has possession of these assets, for turning them over to the receiver.

The assets represent a deed for the home of Coblentz in Middletown, valued at $7,000; $1,200 in cash, accruing from sale of his personal property; a $2,425 mortgage on a Braddock Heights property owned by J. Fred Main; Frederick Hotel Co. debentures of a $1,500 face value, and $280 in cash.

U. S. Cuts Off City's Transient Relief

No Fredericksburg Funds, Panhandling Feared.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Fredericksburg, Va., March 22.—After more than 18 months of Federal aid, Fredericksburg's transient population today was back on the streets depending for sustenance on what it could beg from kindly disposed citizens.

Panhandling, which had been reduced to a minimum during the period of Federal aid, is expected once again to make its dolorous appearance.

More than 30 days ago the Emergency Relief Bureau, under directions from headquarters, discontinued the financial help it had given to the local Salvation Army post for the care of transients, many of whom reach Fredericksburg from all parts of the Nation. When Federal aid was stopped, the Salvation Army continued to care for the transients as best it could, but found the financial strain more than it could bear. Funds now are completely exhausted.

2 Die, 2 Hurt In Car Wreck In Maryland

2 Women Lose Lives as Auto Turns Over Near Hagerstown.

Funeral Is Set Today for Mrs. W.R. Thacher, Victim in Crash.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hagerstown, Md., March 22.—Edna Settle, 35, and Virginia Frush, 17, both of Hagerstown, were fatally injured and Clinton A. Carbaugh and Charles Rouzer, both 21, also of Hagerstown, received numerous injuries when the car in which they were riding overturned early today on the Greencastle-Williamsport highway, seven miles west of Hagerstown.

Neither of the men was injured seriously.

Carbaugh told police he lost control of the car, which turned over six times before stopping. He dragged himself to the home of George Troupe, nearby, and collapsed after asking that an ambulance be sent. Troupe said he was awakened by the screech of the car wheels as it skidded.

Acting Coroner Richard H. Sweeney and State police are making an investigation. No verdict has been rendered as yet.

Mrs. Settle is the daughter of Mrs. Cora Settle, and Miss Frush is the daughter of Charles A. Frush, both of Hagerstown.

Mrs. W. R. Thacher.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va.—Funeral services will be conducted at the home in Shepherdstown, W. Va., tomorrow afternoon for Mrs. Mary Gray Thacher, 45, fatally injured in an automobile wreck late last night ear Kearneysville, W. Va., a few miles from here, and in which her husband, W. R. Thacher, member of Shepherd College faculty at Shepherdstown, driving the Thacher car, and George Nicewarner, of Berkeley County, driving the other car, were seriously injured.

Both Thacher and Nicewarner were reported improved today and, barring unforseen developments, stood a good chance to recover, hospital attendants said. Both have regained consciousness.

Social and Club Notes
Of Towns and Cities in Nearby States

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Purcellville, Va.—Mrs. J. T. Hirst, assisted by Mrs. Fleet James, entertained the Purcellville Garden Club yesterday.

Mrs. Mary V. Smith talked on flowers and flower shows seen on a cruise off the coast of South America and the West Indies. Mrs. Fleet James spoke on flower arrangements for March, and Mrs. J. S. Patterson gave a reading on the March preparation for annuals. Daffodils and early spring flowers were exhibited.

Bakerton Girl Married.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Bakerton, W. Va.—The marriage of Miss Bertha Manuel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Manuel, of Bakerton, to D. Luther Bowman, of Washington, in Hagerstown, Saturday, has been announced.

Attending the wedding were Mr. Bernard Rice and Miss Muriel Wrenn, of Washington; Mr. John Knight, of Alabama; Miss Eleanor Hiedwohl, Hagerstown, Md.; Miss Virginia Phillips, of Shepherdstown, W. Va., and Miss Catharine Moler, Mr. Willard Moler and Mr. Walter Manuel, jr., of Bakerton.

Doing Historical Research.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Leonardtown, Md.—Mrs. Lucy Shaw, of Charlotte Hall and Washington, who has been reelected State historian of the D. A. R. of Maryland, has engaged in historical research work since holding that office.

Mrs. Shaw is a member of the Maj. William Thomas Chapter, D. A. R., St. Marys County, and is engaged in seeking more information regarding 20 men from this county who were soldiers in the Revolutionary War. So far only two of the graves have been located. It is the aim of the chapter to mark the graves suitably.

Mrs. Poole to be Guest.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Fredericksburg, Va.—Mrs. Grace Morrison Poole, national president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, will be the guest of the Woman's Club of Fredericksburg next Wednesday. In her honor a luncheon has been planned at the Stratford Hotel.

More than 200 are expected to attend. Twenty-four women's clubs from the territory between Richmond and Washington and from the Northern Neck have been issued invitations.

At Vermont Conference.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Cambridge, Md.—Mrs. Jonathan E. Wheatley, national vice president of the Eastern Division of American Legion Auxiliary units, which comprises all the States on the Atlantic seaboard, has gone to attend a national defense conference in Montpelier, Vt. A ball in her honor will be given by the auxiliary.

At the midwinter conference of the American Legion and Auxiliary in St. Johnsbury, Vt., she will be one of the principal speakers. She is scheduled to visit Bangor, Houlton, Augusta and Portland, Me.

Ruggles' Use of Gettysburg Address Deft Satire, Not in Disrespect to Liberator

Gable Now Joins List of Fugitives—But This Time a Sign Gang.

(Reprinted from Yesterday's Last Edition.)

By Nelson B. Bell.

Usually we pay no attention whatever to anonymous communications. They more often than not express the distorted views of correspondents who do not quite dare sign their names to what they hope are grand ideas. Once in a while there comes along an exception We think we have one here.

At the expense of considerable thoughtful attention to the matter of pasting up clippings from the New York Times of March 17 and The Washington Post of March 20, some unknown communicant expresses a wish that we elucidate our notions that Lincoln's Gettysburg Address is a fine aid to comedy in "Ruggles of Red Gap," to be shown for the first time on any local screen at the Earle Theater today.

The idea seems to be that our remarks concerning the introduction of this prose poem into the dialogue of "Ruggles" left it somewhat in doubt whether the speech had been done respectfully or as a bit of clowning.

I can not conceive of any circumstance under which the Gettysburg Address might be employed with anything but profound consciousness of its grandeur as a bit of epic writing.

In "Ruggles of Red Gap" it is not made the butt of any cheap humor. The manner of its delivery, however, is to be construed as a touch of deft satire, since the only one who knows the text of the speech is the alien Ruggles, who more or less abashes his American listeners by being able to read the immortal lines of Lincoln with a dramatically moving intensity that gives the comedy of the piece a tang it would not otherwise possess.

The Gettysburg Address in the uses to which it has been put in the picture is sublimated rather than derogated. The picture by the same token is sublimated by an inspired utilization of one of the finest pieces of writing in the English language.

I hope now that I have made the matter clear for my unnamed correspondent.

The two members of the Ruggles family listed in the Washington telephone book have been invited to attend the premiere tonight of "Ruggles of Red Gap," the Paramount comedy at the Earle. The local Ruggles—Glenn A. Ruggles, 4311 Elm street, Chevy Chase, Md., and W. R. Ruggles, 1312 13th street northwest—will be the guests of Zone Manager John J. Payette.

"Laugh, Clown, Laugh."

There is something to be said for this fellow, Herb Williams, who comes to town today to headline the stage bill at Loew's Fox Theater.

Viewing Herb from the front of the house, as most people, naturally, do, you would take him for an inveterate clown whose every natural impulse was dedicated to the outrageous distortion of all normal impulses.

Here, you think to yourself, is a guy who exudes comedy at every pore; there can't be anything normal about a chap as crazy as he is.

And that is precisely where you are wrong. In his off-stage moments Herb is more like a retired banker than a rekindled farceur. He has the solemn mien of a patriarch of the church; the impressive dignity of a fellow of the faith; the sagacity of a wizard of the trades.

Coming right down to brass tacks, Herb is none of these things. He is a middle-aged comedian with a great love for his ancestral home—if that is what it is—out on Long Island, a fine flair for carpentry and a wholesome regard for the substantial things of life, even as you and I.

Remember that, when you applaud everything he does on the stage.

Another Fugitive From Gang.

It is one of this column's operatives who discloses that Clark Gable for the third time in his life has been made a fugitive from the sign gang.

His latest escape was last Sunday at Dallas, Tex., when he saw thousands of women descending on his ship as he was about to change planes. He changed his mind and remained aboard.

Back in Hollywood, Gable grinned and said he was "just another actor" in movieland, "but in Texas—well, they might have taken me apart to see what made me tick."

Modest, that, but hardly true.

And at a film premiere on Hollywood boulevard one night he actually did lose his top hat, cane, gloves, collar, one shoe and several locks of hair to a mob of fans.

Film stars have been knocked down, trampled and man-handled by street crowds. Some fans want autographs; some, armed with scissors, want any souvenir they can snip off the player's person.

Most of the players accept this hysterical excitement philosophically, even gratefully.

Could Be Worse.

Last week Joan Crawford entering a restaurant was delayed an hour by an autograph gang. She signed books steadily while her escort waited. He asked her if she didn't consider this "an awful nuisance."

"I'll consider it worse when the day comes that they won't ask me for my autograph," she replied.

In Mexico, D. F., Dolores Del Rio, beautiful Mexican actress, was handled so roughly by a crowd of admirers as she entered a theater that her evening gown was practically torn off her back. She sat with a torn fur coat draped around her throughout the performance.

In Detroit, Gene Raymond, blond actor, had 16 girls storm his dressing room, break down the doors and make off with his clothes during a personal appearance tour.

The champion mob scene—off stage—of all time, occurred when Vilma Banky married Rod La Rocque in Beverly Hills. Even police were trampled and beaten by the crowd that ripped Miss Banky's wedding veil off her head, took La Rocque's coat, their shoes, the bride's bouquet, and all removable bits of clothing.

It is that ebullient and evasive young Miss Kathleen Carson who drops by the dramatic desk to shed tidings on what is going on up Foundry M. E. Church way.

It seems that the Young People's League of Foundry M. E. tonight will present "The Youngest," by Philip Barry. The principal roles will be played by Barbara Harris, daughter of the Rev. Frederick Brown Harris, pastor of the church; Miss Carson, Polly Swarm, Emily Laird, Howard Saunders, Johnny Sheppard, Don Mars and Harvey Thielway.

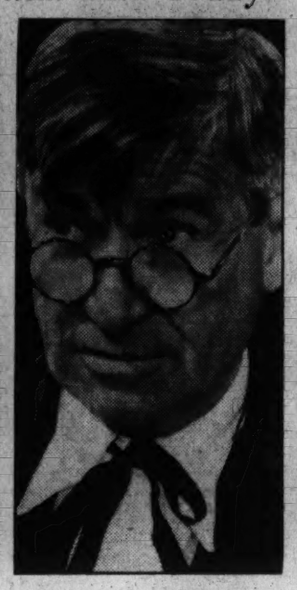
The play has been produced by Marcia Hunt and Howard Saunders.

Another Weather Note.

It really seemed to turn out as a first touch of spring.

And does that make you angry? Me, neither.

You Will See Them Both Today



Above at left you will see that remarkably facile mistress of the pianoforte, Evelyn Tyner, a Hoosier who will bring all of the talents of her Indiana origin to the enlivenment of the stage portion of the entertainment beginning today at Loew's Fox Theater. On the right, as you may have suspected, is Mr. Will Rogers, cast in the stellar role of "Life Begins at 40," the principal screen feature at the Palace, come this morning—as it undoubtedly has. Mr. Rogers is said to have one of his best roles here, and probably has.

"THE MAN OF ARAN." Gaumont British release of Robert Flaherty's scenic-drama filmed on the Isle of Aran, featuring Colman "Tiger" King, Maggie Dirrane and Michael Dillane. Photographed by Paul Ivano. Musical score by John Greenwood. Directed by Robert Flaherty. Reviewed Thursday afternoon by W. A. Whitney.

On no coast have waves dashed higher or on a more severe expanse of rocks than they do upon the Isle of Aran, where man has utilized the barest and bleakest of Nature's bounties to eke out an existence.

This is the locale of "The Man of Aran," a place devoid of soil and vegetation, where rocks meet the sea and the sea meets the sky, presenting to the stalwart inhabitants a formidable test of man's fortitude.

No story hinders the pictorial recounting of the vicissitudes of life on this stark, lonely island and yet three characters stand out from the picture in bold relief—"the man of Aran," his wife and his son. Old beyond their years, buffeted by the elements, they still reflect a brightness of eye, a proud carriage and a noble spirit which come from an independent life, uprightly lived in the sight of God and man.

These three—Colman ("Tiger") King, Maggie Dirrane and Michael Dillane, respectively—especially, and all the members of the supporting company in general, move and act with conviction, making real this scenic-drama of the simple life.

Is Photographic Triumph.

Scenically, "The Man of Aran" presents a spot little known. No pictures can be recalled where King Neptune has been shown more terrible than in this.

Consideration of "The Man of Aran" naturally forces comparison with other "scenic epics." Earlier subjects of this sort—such as Murnau's "Tabu"—have leaned heavily on narrative to enhance natural beauties of the region involved, but not here, where what little story there is is only vaguely implied.

It must be emphatically added that the camera work of Paul Ivano is excellent in scenic values and artistic composition. Further, the musical score, composed by John Greenwood and based on Aran folk tunes, is beautiful and effective.

Stark existence is again portrayed in "Dawn to Dawn," an almost morbid delineation of a girl's 24 hours on a farm dominated by a near-psychopathic father.

"City of Wax," a cinematized recounting of the life history of the bee, and a release of Pathe News complete the program.

"Vinegar Tree."

"The Vinegar Tree" the three-act domestic comedy by Paul Osborne, was presented last evening by the Footlight Club of the University of Maryland at College Park. Prof. Charles B. Hales, of the English department was the director.

In the principal roles were Betty Buschman and Jerome Sacks, with Mildred Hearn, Fred Haskin, jr., Loretta Dolan, George Edwards and John Edwards completing the cast.

Benefit for Cripples Is a Success as Performed at Roosevelt Auditorium.

"THE ROYAL FAMILY." The Community Center Department presents the comedy-drama in three acts by George S. Kaufman and Edna Ferber. Directed by John Mann; Howard Whitfield, stage manager. At Roosevelt High School. Reviewed Wednesday evening by W. A. Whitney.

THE CAST:

Joe .....Ralph Paddock
Hallboy .....Robert Duke
Herbert Dean .....George Odell
Kitty Dean .....Ann Garrett
Gwen .....Marie McIntyre
Perry Stewart .....Scott Dickson
Fanny Cavendish....Maud Howell Smith
Oscar Wolfe .....John Mann
Julie Cavendish .....Anne Ives
Anthony Cavendish....Theodore Tiller 2d
Gilbert Marshall .....James Walsh
Miss Peake .....Nancy Ordway

With an "all-star" cast selected from seven of Washington's leading dramatic groups, the Community Center Department staged Wednesday evening in Roosevelt High School the mildly satirical "The Royal Family" as the first in a series of four benefit plays for the crippled children of the city.

The Kaufman-Ferber drama is a thinly veiled travesty and burlesque on a so-called dynasty in American theaterdom, possessing the elements of comedy and tense drama delicately woven into a sound philosophical fabric.

This ideal, it is regretted to report, was not entirely encompassed Wednesday evening. While the players, for the most part, read the lines expertly, and the audience laughed uproariously at many of the quips, the players still were reading the Kaufman-Ferber lines and not uttering honest remarks which could be expected to have flowed from the lips of real flesh-and-blood people.

The development of this production has, however been beset by no end of difficulties, and, perhaps, it is not strictly fair to lay too much stress on what otherwise would have been miscasting nearly all along the line. The players individually and collectively most certainly deserve credit for a difficult job well essayed.

One character stands out above all the rest, and that is the role of Julie Cavendish, played by Anne Ives.

Others whose work scored, but less vividly, were Maud Howell Smith, whose Fanny Cavendish became more and more believable as the play moved on; Theodore Tiller, 2d, whose agility helped in the character of the junior actor; Marie McIntyre, as Gwen, and Ann Tarrett, as the loud, nagging Kitty.

Mrs. Roosevelt Urges Support For Symphony

Mrs. O'Day Reads Message; Increased Effort Asked by Dr. McClellan.

(Reprinted from Yesterday's Last Edition.)

Washingtonains who contribute toward the National Symphony's drive are doing something of real value, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt said yesterday in an appeal for support of the campaign.

The First Lady's plea, which was broadcast, was read by Representative Caroline O'Day, of New York, as a prelude to the orchestra's concert at Constitution Hall.

"Dreaming dreams has been the way that most of the great things in the world have been done, and the National Symphony, which brings so much that is good and so much that is beautiful into the lives of the people of Washington, is the result of dreams," Mrs. Roosevelt said.

Mrs. Roosevelt had planned to be present at the concert and deliver her message in person, but was unable to do so because of the critical illness of Col. Louis McHenry Howe, the President's secretary and friend.

Value of Project.

"We have been so busy in this country making money," said Mrs. Roosevelt, "that we have had little chance to realize what it would mean to us as a nation to develop a real understanding and enjoyment of music.

"This is coming to us now, but it can not come unless we have the opportunity to listen to good concerts and to hear a good orchestra play good music. I hope that we will all do whatever we can to make this campaign successful and that in its success we will all feel a pride that we have contributed something of real value to our Capital City."

A gift of $500 from an anonymous contributor was reported at yesterday's meeting of the campaign committees at the Carlton Hotel. The gift is contingent on being matched with nine other gifts of a like amount. Mrs. Chester Bolton immediately agreed to provide one of the $500 gifts.

Several workers reported their efforts to match the $1,000 donation of Mr. and Mrs. Christian Heurich. Two more contributions are needed to match this gift, as it is contingent upon four similar gifts and only two have been received.

The largest contribution reported yesterday was $1,500 subscribed by Mrs. Beale R. Howard.

Mrs. Ernest Gruening, co-chairman of the Government committee, reported fine responses from Federal officials. "I am confident," she said, "that the people in the various departments will do their part and enable the National Symphony to continue as a feature of the cultural life of the Nation's Capital."

Urges Increased Efforts.

Dr. William McClellan, chairman of the men's committee, made a plea for more intensive efforts by the 500 volunteer workers. "With only four more days left to secure the $100,000 sustaining fund," he said, "the total received to date is considerably less than half the quota. More and greater contributions are needed if we are to celebrate March 25 as victory day."

Dr. McClellan, it was announced, has accepted an invitation to address a concert audience Sunday night at the Women's City Club, 736 Jackson place, on behalf of the campaign.

One enthusiastic and unsolicited worker for the campaign is Miss Betsy Winter, a student at Central High School, it was revealed at the report meeting yesterday. Miss Winter's interest was indicated in this letter which she addressed to the committee:

"A group of my friends at Central High, who feel that the National Symphony has given so much to the people of Washington, are sending to the symphony fund a small sum which we hope will help the orchestra a little bit on its way.

"Do you think any of the students in Washington would be interested in joining us in this worthy cause? Even nickels would do their part. If there are any interested students and they send their contributions to me, I should be happy to add them to the fund from 'The Young Friends of the Orchestra.'

Postlude — By Ray C. B. Brown

National Symphony Orchestra in Constitution Hall; Harold Bauer, soloist; Hans Kindler, conductor. Program: Chorale-Prelude, "I Call to Thee, Lord Jesus" (Bach); Symphony No. 4 in F minor (Chaikovski); Piano Concerto in A minor (Schumann), "Tristan's Vision" from Act III of "Tristan und Isolde" (Wagner), Dance of Comedians from "The Bartered Bride" (Smetana).

Since yesterday's concert fell upon March 21, the day when Johann Sebastian Bach was born at Eisenach in 1685, no tribute to the memory of that great spirit could have been more timely than the performance of "I Call to Thee, Lord Jesus." Bach was a devoutly religious man and a chorale was the most fitting form of composition that could have been chosen from his shorter works for honorary position on a miscellaneous program.

Bach wrote in all 143 organ preludes based on Lutheran chorales. These sincere and simple songs apparently were dear to his heart and he was particularly happy in clothing them in rich garments of harmony. In them he found the inspiration for improvisations on the keyboard and these spontaneous outpourings of imaginative invention were afterwards written down in the perfected form of preludes. The essential simplicity of his genius found congenial material in the songs of worship which the common people sang.

A great gulf is fixed between the clear and serene faith of Bach and the troubled uncertainty of Chaikovski, whose fourth symphony is a spiritual battleground. Victory crowns the struggle in the end, but at a cost of painful torturings of the soul. Chaikovski may have felt, as he wrote to Taniev, that this work was a reflection of Beethoven's fifth symphony, and one can see what he meant by the statement. But the reflection was oddly distorted in the mirror of Chaikovski's mind, where fate wore a more terrifying aspect.

Dr. Kindler's reading was impassioned and powerful in the stormy first movement and he conveyed excellently its oppressive and ominous atmosphere. The orchestra was not so well-knit as usual in this movement, which had moments of loose texture, but it recovered its cohesion in the andantino. The pizzicato movement was expertly played, and the finale went with a vigorous elan.

The illness of the harpist, Miss Sylvia Meyer, banished from the program Maurice Ravel's piano concerto, which was to have had its Washington premiere. In its place we received the ever-welcome Schumann concerto from the capable and sympathetic hands of Harold Bauer, who disclosed its romantic richness in most satisfying fashion.

If all other compositions of Schumann were to be destroyed, this single tone-poem would retain the quintessence of his original idiom, of his peculiar imaginative fantasy, and of the eccentricities which allied his genius with that of Jean Paul Richter and E. T. A. Hoffmann. It is one of his most mature and beautiful works, suffused with poetic fire and glowing with that contained radiance.

The selections from Wagner and Smetana with which the program closed were substitutes for Liszt's "Les Preludes," previously announced.

One of the important members of the orchestra, now engaged in a drive to secure $100,000 for its next year's activities, Mr. Yukl has won renown for his technique and tone.

Mr. Yukl obtained his musical education in this country. He was the winner of a scholarship at the Peabody Conservatory of Music. Before coming to the National Symphony he had been a member of several of the Nation's prominent orchestras.

Waynesboro Sees Hot Election Fight

By the Associated Press.

Waynesboro, Va., March 22.—A warm political battle before the November election was indicated here today by simultaneous announcements of Democratic and Republican rallies to be held here within the next two weeks.

Representative Clifton A. Woodrum, of Roanoke, who launched a defense of Roosevelt's work relief program in a speech in Washington yesterday, will address the Democratic Club on April 4. Adrian Sonn, of Harrisonburg, will speak before the Republican meeting on Monday.

Augusta County members of the G. O. P. will assemble here March 28 to select a county slate. Charles C. Leap, former grand master of Virginia Odd Fellows, is said likely to receive the nomination for the State Senate at that time.

Parents Sue Son In Another's Death

They Charge Negligence in Fatal Auto Accident.

By the Associated Press.

Cumberland, Md., March 22.—The death of one son in an accident has caused a mother and father to enter damage suits against another son. They seek $15,000, charging negligence.

Last October Frederick A. Houston, of Frostburg, was driving a truck in which his brother, James, and several others were riding. The machine left the road while rounding a curve, and the driver swerved it suddenly to get it back on the pavement.

James Houston was thrown to the roadway, the complaintants assert, and died as a result of the injuries he received.

Robert A. Houston, the father, and the mother, Lottie, have now entered actions in circuit court for $10,000 and $5,000 for the death of James.

Jail Change Asked For Tipsy Drivers

Amendment Asks Terms Under 30 Days.

By the Associated Press.

Richmond, Va., March 22.—Amendment of the State law so judges could impose jail sentences of less than 30 days on persons convicted of driving while drunk might curb the practice and safeguard lives, Director John Q. Rhodes, of the State motor vehicle division, told the local citizens committee on traffic today.

The present law gives judges the right to suspend 30-day sentences, but no shorter term can be assessed. Mr. Rhodes said he believed more convictions could be obtained if terms of 5 to 30 days in jail could be ordered. He said his department revoked 1,042 permits of drunken drivers last year.

Mr. Rhodes expressed regret the State police force of 100 men could not maintain around-the-clock patrol of the highways. The majority of fatal accidents in Virginia occur after midnight, he pointed out.

Many Homes Built In the Suburbs

Editor in Maryland Tells of Housing Situation.

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, March 22.—C. E. Williams said today the New Deal has created a housing shortage around Washington and one of the outstanding activities in Maryland is the building of homes for Federal workers near the District of Columbia.

Most of the people brought to Washington to help bring about industrial recovery are from small towns, he said. They are used to grass plots and uncramped quarters. Confident that their jobs are safe for several years, they are building homes.

Primo Signs; Faces Louis June 19

Irked With Garden, Will Fight for Twentieth Century Club.

Won't Get Shot at Baer, Johnston Two-Timing, Soresi Asserts.

By the United Press.

NEW YORK, March 22.—Primo Carnera deserted Madison Square Garden today and signed with its bitterest rival, the Twentieth Century Club, for a 15-rounder with Joe Louis, hard-hitting Detroit Negro, at Yankee Stadium on June 19.

After the signing ceremony at Carnera's hotel, Mike Jacobs, treasurer of the Twentieth Century, appeared before the boxing commission and asked approval of the June 19 date. The commission took no action on Jacobs' request, explaining that outdoor dates will be allotted next month.

Agree to Advance Bout.

Louis already had contracted for three bouths under Twentieth Century promotion, the first of which was slated for July 17. Carnera and his manager, Louis Soresi, desired an earlier date, so Louis and his managers agreed to advance the bout to June 19. They agreed today by telephone from Detroit.

Carnera will have no chance for a crack at Maxie Baer's title because the champion is under contract with the Garden. Soresi said Jimmy Johnson, Garden promoter, was talking through his derby because the Garden apparently never intended giving Primo a shot at Baer, and moreover, if Carnera beat Louis, he probably would fight Baer for the title under Twentieth Century promotion in September, if Maxie were still champion.

Irked at Garden.

"They've been trying to give Carnera the run-around," Soresi explained. "Five days ago I offered to have Primo sign a Garden contract, binding him to meet the winner of tonight's Lasky-Braddock fight, on condition that if Carnera won he would meet Max Schmeling for the right to fight Baer—or, if Schmeling were unavailable, Primo should tackle Baer. For five days we waited, and the Garden didn't even notice us. That's why we signed with the Twentieth Century."

The commission ordered Johnston and Soresi to appear at Tuesday's meeting and outline their grievances. Chairman John J. Phelan made no comment on Carnera's status as potential challenger. He did, however, emphasize that Schmeling will not be allowed to walk straight into a title fight with Baer. He said that the winner of the Lasky-Braddock bout, at least, must remain in the picture, and probably serve as Schmeling's opponent in a final elimination, if Carnera is out.

Rival Quintets Led By Ex-Teammates

Penn Avenue, Crisfield to Clash Tonight.

By the Associated Press.

Cumberland, Md., March 22.—Two former teammates will lead opposing teams in a basket ball game tomorrow night between Pennsylvania Avenue High and Crisfield High.

Bobby Cavanaugh, coach for the Cumberland team, will oppose Coach "Gimp" Carrington, of the Eastern Shore quintet. Both coaches are natives of Waterbury, Conn., and both played on the Crosby High basket ball and football teams there.

Later the pair attended Washington College, at Chestertown, and again played together. Carrington has been teaching in Crisfield since graduating in 1929.

The Eastern Shoremen will be quartered in the homes of Penn students during their stay here. This will be the second time a Crisfield team has played in Cumberland.

W. & M. Nine Plays Opener on Monday

Scott Chagrined as Site Is Moved Three Times.

By the Associated Press.

Williamsburg, Va., March 22.—What with this and that, youthful Bill Scott is growing himself a fine crop of figurative gray hairs as he whips the William and Mary baseball team into shape for its opening games with Washington and Lee here Monday and Tuesday.

It's not so much the calibre of the talent, although Bill isn't satisfied altogether with the playing material, as it is the condition of the playing field.

As workmen prepare for the erection of the new stadium on Cary Field, they have three times moved the location of the diamond with disastrous results to the infield. Home plate is now located where the rightfielder used to roam and the rightfielder now sinks his cleats in the soil of what was once the tennis courts.

Braddock Upsets Lasky on Decision

By the United Press.

Madison Square Garden, New York, March 22.—James J. Braddock, last of the great Irish heavyweights, tonight topped a glorious ring renaissance by battering out an impressive 15-round decision over Jewish Art Lasky of Los Angeles, one of the outstanding championship contenders.

There were no knockdowns, but both men were bleeding at the end—Lasky from his nose and a gash in his left brown, and Bradock from a cut beside his nose.

The bel lsaved Art in the sixth after he had been sent reeling around the ring by a barrage of smashing long-range rights and lefts to the head. In the eleventh, Art again was out on his feet near the close of the session, but Braddock was too tired to put him away.

Detroit Pounds Cardinals to Win, 12-5

Rookie Hurlers Are Stars; Red Sox Top Braves Behind Walberg.

By the Associated Press.

LAKELAND, Fla., March 22.—Two left-handed rookies, Clyde Hatter, of Louisville, and Joe Sullivan, of Hollywood, pitched the Detroit Tigers to a 12-to-5 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals in an exhibition game today.

The youngsters held the world champions to seven hits while their Tiger mates were pounding Paul Dean and Bill Walker for 15 blows. Walker was charged with the loss. Dean pitched the Cards into a 2-run lead in the first five frames, but Walker was nicked for ten hits and ten runs in the next three innings.

Practically the same line-ups the Tigers and Cards used in the World Series faced each other, too, including Owen and Medwick, co-stars of a near series riot. The Tigers showed some world series jitters today and committed three errors.

Foxx Is Seen Key to A's Chance

Young Hurlers Perform Well in Spring Tests; Hooks Surprises.

(The twelfth of a series of stories, gathered first-hand in the spring training camps, on major league plans and prospects for the coming season.)

By Edward J. Neil,

Associated Press Sports Writer.

FORT MYERS, Fla., March 22.—On the success or failure of one daring experiment—the return of Jimmie Foxx to his old place behind the plate—rests most of Connie Mack's hopes that another great Athletic team is in the making.

The ancient Philadelphia leader, building patiently again at a time in life when most men of his years have settled once and for all by the fireside, has gambled that big Jimmie, the lone power house left of the championship machines of 1929, 1930 and 1931, can return to his first love, catching, with all the fire and belting prowess that made him one of baseball's greatest first basemen.

Seen Costly to A's.

At the moment Connie seems to have won his gamble, though rival managers around the circuit shake their heads and insist that even though Jimmie turns out to be the greatest catcher in the league this season, the fact that he can hope to play in no more than 130 games will cost the A's too much of the power they need so desperately.

But Connie believes that Foxx's inspiration to his youthful pitching staff, his terrific throwing arm, his great natural ability as a catcher, will mean more games saved over the season's run than the 20 or more in which the absence of his big bat will be felt.

So far it has worked out just that way. As captain of the team, first man out on the practice field, last to leave, rooting, tooting, inspiring leader, breeding more and more winning spirit every day, Foxx has been a revelation here.

Increases Efficiency.

He handled Connie's young pitching staff, fellows like "Sugar" Cain, Johnny Marcum, Bill Dietrich, Joe Cascarella, Alton Benton and Charley Lieber, all right handers, with a skill and polish that seems to have increased their efficiency at least 25 per cent as a whole.

Lieber, an unknown drafted from the Missions, big, burly and swift, has looked well in training and seems certain of a starting place, along with George Caster, another rookie of the same type, from Portland. These seven, along with one veteran right hander, Roy Mahaffey, and Vernon Wiltshire, promising young southpaw, comprise a staff that, with the exception of 31-year-old Mahaffey, averages only a bit above 24 years of age.

Youth, Speed, Strength.

If Foxx can inspire these youngsters to exceptional performances, can keep up this home run belting and hitting that has averaged .338 over the ten years he's been catching, playing third and finally first base for the A's, then there is danger in the Athletics for all first division aspirants. There are youth, speed and hitting strength all over the rest of the ball club.

Two surprise packages for the rest of the league are Alex Hooks, big Texan from Tulsa, Okla., who has fielded sensationally as Jimmie's successor on first base while showing signs of being able to hit big league pitching, and Wallace Moses, 24-year-old speedster from Galveston, who threatens to oust big Ed Coleman from right field.

Hooks has fitted perfectly into the veteran infield combination of Pinky Higgins at third, Dib Williams at second, and Eric McNair at short. Even if Hooks doesn't hit much there's plenty of attacking power in Higgins, a .330 hitter last year, McNair and Williams who average around .280.

Slugging Outfield.

The outfield could hit a little harder in the averages, without hurting the A's chances any, but Bob Johnson, in left, with a 1934 average of .307, and Roger Cramer, in center, who hit only .280, are distance sluggers, along with Coleman.

Mack, caught by the infectious spirit that bubbles all over the club, seems more than pleased with his latest job of reconstruction. He merely says "we'll be up there," but he acts as though anything short of the top will be inadequate. He really seems to have a first rate chance of making the first division.

Just Courtesy, Is Explanation Of Jacobs' Salute in Germany

By Paul Gallico.

A Special Correspondent.

NEW YORK, March 22.—These times are getting wackier and wackier. Herr Direktor Yacobs, otherwise Joe Jacobs, manager of Max Schmeling, former heavyweight champion of the world, is not the subject for considerable abuse, threats for reprisals, boycott, et cetera, because of a photograph taken in the Hamburg ring after the Schmeling-Hamas fight with his right arm raised in what is supposed to be the Nazi salute.

It is also, I beg leave to point out, the Fascist salute. It seems to me before we throw the Herr Direktor out of the party that there ought to be an inquiry and the Herr Direktor given a chance to explain whether he was saluting or reaching for another cigar. Also, before turning Yussel forcibly into a goy we ought to find out just what it was he was saluting. Maybe the flag was going by or they were playing the local national anthem.

It is a custom in this country to remove one's hat when the flag goes by. And when the national anthem, "The Star-Spangled Banner," is played, one uncovers and

Picard Leads Charleston Golf Field

Adds 71 for 208 Total; Runyan in Running After 66 Round.

By the Associated Press.

CHARLESTON, S. C., March 22. Henry Picard, of Hershey, Pa., today produced a par-equalling 71 and increased his lead to 3 strokes at the three-quarters mark of the $3,000 Charleston open golf tournament. Harry Cooper, of Chicago, his leading rival after 36 holes, required a 73.

As Cooper slipped, Harold McSpaden, Kansas City youngster, took over second place with a 71 for a total of 211, against Picard's 208.

In Three-Way Tie.

Cox, who opened with a 69 but carded a 78 yesterday, was tied at 214 with Leo Mallory, Noroton, Conn.; Byron Nelson, Texarkana, Tex., and Ky Laffoon, of Denver.

Despite his 67, Smith was still well back of the leaders with an aggregate of 216. Plagued with putting difficulties on his earlier rounds, he scored 75 and 74.

Walter Hagen, who got into the tournament a day late, could do no better than 78 on his second round today and had a total of 151 for 36 holes. He will play two rounds tomorrow in the tournament windup.

Wood, Sarazen Fail.

Among the stars well down the scoring list were Craig Wood, long-hitting Deal, N. J., pro, and Gene Sarazen, the former open champion. Wood's third round brought a 73, his lowest score of the tournament, and left him at 227. Sarazen took a 76 for a total 220.

In scoring his 66, Runyan toured the second nine of the 6,420-yard course in 31, bagging two birdies and an eagle. He started his round with a 5 for the first hole, one over par, but was never over again and had two birdies on the first nine.

Hoyt, Yale Swimmer, Sets College Record

New York, March 22 (AP).—Norris Hoyt, of Yale, smashed the intercollegiate record for the 300-yard medley swim in the preliminary heats of the twenty-ninth annual individual championships of the Intercollegiate Swimming Association today. He covered the distance in 3:46.4 to better by eight-tenths of a second the old National Intercollegiate and I. S. A. marks established by Walter Ashley, of Rutgers.

Horse at Houston Pays $234 Mutuel

Miss Petrina Triumphs by Half Length.

By the Associated Press.

Houston, Tex., March 22.—The longest-priced winner in Texas' racing history turned up in the first race at Epsom Downs today when Miss Petrina, a maiden 2-year-old filly, owned by M. W. Buck, scampered home in front of 11 others of her age to return $234.60 to win, $98.40 to place and $40.50 to show for a $2 ticket in the mutuel machines.

The daughter of Broadway Jones-The Gleamer finished half a length in front of W. A. Mikel's Johnny Bane. W. C. Goodloe's Virbet was third.

Witt and Snively Victors in National Wrestling.

By the Associated Press.

Bethlehem, Pa., March 22 (AP).—John Burgess, V. M. I., threw Vern Heiser, Ohio State, half Nelson and wrist lock. Time, 9:45.

Robert Kyle, West Virginia, defeated Adolph Miller, Temple. Time advantage, 4:21.

Bethlehem, Pa., March 22.—Three wrestlers from Virginia colleges tugged their way through the first round of the eighth annual National Collegiate Wrestling Tournament here today as William Glass, of the University of West Virginia, fell by the wayside.

Glenn Snively, Washington and Lee Southern Conference welterweight champion, scored the first victory of the day by defeating Eugene Howe, of Kansas, by a time advantage, 9.09.

William Currence, a V. M. I. representative, defeated Victor Kodis, Springfield, on a time advantage, 5.15 in the 165-pound division.

Archie Witt, also representing V. M. I. in the 135-pound division, tossed Richard Campbell, of Knasas State, with a chancery and crotch hold in 6.58.

Glass bowed out to Wayne Martin, of Oklahoma, being thrown with a chancery and bar arm in 8.45.

The tournament has drawn the largest field of contenders in its history. Forty schools, represented by 139 grapplers, were shooting at the title defended by Oklahoma A. and M.

Cuningham Wins, Venzke Is Second

Peacock Makes Sensational Running Broad Jump.

By the Associated Press.

Toronto, March 22.—Glenn Cunningham continued his sweep through the season's mile fixtures tonight, winning the eight furlong feature of the Maple Leaf Indoor Games in 4:17.7. The time failed to eclipse the new Canadian indoor record of 4:16.6 Cunningham set at Hamilton Wednesday night.

Cunningham trailed during the early running but came up fast on the last two laps to beat his University of Pennsylvania rival, Gene Venzke, for the twentieth time in 21 meetings. Bill, Daley, of Detroit University, wos third.

Eulace Peacock, Temple University Negro, eclipsed all Canadian broad jump recordps when he cleared 24 feet 8½ inches. Threre was no recognized indoor record for this event but Jesse Owens, Ohio State all-around star, holds the outdoor mark of 24 feet 7¾ inches.

1936 Open Due For Eastern Course

Baltusrol (N. J.) Club Is Chosen; Site of Other Tourneys in Pact.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 22.—The 1936 open golf championship was awarded today by the United States Golf Association to the Baltusrol Golf Club, Short Hills, N. J., the dates to be announced later.

Assignment of the 72-hole medal play tournament to Baltusrol virtually assures the East of the three major championships next year. The 1935 amateur and women's tournaments will be played in Cleveland and Minneapolis, respectively. If the usual course is followed, these championships will revert to the East in 1936. This year's open championship will be played on June 6, 7 and 8 at Oakmont, near Pittsburgh.

Baltusrol, the scene of six U. S. G. A. championships in the past—open in 1903 and 1915, amateur in 1904 and 1926 and the women's in 1901 and 1911—is one of the longest-standing member clubs of the parent organization.

Organized in 1895.

It was organized in 1895 by Louis Keller, who built a nine-hole course on his estate, and the same year became a member of the U. S. G. A., which at the time was only 1 year old.

During the intervening 40 years the club has developed into two 18-hole courses, cradled in attractive woodland, and is regarded as one of the foremost tests of the game in the country. The courses measure 6,500 yards each with pars of 72.

Of the chatmpionships held there in the past, the most memorable is the 1926 Amateur Tournament. The redoubtable Bobby Jones was beaten in the 36-hole final by George von Elm, 2 up and 1 to play.

H. Chandler Egan, the 50-year-old Oregon apple rancher and a member of the 1934 international Walker Cup team, won his first amateur championship at Baltusrol.

Grimm Is Summoned To Chicago Jury Duty

Chicago, March 22 (AP).—Unless Federal Judge John P. Barnes is a baseball fan, Manager Charlie Grimm of the Chicago Cubs may have to sandwich in some jury duty with his master-minding on the field in April.

It was revealed today that Grimm, who already has ailing pitchers and lack of hitting about which to worry, has been summoned for petit jury service throughout April in Judge Barnes' court. However, it may be necessary to send the sheriff after the Cub pilot, who is not due in Chicago, according to the exhibition schedule, until April 5.

Nats Open Today With Kansas City

By a Staff Correspondent.

Biloxi, Miss., March 22.—With two victories and two defeats to show for their exhibition games this season, the Nats journey to Mobile tomorrow to open a two-game series with the Kansas City Club which trains there.

The only two Washington regulars who have not yet had a turn on the mound, Monte Weaver and Bump Hadley, will pitch for the Nats, who will make the trip by automobile, returning to Biloxi after each game.

On Sunday, here, a team composed of Washington Reserves will meet Albany. Al Thomas will pitch against the Nats' farmhands and as an inducement for local fans, Heinie Manush and another regular will be in the line-up of the reserves.

Biloxi Seeking Cubs for '36 Training

A Staff Correspondent.

BILOXI, Miss., March 22.—In an effort to bring the Washington club back to Biloxi for training next spring, the city's Chamber of Commerce is negotiating with the Chicago Cubs to share Biloxi as a training camp with the Nats, it was learned today.

The Cubs have expressed dissatisfaction with their Catalina Island training camp in California as a result of the lack of big league competition, and Clark Griffith, owner of the Nats, has made the same complaint against Biloxi.

Griffith has not yet designated Biloxi as the Nats' 1936 camp, but local officials believe the city will win the selection if the Cubs can be persuaded to train here also, thus affording both teams big league competition in the training games.

It is the plan of the city to build a park adjoining the field occupied by the Washington club to accommodate the Cubs, should the invitation be accepted.

Boston, March 22 (U.P.).—A bill to permit indoor hockey on Sundays between 1:30 p. m. and 11 p. m. was enacted by the Legislature and is expected to be signed by Gov. Curley next week.

Two Miscues In Outfield Costly

Whitehill Gives One Run and Four Hits in Five Innings on Mound.

Brown, Lee Effective; Powell Misses Fly, Hale Gets Homer.

By Shirley L. Povich.

A Staff Correspondent.

BILOXI, Miss., March 22. — The Nats' batting attack, if any, was consistent today—consistently lacking. Against two Cleveland pitchers the Washingtonians maintained the evil tenor of their batting ways and the upshot of it all was a 3-0 defeat.

Three puny hits, one a bunt, another a drooping single behind second base, and the third a grounder that skidded through the infield, was the portion of the Nats against Clint Brown and Thornton Lee, on the mound for the Indians.

At that, there was a measure of satisfaction for Manager Bucky Harris, who saw his own pitchers, Earl Whitehill and Bobby Burke, also pitch shutout ball, only to be betrayed by fielding lapses by their mates, notably and particularly Heinie Manush and Jake Powell.

Whitehill, making his first start on the mound, permitted the Indians four hits in his five-inning term, no two in any one inning, but the 1-0 deficit that he released into the care of Bobby Burke at the start of the sixth was attributable only to an error by Manush.

In Duel With Brown.

Whitehill was locked in a pitching duel with Brown through the first five innings, but when Kamm singled to start the fifth and took an extra base on Manush's fumble, he ultimately was in a position to score from third on Trosky's long fly to Powell with what stood up as the winning run.

Bobby Burke allowed the Indians only two hits in the four innings he worked, but he, too, was cheated of a scoreless effort when Jake Powell, batting hero of yesterday, became the fielding goat today.

Averill was on second base when Hale slammed a long fly into center field. Powell bided his time and then dashed in toward the diamond only to discover that the ball was passing over his head and that he was on the wrong tack. He dashed right back again, but too late to

Haines Rides Efficiently On Colt

Daily Double Is $407; McCrossen Banned for Rough Riding.

By the Associated Press.

TROPICAL PARK, Fla., March 22.—Mrs. W. R. Flemming's Hardware, a 3-year-old that was up against it in the Royal Palm Handicap last Saturday, was dropped into the right spot in the Vizcaya Purse of 1 1-16 miles here this afternoon. The gelded son of Scotch Broom, backed down to $4.70 favoritism, led home C. W. Muller's well-played Guapito by two lengths under the efficient guidance of the smiling Glen Haines. I. J. Collins' speedy but faint-hearted Elwawa was a distanced third in the field of five. The time was 1:45 2-5.

Hardware was restrained off the pace until midway of the back stretch. Elwawa outran My Purchase in the early stages, but when Hardware began his move the pacemaker offered little resistance. Guapito, unable to keep up early, shot up on the inside to challenge Hardware as they sailed around the home turn, but the Argentine veteran was no match for the younger thoroughbred, which was well in hand passing the wire. My Purchase could not threaten Elwawa for the short end of the purse.

Smuggled In Wins.

Smuggled In, one of several paddock tips, proved much the best of the dozen sprinters in the initial contest here today. Alkali, another that was whispered around as a good thing before the race, was three lengths behind, while beating Waterset a like distance for the place.

Whiskarita was an upset winner of the juvenile dash for maiden fillies. With Bobby Merritt hustling her along from the start, the daughter of Whiskalong held her field safe for speed throughout the running and registered in a drive by a length and a half. She paid $30.80. Evening Hour, heavily supported, was a weakly handled second, a half-length before Peloria. Cal Rainey was thrown from Margot S. turning out of the back stretch, but escaped injury.

Jockey Clarence McCrossen was suspended for the remainder of the meeting by the stewards for rough riding on Monks Gold in the race.

Fizzaz came within a nose of breaking the ice for favorite players in the third race. Indeed, it was so close between this filly and the long shot Ree that the judges were booed long and lustily. The show went to another outsider, Foreign Lady, which closed a world of ground to finish a length behind. Ree stole a long lead and appeared safely home, but she tired in the last furlong and Fizzaz, closing fast on the outside, appeared to have won at an angle just before the finish line. Ree paid $19.30.

Dean Swift Repeats.

Dean Swift, a recent graduate from the maiden ranks, stepped up into more highbrow company in the fourth race and came through with another victory. The Maemere farm's gelding, with Clarence McCrossen accepting his next to last mount of the meeting due to a suspension, was the first favorite to click, paying $3.30. The son of Haste was badly shut off at the far turn. McCrossen had to go around the outside. His mount opened up a safe lead and scored by nearly two lengths over Erin Lad, one that was in slightly close quarters around the bend. Chance Ray was a rapid finishing third, a half length farther back.

Winged Flight had his wings working in good order today and the gelding, saddled by Former Jockey Frank Coltiletti, was up to win the sixth race by a half length at $29.80 for two. Uncle Billy was an easy second over Long Count. Happy Find, which drew the bulk of the play, stopped badly after racing with Uncle Billy in the early stages. Winged Flight broke a bit slowly but ran over the leaders when fully in his stride.

Legionary, $10.30, scored by a length and a half over Idle Along in the final contest, with Fervid third.

Dear Al: Tropical Park, March 22.

Trainer Hirsch Jacobs will have the largest string of horses at Bowie this spring. He leaves here Sunday with a group of 21 head and he has 17 more in training up in Prince Georges County. It is unlikely that Jockey Glen Haines will be seen in action at Bowie. He leaves Monday for Kentucky to work horses and expects to leave there for New York later. Jeton, the horse that crashed through the rail in yesterday's seventh race, was destroyed. Jockey Wayne Wright will travel to Texas to ride Furfiber in the Texas Derby at Arlington Downs. Wright is another crack rider who may not be present at Bowie. Apprentice Clayton Phillips rode his first winner on Caerleon in yesterday's seventh race. He is a Colorado boy and is 16 years old. Phillips can do 98 pounds. Clocker Mike and Trainer Joe send their regards to you, Al, and wish you a quick recovery. Give my regards to all the Walter Reed nurses. BIEL.

First race—The entry of Prince Drake and Last Time seems to have a good chance of collecting the purse in the opener with the former, the best of the pair, assigned to Jockey Wayne Wright. Moane Keala and El Bandidio will be ready to fight it out if the top pair makes mistakes.

Second race—Canter Boy is a sharp horse at present and the soft track will enhance his chances. I expect no mistakes from Jockey Lynch. Postscript and Bichloride will have a little odds on them and will be dangerous in the stretch run.

Third race—Wise King and Willow Wood will do the chief running in this field of juveniles, I believe. Both are in splendid condition, as their recent races attest. Bushmaster is a possible surprise.

Fourth race—Broad Meadows has defeated this kind of opposition before. He seems capable of carrying that 116-pound assignment, especially when it will be mostly Earl Porter. Dokas, under Wright's handling, must be respected. Ridge Mor is a possible surprise.

Fifth race—Paradisical gets in with light weight and breaks off the rail. Lindberg is a hustling rider with the money in sight, and I expect him to be cracking down.

Sixth race—Beaver Dam might take care of these horses at the shift in weights. Fidelis and Don Guzman have all their speed, but are rather heavily burdened. Let's see if Sabula can win when I don't pick him.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—WHISKARITA, $30.80, $9.30, $5.80; EVENING HOUR, $3.20; $2.80; PELORIA, $3.80.

WHISKARITA, a rapid breaker, was rushed into long lead, came out a bit in stretch, but held on gamely. EVENING HOUR was poorly ridden. PELORIA was hard ridden all the way. EPINEL, well up from the start, had no mishap. MISS GLORY ran a good race. MARGOT S lost rider just after turning out of back stretch.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $700. Claiming price, $1,500. For 3-year-olds Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:34. Off at 3:37½. Winner, F. J. Ryan's ch. f. (3), by Upset—America. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $525; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 1:13.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—REE, $19.20, $8.80, $7.00; FIZZAZ, $5.10, $4.50; FOREIGN LADY, $15.70.

REE was sent into a long lead in the first furlong and, showing excellent speed, saved ground and just lasted to win. FIZZAZ was rated along to the stretch, where she and Maple Queen raced neck and neck, but the latter was no match for another stride. FOREIGN LADY from a slow break closed a big gap and was a fast-going third. MAPLE QUEEN tired chasing the pace. GOOD AIM was outrun.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $700. For 3-year-old colts and geldings. Start good. Won handily; place, driving. Went to post at 4:09½. Off at 4:11½. Winner, Maemere Farm's br. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—HARDWARE, $4.70, $2.90, $2.50; GUAPITO, $3.60, $3.20; ELWAWA, $2.90.

HARDWARE ran good race. He was rated behind the pace for half a mile, moved up and into lead turning out of back stretch, and drew away easily in final furlong. GUAPITO broke very slow, was sent up gradually, came to inside around turn and finished fast. ELWAWA rushed into lead, showed good speed, but weakened at end of six furlongs. MY PURCHASE was a stout factor for seven furlongs. KINDACORN was outrun.

SIXTH RACE—One mile. Purse, $700. Claiming prices, $1,500 to $1,200. For 3-year-olds Start good. Won driving; place, easily. Went to post at 5:19. Off at 5:19½. Winner, Mrs. F. P. Coltiletti's ch. g. (3), by Sumair—Falconry. Trained by F. P. Coltiletti. Value to winner, $525; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 1:41.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—WINGED FLIGHT, $29.80, $8.60, $6.10; UNCLE BILLY, $3.70. LONG COUNT, $10.80.

SEVENTH RACE—One mile. Purse, $700. Claiming price, $1,600. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, easily. Went to post at 5:55½. Off at 5:59. Winner, Mrs. Nat Ray's b. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—LEGIONARY, $10.30, $8.40, $4.40; IDLE ALONG, $5.00. $3.60; FERVID, $4.00.

LEGIONARY, displaying a world of speed, ran into long lead going into first turn, was well rated along, saved ground and held IDLE VICTORY safe. The latter moved up gamely in run down back stretch and stood long drive well. FERVID was hard ridden all the way. NOBLE SPIRIT was on the inside for entire trip. HEIRESS came around field and finished fast. DE VALERA was unable to keep up.

Head Play Likely Choice in Test Over Muddy Bay Meadows Track.

By the Associated Press.

SAN MATEO, Calif., March 22.—One of the smallest fields ever to go after a rich stake in this section will face the barrier tomorrow in the $25,000 added Bay Meadows Handicap, a mile and one-eighth gallop for 3-year-olds and upward.

Eight thoroughbreds, half the original field nominated, will run for the winner's share of a classic expected to be worth approximately $28,000. The winner will take about $21,000.

Intermittent rain throughout the week, and more forecast for tomorrow, boosted the stock of such known mudders as Head Play, Dark Winter and Thomasville, meanwhile causing the withdrawal of Royal Blunder and Frank Ormont.

Azucar, winner of the recent $100,000 added Santa Anita Handicap, was declared out some time ago because of a hoof injury. His stablemate, Dark Winter, will run under the Fred M. Alger colors.

Head Play Likely Choice.

Head Play, winner of the recent $10,000 San Juan Capistrano stakes at Santa Anita, probably will go to the post as favorite, with Time Supply, Thomasville, Dark Winter and Gusto as main contenders.

Ladysman, second to Azucar in the big southern California race, is known as a dry track horse, his sire, Pompey, however was an outstanding mud runner. Ladysman will be coupled as a W. R. Coe entry with Bluebeard, Kentucky Derby nominee and the only 3-year-old in the race. Packing the lightest weight at 97 pounds, Bluebeard is regarded as a possible surprise horse, provided he shows a liking for heavy going. He is a good front runner and will have an experienced rider, Clyde Turk, up.

The field:

Horse	Jockey	Weight	Owner
Ladysman	H. Richards	118	W. R. Coe
Head Play	C. Kurtsinger	118	S. B. Mason
Time Supply	L. Luther	116	P. Carreaud
Gusto	H. Simmons	116	J. Schwartz
Dark Winter	No Boy	105	F. M. Alger
Thomasville	J. Longden	102	P. M. Pike
Bluebeard	C. Turk	97	W. R. Coe
Top Row	F. Mauro	107	A. A. Baron

Central High Tops Team Scoring

By John R. Vosburgh.

WHILE four powerful swimming clubs fought yard for yard for the men's team championship held for the last two years by George Washington University, smooth-stroking Rita Augusterfer, pride of Washington's feminine swimming ranks, flashed to a new women's 100-yard free-style record for the Capital to steal the opening night laurels of the Sixth annual District A. A. U. swimming championships last night in the Shoreham Pool.

The experienced young lady, holder of virtually all the District freestyle championships from the 100-yard freestyle through the middle-distance events, impressively retained her status as the queen of Washington waters by shattering the 3-year-old record by 3 3-5 seconds. Her time was 1:08 2-5, the fastest century ever raced by either a visiting or resident women swimmer in the District.

Defending Champion.

The best previous time was 1:09 3-5 set by Bernice Lapp, of Penn Hall School, Pennsylvania, while Miss Augusterfer's District record, held in conjunction with Caroline Cox, was 1:12. Miss Augusterfer was the defending champion. Her sensational, sustained sprint from start to finish carried her far ahead of the District outdoor 50-yard champion, Anna Bono, and Jean Rawls, District outdoor 100-yard champion, and she won by half a pool length.

The tooth-and-nail battle for the men's title developed into as close a struggle as had been anticipated, with Central winning the only final of the evening, the 300-yard medley relay, to take a 2-point lead over the Central Y. M. C. A., which placed teams second and fourth. George Washington goes into the second night's events in third place trailing the "Y's" 8 points with four. The Shoreham team did not place in the relay.

Men's Results.

Finals.

300-yard medley relay—Won by Central High Team "A" (Stuart Fitzhugh, Morris Goldberg, Robert Jordan); second, Y. M. C. A. Team "A" (James Orme, Knox Moncure, Harry Toulmin); third, George Washington U. (John Hain, Dyer Ghormley, Beverley Carter); fourth, Y. M. C. A. Team "B" (Bill Marmion, Paul Wilson, John Mullady). Time, 3:26 2-5.

M. C. A.); third, Karl Vartia (G. W.). Third Heat—Won by Buddy Hodgson (Shoreham); second, Henry Vonderbrugge (G. W.); third, Jack Flett (Central). Fourth Heat—Won by Griscom Randall (Y. M. C. A.); second, Ballard Jamison (Central); third, John Molyneaux (G. W.). (Winners and Kelly, fastest second place winner qualified for finals).

220-yard free style: First Heat—Won by Ernie Boggs (Y. M. C. A.); second, Beverley Carter (G. W.); third, Carroll Brown (Central). Second Heat—Won by Robert Jordan (Central); second, Ben Catchings (G. W.); third, Ed Murphy (Y. M. C. A.). (Winners of first and second places and Brown, fastest third qualified for finals).

100-yard free style: First Heat—Won by John Mullady (Y. M. C. A.); second, Beverley Carter (G. W.); third, Joseph Kelly (Central). Second Heat—Won by Harry Toulmin (Y. M. C. A.); second, Jack Flett (Central); third, Curtis Porterfield (Central). Third Heat—Won by La Salle (Central); second, Hooper McQueen (Central); third, Ballard Jamieson (Central). (Henry Vonderbrugge of G. W. finished second but disqualified for cutting across McQueen). (Winners and Carter and Flett, fastest second place winners qualified for finals).

Women's Results.

Finals.

100-yard free style—Won by Rita Augusterfer (Shoreham); second, Jean Rawls (Shoreham); third, Ann Bono (Shoreham). Time, 1:08 2-5. (New record: former District record, 1:12, held by Miss Augusterfer and Caroline Cox.)

100-yard back stroke—Won by Leonora Taube (Shoreham); second, Lydia Cort (Shoreham); third, Helen Richardson (Maryland Club Gardens). Time, 1:25 3-5.

Heats.

50-yard free style: First heat—Won by Ann Bono; second, Annabelle Whaler (Shoreham); third, Gertrude Theunissen (Shoreham). Second heat—Won by Rita Augusterfer; second, Lydia Cort; third, Frances Campbell (Western High). Winners and Miss Theunissen, fastest third, qualified.)

Bedwell Returns For Bowie Meet

H. Guy Bedwell, master of Yarrow Brae Farm at Savage who holds the enviable record of having topped America's list of trainers seven times, is bringing 26 horses to Bowie from California for the 11-day meeting, which opens on April 2.

Heading Bedwell's charges is Mad Frump, one that developed into a topnotch handicap horse after being claimed last fall from C. V. Whitney.

A. C. Compton, of California, for whom Bedwell trains, took the strings off his bankroll this winter and allowed the Marylander to purchase whenever he saw fit. As a result, Bedwell is returning East with one of the best balanced strings in training and is certain to have something vital to say as to where the Southern Maryland Agricultural Association's purses will go next month.

After setting aside stalls for Bedwell, Track Superintendent Dick Pending alloted stall space to L. (Sport) Haymaker, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Chapman of Laurel, R. Watts, E. Townsend, J. Savage, James Lavery, N. Weaver and H. C. Vaughn.

Colonials' Tennis Team Will Open Against Pitt

George Washington's tennis team will open an eight-match schedule April 11, meeting Pittsburgh's courtmen in Washington at a site to be selected. Max Farrington, assistant director of athletics, announced seven of the matches yesterday.

The Colonials will meet Lafayette, Johns Hopkins, V. P. I., Duke, Delaware and Temple. Teddy Pierce is captain of the squad. Spencer Howell and Joe Dial, sophomores, are considered potential varsity timber and have been going well in practice.

Athletics Break Camp; To Play Giants Today

Fort Myers, Fla., March 22 (AP).—Manager Connie Mack and his Philadelphia Athletics broke training camp and entrained tonight on an exhibition tour through the South, leaving Third Sacker Buck Fausett behind.

The A's play the New York Giants in St. Augustine tomorrow, then move on to Jacksonville for a second game with the New Yorkers Monday. Fausett joins Charley English, lopped from the squad yesterday, in returning to Galveston.

Compact Loop Is Urged by Bernier

Coach at Hampden-Sydney Sees South Atlantic Facing Troubles.

By the Associated Press.

HAMPDEN-SYDNEY, Va., March 22.—Geographical and financial difficulties face the new South Atlantic Conference, Athletic Director Charles A. Bernier, of Hampden-Sydney College, said today, although he believes a compact league is necessary for the athletic welfare of small colleges.

Bernier, one of the prime movers in the formation of the Chesapeake Conference which some observers think is on its last legs, believes that "too much territory might defeat the very purpose of the organization," which embraces North and South Carolina and Virginia.

"Another obstacle which might retard the league," he commented, "would be to admit colleges that do not or can not maintain a program of at least four sports."

To Make Decision.

Hampden-Sydney's decision whether to accept or decline the invitation to join the proposed conference will be made at the next meeting of the athletic council on a date not yet announced.

Lynchburg College, another Virginia member of the Chesapeake Conference, a school which does not put a football team on the field, has endorsed the South Atlantic Intercollegiate Conference by sending a team to the basketball tournament. Two others of the Old Dominion's Chesapeake Conference members—Randolph-Macon and Bridgewater—have received invitations and Randolph-Macon has shown more than passing interest in the new circuit.

Others Asked to Join.

Emory and Henry College and Roanoke in the Virginia Conference have been invited to join the South Atlantic, but Emory and Henry does not intend to desert the four-team State League, Athletic Director Pedie Jackson said, so long as the other three entries remain faithful. Roanoke has not indicated what course it will follow, although it was represented at the organization meeting in Charlotte.

Regardless of what course Hampden-Sydney follows, Coach Bernier believes the new conference "has its place and deserves the support of everyone interested in better athletics." He complimented Wade Ison of Charlotte and others who sponsored the basketball tournament and the organization meeting of the new league.

"It takes time to organize and get a group of this kind to work smoothly," Bernier continued. "The small colleges have played some good games and deserve the patronage of the public. A compact league with its members working for the best interest of athletics as a whole should prove a success."

Jefferson High Trims Warrenton for Title

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Warrenton, Va., March 22.—Running up a 27-6 lead on its rival in the first half, Jefferson High School tonight defeated Warrenton High School, 52-16, for the Northern Virginia scholastic basket ball championship. The winners completely outclassed the home team.

Earman and Martin starred for the winners, who converted all of 20 free throws awarded them.

Handley High Primes For Five Track Meets

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Winchester, March 22.—With several letter men as a nucleus, including Tirrift, State champion in the 440-dash; Crisman, State and Cumberland Valley champion and undefeated in the shot-put, and Miller, State champion in the high jump and a strong contender in the pole vault, Coach "Snag" Sargeant and his assistant, John Parsons, are busy grooming the Handley High judges for a schedule of five meets.

The feature, so far as interest here is concerned, will be the Cumberland Valley Athletic League meet, scheduled for May 18, when Handley, Cumberland, Hagerstown and Martinsburg will vie for honors which last year were lost by Handley to Hagerstown by a half-point margin.

Bob Godwin Is Stopped By McCoy in 8th Round

Boston, March 22 (U.P.).—Al McCoy, fast-stepping Boston light-heavyweight, scored a technical knockout over Bob Godwin, of Florida, in the eighth round of their scheduled 10-round bout before about 3,000 fans at Boston Garden tonight.

Godwin, who fought a game but losing battle all the way, was bleeding freely from the nose when his seconds tossed the towel 2 minutes 35 seconds along in the eighth round. McCoy floored Godwin for a 9-count in the third with lefts and rights to the jaw, but most of the way Al was content to outbox Godwin and jolt him with short jabs.

Central's Nine Due to Play 20 Games

Card Not Yet Completed; 19 Contests Faced by Western.

WHILE Central High has not yet completed its baseball schedule, which Coach Jack Ray predicts will call for 20 games, it is clear from the cards of the other four high schools released thus far that the Mount Pleasanters are facing the longest campaign of any of the Capital's public schools.

Western, with 19 games, has a program nearly as severe as that of the Raymen, but Eastern, Roosevelt and Tech are facing briefer campaigns. Eastern, the interhigh champion, will play 16 games; Western, 15, and Tech, 10. The Techmen will play no games on their home field.

Western and Central open the season first, Western meeting National Training School, April 2, on the Trainers' diamond, and Central playing Alexandria on the same day at Alexandria.

Series Starts April 30.

The interhigh series opens April 30, with Western and Tech playing the inaugural at Eastern Stadium, where all the series games will be held.

Eastern—Joe Sullivan, pitcher.

Central—Shorty Chumbris, shortstop; Lefty Chumbris, center field; Walter Smith and Lefty Rowles, pitchers; Don Dunlap, catcher.

Lawson Little To Return to Golf Wars

Will Leave This Week-End on Tour; Washington on Itinerary.

By the Associated Press.

PALO ALTO, Calif., March 22.—W. Lawson Little, jr., will toss his clubs back into the golfing wars in the next few days.

The world's top-ranking amateur of 1934, just finished with his end-quarter examinations at Stanford University, said today he would leave Saturday or Sunday on a tour that eventually will involve defense of his twin crowns, the national and British titles, and probably a shot at the British Open.

As for his chances to repeat his spectacular double triumph of a year ago, he said, "I don't think I'll be as lucky as I was last year. I'd like to give lots of odds on that."

Record Not Imposing.

The reigning champion's record was not imposing through the fall and winter. He ranked No. 3 on the Stanford golf squad part of the time, two of his teammates beating him in "ladder" matches. His stay in the San Francisco match play open tuornament in January was brief.

Nevertheless, Little is noted for his competitive ability when the stakes are high and the going tough, and his attitude indicated he did not plan on merely a joy ride abroad.

Examinations have cut into possible practice time lately, but his most recent scores over the Stanford course indicated he was on his way to the peak.

Shoots 68 and 69.

"I haven't done much playing lately," he said, then added, "but two of the last three times I played I had a 68 and 69."

The Stanford links are known as a tough par 71.

Little's campaign will take him first to compete in Bobby Jones' masters tournament at Augusta, Ga., early next month. Afterward he pans to get in some practice at Pinehurst, N. C., and Washington, D. C., before sailing for England, probably on April 27, to prepare for the British Amateur late in May.

He expects to stay over for the British Open, thus missing the United States Open, but he will be back to defend his American Amateur title in September.

arises, if seated, and if one can remember back to those dear days of uniforms and drill, one stands at something one hopes looks like at attention.

This applies to citizens of the United States and foreigners alike. The foreigners do it out of courtesy. If they don't, there is always somebody around to knock their hats off, or yank them up out of their chairs.

In Germany they do not take their hats off when the flag goes by. Instead, they stand facing the banner and extend their right arms in salute. Foreigners do it too as a matter of return courtesy, merely as a sort of exchange of compliments. I stood up in the theaters in London when they played "God Save the King," and expect Englishmen to stand to the strains of "The Star-Spangled Banner."

Thus, I am neither shocked nor outraged when I see a photograph of the Herr Direktor Yacobs giving a sort of luke-warm salute to something or some one. I believe at that, on closer inspection of the phatal photo that Yussel managed to nullify it, either by crossing his fingers, or by hanging on to his inevitable cigar which takes the curse off it.

You are not supposed to salute the flag clutching a fat, black cigar. The thought strikes me that it takes plenty of moxie for Yus to go to Germany anyway to stand behind Schmeling, and plenty of the same and loyalty on the part of Schmeling to stick by Yussel.

But I trust that all hands are kidding anyway, because if they are not it is very tiresome and comes under the head of not minding their own business. Not minding one's own business is fast growing into the second largest national industry. There is too much boycotting and coercing, and telling other people what to do and what not to do.

If the boys want to boycott Schmeling because of Jacobs, they will be missing a pretty good prize fight next June when he fights Max Baer for the second time. But I didn't notice any one boycotting Schmeling in Germany because of the presence of the Herr Direktor.

It seems to me that the folks back here had best get used to this saluting business anyway, because there is going to be a lot of it going on at the Olympic games in Berlin next summer. Every time the American flag is run up to the top of the flag pole to signal an American victory (Ceremonie Olympique Protocolaire) the band will play the "Star-Spangled Banner," and the entire audience of Germans will rise with the Americans, I am sure, and with the French and with the Italians when their flags are honored.

I do not imagine that we will wish to be wanting in the return courtesies, and if the Germans like to have their flag pointed at instead of heads uncovered, why it looks just about the same to me.

There are going to be Jews on our Olympic team. They are going to be well and courteously treated by the Germans. And I imagine when the groups of athletes pay their respects to the various flags, that these Jewish athletes will join in courtesy to their hosts, and that there may even be photographs taken of this dangerous and inflammatory act.

And I suppose there will be busybodies who will write outraged pieces in the paper and call meetings and vote resolutions, and all the old bitter feelings will be kept well steeped in gall. This is such a lovely, peaceful, brotherly world.

Lee-Jackson Alumnae, Alexers Win in Tourney

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Alexandria, Va., March 22.—In the opening games of the Alexandria Independent Girls Basket Ball League, played at Armory Hall here tonight, the Lee-Jackson Alumnae defeated the Fair Sex Celtics, 35 to 9, and the Alexers trounced the St. Ritas, 26 to 5.

prevent the ball from going for a home run that gave the Indians their 3-0 lead. It was as beautiful a piece of misjudging a fly as has been witnessed since Goose Goslin was in his prime at the business.

Off Burke and Whitehill, the Indians amassed six hits.

Makes Comeback.

But Clint Brown was the pitching hero of the day. Making a comeback after a batted ball broke his left arm last season, Brown held the Nats both hitless and runless during the first three innings. When Buddy Myer walked in the fourth with one out, he became the first Nat to reach base. It was the same inning that Johnny Stone made the first hit off Brown, the single between Hale and Kamm. But Travis left both runners stranded.

The Nats' second hit of the game was Red Kress' short fly behind second base in the fifth inning with two out. Jake Powell made the third and final hit when he beat out a perfect bunt, despite a perfect play by Hale in the sixth inning, but he, too, never advanced beyond second base. In fact, no Washington base runner succeeded in reaching third.

Against Thornton Lee, remembered as the fellow who beaned Travis last summer, the Nats were equally ineffective. The only player to reach base in those last three innings against Lee, was Lyn Lary, who received the benefit of Kamm's error.

Manager Bucky Harris manifested that he is intent on giving Red Kress a thorough trial at the shortstop job when, for the third consecutive day, he started him at the post in preference to Lyn Lary, the accepted No. 1 choice. Kress distinguished himself by his fielding today.

After attempting to batter down the grandstand in an effort to get a pop foul twice previously, Jack Redmond, the club's No. 3 catcher, contributed the fielding gem of the game when he took the great circle route to the Nats' dugout and snared Lee's pop foul in a butterfly flutter with his mitt almost behind his back.

Front Royal All-Stars Organized for Season

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Front Royal, Va., March 21.—The All-Stars baseball team has been organized here with the election of Mayor B. J. Hillidge as president, and Harold W. Smith as vice president. These officers, with Dr. W. W. Sonner, Dr. L. F. Hansbrough and T. S. Duncan, will constitute the board of directors. The election of a secretary-treasurer was deferred and will be named by the board of directors, as also will a manager.

Opinion is favorable toward authorizing an All-Stars acceptance of a franchise in a Shenandoah Valley league. Harrisonburg, Culpeper and Charlottesville have decided definitely to enter the league and, besides Front Royal, Waynesboro, Staunton, Winchester and Orange, are considering making it an eight-team league.

Third Corps Is Ready For Baseball Drills

Baltimore, March 22 (AP).—With the basket ball and boxing championships now settled, the Third Corps Regular Army men are beginning spring baseball practice.

Col. Elvid Hunt, staff officer in charge of athletics at Thirds Corps Area headquarters, said the corps area baseball league will be divided into four separate groups this year. Group champions will be determined by a series of games, and the four winning teams will play a championship series toward the end of the season.

Practice Game Is Arranged By Celtics

Will Meet Mount Vernon Independents March 31 at Baggett's.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

ALEXANDRIA, Va., March 22.—The St. Mary's Celtics will meet the Mount Vernon Independents in a practice game at Baggett's Stadium, Sunday, March 31.

The Celtics will practice three days next week in preparation for the game with the Fairfax County team, in addition to the usual Sunday afternoon session. When the schedule gets under way the Celts will have only 12 men on their roster, according to Manager Theodore Beach, and Coach Kidwell will start cutting the squad shortly.

Jimmy Titcomb, sensational southpaw with the Alexandria High School nine last year, will try out for the team.

John Travers has been appointed manager of the Fraternal Order of Eagles' nine. A coach will be selected next week.

Travers has already signed for the opening game on April 14, the Eagles opposing the White Oak A. C., of Fredericksburg. A three-game series with the Annapolis A. C. also is being arranged.

Candidates for the team are requested to report for the initial practice Sunday at Hayden's Field.

Joe Hamilton, director of the Junior League, has announced that minature gold baseballs will be awarded to players on the championsh Celtic junior five. The Celtics won from The Post Juniors, second-half winners, in two straight games. Players with the team are Pat Gorman, Celinski, Schlagg, Scott, Sherwood and Carne.

Hampden-Sydney Lacking Pitchers

Campbell Only Veteran of Coach Bernier's Staff.

By the Associated Press.

Hampden-Sydney, Va., March 22. If his weakened pitching staff can hold the opposition fairly well in check, Coach Charlie Bernier believes his heavy hitting Hampden-Sydney baseball team will build up a good working margin for the twirlers.

His only veteran, Capt. Clarence "Soup" Campbell, can pitch with the best of the Old Dominion's college moundsmen, but with a 23-game schedule in the offing, he may need more support than the untried sophomore hurlers can give him.

He may get some aid from young Charlie Bernier, son of the Tiger coach and a promising recruit, and other sophomores, Tommy Eason, Jep Moss and Bill Thacker, may help some.

If the pitchers come through, the Tigers, barring injuries, will show opponents a formidable team. Mayes and Dallas Ogden will take care of the first base assignment and three capable lads, Berry Hodgson, Bill Thomas and Tappy Squires, will be stationed at the other infield positions.

The schedule:

April 3, Delaware, home; 4, Delaware, home; 6, Vermont, home; 13, Union Theological Seminary, home; 15, Bridgewater, home; 16, Bridgewater, home; 19, Long Island University, home; 22, Medical College, home; 23, Randolph-Macon, Ashland; 24, Randolph-Macon, Ashland; 26, St. John's, home; 27, St. John's, home; 29, Richmond, Richmond; 30, Medical College, Richmond.

May 6, Richmond, home; 9, Delaware, Newark, Del.; 10, St. John's, Annapolis; 11, St. John's, Annapolis; 13, Bridgewater, Bridgewater; 14, Bridgewater, Bridgewater; 15, Virginia, University; 17, Randolph-Macon, home; 18, Randolph-Macon, home.

Cumberland Stadium Movement Is Pushed

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Cumberland, Md., March 22.—The leasing of Community Baseball Park by Fort Cumberland Post, No. 13, American Legion, has given impetus to the movement for a municipal stadium. The site, on Wineow street, is owned by the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal Company and the lease was arranged through G. L. Nicolson, Washington, general manager of the Canal Towage Company, which had operated the canal.

The park was opened in 1923 as Mid-City Park by James F. McGuire, now of Washington, D. C.; Irving Millenson and the late James K. Ford. In 1932, Community Baseball found itself unable to continue to operate and surrendered its franchise in the Middle Atlantic League. Since then, Eugene W. Law has operated the park for school and independent teams as the representative of the Canal Towage Company.

More Players Signed By Frostburg Demons

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Frostburg, Md., March 22.—The Frostburg Demons of the Inter-State League last night announced the addition of the following players: Pete Cook and Ray Bruck, of Hyndman, Pa.; "Jaggers" Drew, of Carlos; Catcher Drew, of Midlothian; Stanley Karrouski, of Reading, Pa., and Al Brunner and Bobby Shaffer.

"Vic" May, of Cumberland, also is being sought and is expected to sign a contract in a few days.

Two New York Golfers Advance to Aiken Final

Aiken, S. C., March 22 (AP).—Christopher J. Dunphy and Alfred S. Bourne, both of New York, today won their way into the finals of the annual Southern Cross Golf tournament.

Dunphy won his semifinal match over Frank V. Burton, New York, 5 and 4, and Bourne eliminated Lewis T. Preston, New York, 2 and 1.

Soccer Teams In 2 Matches Tomorrow

Americans Play Germans; British and Italians in Nightcap.

ROSEDALE FIELD is being put into tip-top condition for the German-American and British-Italian soccer matches tomorrow afternoon in anticipation of a capacitiy crowd which may include representatives of embassies of the participating countries.

The first game is scheduled for 1 p. m.

The British team, which meets the Italians at 2:30, will be endeavoring to retain possession of the trophy which was last won by a Scottish team, several members of the then winners being in tomorrow's line-up. Well served at back and half back, with a clever forward line, the British are still gambling with the position of goal keeper, just as in the last international series several years ago.

At that time, a so-called veteran was pressed into service to play goal, and the display he gave was largely responsible for the eventual Scotch victory. Tomorrow, the British will exhibit a recent find in the person of Baker, who had no experience in soccer previous to this season, but who is developing fast under the training of John Gunn, manager of the Britishers.

Acquisition of "Auggie" Tamagni and Charlie Aquilino at half back, and Stasulli and Minni for forwards are expected to aid the Italian team.

Yanks in Stiff Drill To Cure Fielding Ills

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 22 (AP). Art Fletcher, acting manager of the Yankees, in the absence of Joe McCarthy, gave his charges a stiff workout today in an effort to cure the fielding faults that have turned up in their exhibition games.

After a long drill in the field, Fletcher sent Lou Gehrig to bat with orders to stay there until he finally got a hit. Lou has made only two hits in five games.

Landis Fights Bezenah on Monday

THE complete supporting card for next Monday night's fight show was announced yesterday as Pete Sarron and California Joe Rivers, featherweights, who will occupy the feature spot in a ten-round encounter, neared the end of their long training grinds.

Three sixes and a four-rounder will comprise the supporting bouts. In one of the sixes, Mickey Landis, the fighting school teacher, will engage one Elmer Bezénah, a knockout artist from New England, it was announced yesterday. In other six-rounders, Roddy Davis will encounter Eddie Marks and Tincan Romanelli will make passes at Ray (Kid) Ingram. A four-rounder between George McCaron and Buster Wages will open the festivities.

Change in Merit Award.

A change whereby the preliminary boy staging the best battle, whether in victory or defeat, will be voted, the $10 merit award, given to Sid Silas last week, will go into effect Monday night. Although the press, which determines the winner of the award, generally considered the comeback of Roddy Davis, after being floored by Silas, the highlight of the preliminary card, the ballot was cast for Sid because Matchmaker Ahearn had stipulated the prize must go to the actual winner of the outstanding preliminary.

Both Sarron and Rivers have been hampered somewhat in training by lack of sparring partners. The paucity of human punching bags generally is believed to ack more to the detriment of Sarron than Rivers, as Pete needs more boxing before a fight than does the Mexican.

Champion Dog Entered In Trials at Towson

Towson, Md., March 22 (AP).—The entry of Homewood Flirtation, named grand champion of the national field trials at Grand Junction, Tenn., recently, for the field trials over the Loch Raven course next week, was announced today by officials of the Maryland Field Trials Association.

C. M. Curry, of Pittsburgh, owner of the grand champion, said his entry would be sent here and placed in care of Trainer Fred Bevan. Homewood Flirtation was rated as a favorite in the Shooting Dog stake, the feature on the three-day program beginning Wednesday.

Inflation Ideas Rally Stocks In Last Hour

Pivotal Issues Make Gains of From 1 to 2 Points.

By the Associated Press.

New York, March 22.—A mild attack of inflation fever was communicated to the financial markets in late dealings today. When traders saw the unexpectedly large 318-to-90 vote in the House in favor of the Patman bonus bill with its $2,000,000,000 greenback payment feature, an earlier dawdling market with reactionary tendencies was quickly reversed.

The change in sentiment was too late to lift the whole list substantially, but some of the pivotal issues such as U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Allied Chemical, American Tobacco "B," Union Pacific and American Smelting got ahead 1 to 2 points or so each and other leaders were generally fractionally firm at the finish.

Business done on the Stock Exchange, at 780,898 shares, was a bit below the previous session, due to the quiet tone of early dealings, but the activity was well above the general level of the past week or so. The Associatd Press average for 60 stocks advanced 0.7 of a point to 36.7, the highest figure since March 8.

Other than the leaders, most active issues confined their improvements to less than a point, including American Can at 115½, Montgomery Ward at 24½, Interantional Harvester at 37⅞, Westinghouse at 36 and General Motors at 28⅝.

War Alarms Raise Grains

Cotton Futures Rise $150 a Bale; Bonus Bill a Stimulant.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, March 22.—Nervousness regarding increased notice taken of chances of war in Europe had considerable to do with a material upturn of grain values.

Contributing to market strength was a revival of inflation talk, together with late advices of new dust storms in domestic wheat territory Southwest. At the day's top prices, May was up about 5 cents a bushel higher than Monday's inside level.

Wheat closed firm, ½-1⅜ above yesterday's finish; May, 95¼-95⅜; corn, unchanged to ¾ higher; May, 78¾-78¾; oats, ¼-⅜ advanced, and provisions showing a rise of 15 to 27 cents.

Unexpectedly higher prices for wheat at Liverpool acted as a stimulus to wheat buyers here as soon as trading began, and so, too, did reports of need of rain Southwest and West. Unusual curtailment of wheat shipments from the southern hemisphere was given as a reason for strength shown by the Liverpool market.

Temporarily, the Chicago grain pits were thrown into confusion by a report that the Argentine government had sharply reduced its guaranteed price for new crop corn.

Cotton Market.

New York, March 22 (AP).—Coming to life in the late trading the cotton futures market pushed up $1.50 a bale and closed very steady at net gains of 23 to 24 points.

Trading was quiet and featureless until buying interest was stimulated by the news that the House had passed the Patman bonus bill. The bill was viewed as having "inflationary implications." May sold up to 10.99 and October to 10.69, or 27 to 34 points net higher and closing quotations were within 3 to 4 points of the best.

Consensus Is That Moderate Rise in Retail Trade Would Follow Enactment of Patman Measure; Results Held in Doubt.

By a Special Correspondent.

New York, March 22.—The Patman bill for immediate payment of the soldiers' bonus with $2,000,000,000 of greenbacks is disliked here chiefly because it is held certain to fail to accomplish what its supporters predict for it. Consequently, sponsors of the measure will doubtless argue that $2,000,000,000 currency issue was not sufficient, and that new and larger issues of paper money are needed to obtain the full stimulus needed to end the depression—a line of argument that has been traditionally used by inflationists in various countries.

A survey of business and banking opinion on the subject indicates virtual unanimity that a moderate upturn in retail trade, spread all over the country, would follow enactment of the Patman measure.

A similar result followed adoption of the 50 per cent loan plan on veterans' certificates early in 1931. At that time, retail trade reflected the spending of bonus money for two or there months. With the lower price level now prevailing and the much larger amount of cash that would be paid out if the bonus were paid off entirely, the effect might be more protracted. In any event, it is held certain that little of the money paid out will go into durable goods or investments, so that only the consumption goods industries, including among the latter automobiles, would feel any direct effects.

Money Spent Would Go Into Banks.

The commodity and security markets also might have a short lived speculative upturn of moderate proportions. Once the money is spent, it will quickly find its way into the banks. As is well known, the American public is habituated to the use of bank deposits to transact most of its business. The amount of paper money in use does not vary materially except because of seasonal influences, especially now that confidence in the banking system has been reestablished. Hence, the new greenbacks would mostly be deposited with the banks within a few weeks after they were put out. The total of bank deposits, which increased by more than $5,000,000,000 during the past year, would thus be expanded by another $2,000,000,000.

In view of the low average rate of turnover of bank deposits under prevailing conditions, however, this further expansion in their volume could have little practical effect.

The commercial banks will deposit most of these new greenbacks with the Federal Reserve Banks, thus further adding to their excess reserves. Surplus balances of member banks with the Federal Reserve Bank would rise from $2,000,000,000 to $4,000,000,000. However, lack of suitable commitments cause most bankers largely to ignore the fact that they have surplus balances which earn no interest. To double an already enormous supply of excess reserves should make very little difference in banking conditions at this time.

Greenbacks Would Replace Federal Notes.

When member banks draw currency from the Reserve banks to meet requests from customers for cash, greenbacks will be paid out if available. Hence, the two billions of greenbacks issued under the Patman bill would gradually replace an equivalent amount of Federal Reserve notes, which would slowly be retired from circulation. At the present time, we have approximately $4,800,000,000 of paper money outstanding, of which $3,150,000,000 are Federal Reserve notes. The issuance of the greenbacks would make a much smaller part of our paper money supply consist of Reserve notes, and a much larger part would assume the inflexible form of unsecured paper money. However, so long as the greenback issue remains only a fraction of the normal amount of paper money required by the country, this would be only of nominal importance, as shown by the experience of other countries that have a moderate fixed issue of Government paper money outstanding, such as Canada.

Aside from a short-lived stimulus to retail trade, therefore, and a possible flurry in speculative markets, the proposed greenback issue would have only nominal effect, in that it would merely intensify an already highly artificial condition of extreme ease in the money market.

When the temporary stimulus wears off, however, and when the other predicted results fail to appear, passage of the Patman bill might well be held up as a precedent for adopting other similar nostrums for giving quick relief from the depression through artificial inflation of purchasing power.

Holland Upholds Gold Provision In Dollar Loan

By the Associated Press.

Amsterdam, March 22.—A Netherlands court today ruled that the gold clause contained in a dollar loan issued in 1927 by Osram, Inc., of Berlin, as requiring interest, must be paid in gold or its equivalent value.

The company issued a $5,000,000 loan, partly in Sweden and Switzerland but mainly—$3,000,000 worth—in the Netherlands. The bonds contain a clause stipulating that the capital and interest are payable in United States' gold dollars of the then current weight and alloy.

"Amsterdams Effectenblad," a commercial publication, sued for the payment in gold and the judge found for the plaintiff, deciding that the 7 per cent interest must be paid in gold or its equivalent value. It was stated that an appeal was probable.

Stocks—Inflation fever in late trading gave issues a push after favorable action on the bonus bill. Major corporates registered the most substantial gains, the general list closing at the top. Sales for the day were 780,898 shares.

Bonds — Foreign shares fluctuated violently but failed to affect domestic corporates and Federals to any extent. Rails and industrials were strong, utilities steady. Sales $10,248,000.

Grains—War fears coupled with inflation talk boosted grains, with closes at the day's tops. May wheat closed at 95¼ while May corn sold last at 78⅝.

Cotton—Roused in late trading and closed the session about $1.50 a bale higher, a net gain of 23 to 34 points. May closed at 10.95.

Sugar—Raw sugar was steady, closing at 3.05 unchanged. Refined closed at 4.30 to 4.50 for fine granulated, unchanged.

Coffee—Spot coffee was barely steady. Rio No. 7 closed at 7¼ while Santos No. 4 sold last at 8¾.

Bar silver—Up ¼ in New York to close at 59. In London it closed at 27 3-16 pence per ounce, unchanged. (U. S. equivalent, 58.26 cents).

Auburn Auto Exports Reach New High Point

Auburn, Ind., March 22.—Export shipments of Auburn cars for January and February were the largest in any like period in the history of the company and surpassed the entire export shipments for the year 1933, R. S. Wiley, export manager, said here today.

Wiley said that the company's overseas distributing organization had been doubled during the last 12 months and that Auburn was represented in every important world market covering 56 countries.

The Dollar Abroad.

Freight Loads Gain 10,162 on Previous Week

But Total Is 30,117 Under Figures for 1934 Period.

By R. Karl von Lewinski.

Revenue freight loads gained 10,162 cars during the week ended March 16 for a total of 597,432, according to the Association of American Railroads here.

Despite the increase over the preceding week the loadings were 30,117 below the corresponding week of 1934. They showed an increase of 143,795 cars over 1933 and an increase of 143,795 above the corresponding week in 1933.

Rapid Transit Earns More.

Operating income of the company during the short month jumped to $3,036.19 from the previous year's aggregate of $617.34. Total operating revenues during the month increased to $33,658.76, as compared with the same month's total of $31,003.75 in the previous year.

Net revenues for the month after deductions from gross totaled $1,359.77, compared with a net deficit of $1,366.28 in the previous year.

The Carpel Corporation, food distributing concern listed in the Washington Stock Exchange, has shown great improvement during 1934, according to the earnings report filed yesterday. Income amounted to $3.07 per share, as compared with 91 cents per share the previous year. Listed at 15½ on the Washington Stock Exchange at the present time the stock yields $1 per year.

Spring Wheat Crop Prospects Fade on Deficient Moisture

Weather Bureau Reports Show That Only Two of Seven Crop States Have Normal Rainfall.

Coincident with the lifting of the spring wheat restrictions by the Department of Commerce an independent survey of rainfall percentages in the early crop States disclosed yesterday that official Weather Bureau figures place the rainfall in North Dakota, producing a third of the entire yield, at 61 per cent of normal.

The report, prepared by Harry Brisker of the Washington office of Harriman & Keech, showed also that with the exception of Washington and Minnesota the entire belt is deficient in moisture.

Wheat experts generally agree that 90 per cent normal rainfall presages a poor crop, while the range below 70 per cent is considered crop failure.

Rainfall as reported during the 8-month period up to February, placed Montana next to the bottom with a 67 per cent of normal precipitation. South Dakota registered 76 per cent of normal while Idaho was moistened at 78 per cent of the usual rate.

The average domestic crop runs about 850,000,000 bushels per year, of which 650,000,000 are needed for domestic consumption. While the deficiency of the spring yield is placed at about 25,000,000 bushels, approximate crop prospects for the entire year have been placed at more than 50,000,000 bushels below the domestic needs.

In the winter wheat belt, the figures show that such important States as Kansas, Ohio, Nebraska, Oklahoma and Texas have recorded substantial deficiences in rainfall during the same period.

It is noteworthy that the moisture lack has been especially pronounced in the western part rather than in the eastern part of the Great Plains winter wheat belt, included between the Texas Panhandle and the Dakotas. This is borne out by the fact that the existing dust storms, which began in February, are concentrated in western Nebraska, Kansas, Colorado, Texas and Oklahoma.

Business Shows February Gains

Expansion of Auto Sales Helps to Increase Industrial Activity.

New York, March 22.—Business conditions in February showed a slight improvement over January, according to the regular monthly business survey of the National Industrial Conference Board.

Continued expansion of motor production was largely responsible for the increase in industrial activity. The automobile industry registered the highest record of motor production of any February except that in 1924, 1926 and 1929. Other increases, and declines, as reported by the Conference Board, follow:

Retail trade advanced both in value and in volume of sales during February. Department store sales rose about 5 per cent in dollar value during February, against a usual seasonal decline of 1.3 per cent.

Building and engineering construction awards in 37 Eastern States were the lowest for any month since April, 1933.

Public works construction dropped 33 per cent from the January level and was slightly more than one-half the figure reported in February, 1934. The largest decline took place in public utility contract awards which were 55.4 per cent lower than in January.

Steel production increased for the month as a whole, but the gain was not maintained during the first half of March. Production on an average daily basis was 25.6 per cent higher than for February, 1934.

Electric power output in February declined 0.2 per cent from the January average. Production was 6.1 per cent higher than in February of last year.

Foreign trade. Improvement in foreign trade, which has continued almost without interruption since June, 1933, was maintained during January of this year.

Business failures in February totaled 1,005. This was 15.1 per cent lower than in the preceding month and 4.2 per cent lower than in February, 1934.

$7,000,000 Bonds Offered

New York, March 22.—The first important corporation bond offering since the gold clause decisions were handed down by the Supreme Court in February was made today with an issue of $7,000,000 first lien and refunding mortgage 5½ per cent bonds due 1959 of the Wisconsin Public Service Corporation. The bonds are being offered by a group comprising the First Boston Corporation, H. M. Byllesby & Co., Inc., W. C. Langley & Co., Edward B. Smith & Co., A. C. Allyn & Co., Inc., and Halsey Staurt & Co., Inc. The bonds are priced at 95½ and accrued interest to yield about 5.85 per cent.

Proceeds from the sale of the bonds will be used to pay $6,375,000 of the corporation's bank loans. These loans were used in part to pay obligations of Wisconsin Valley Electric Co., whose properties were acquired in 1933, and also for the retirement of bank loans, notes and underlying bonds and for working capital.

The bonds are secured by a direct mortgage on all fixed property of the company subject to $5,990,000 bonds on part of the property. They are a direct first mortgage on approximately 50 per cent of the company's properties, which are carried at $49,063,761.43 against which total bonds to be outstanding are $24,220,000.

Foreign Bonds Fall; Domestic Issues Steady

Belgian Obligations an Exception to European Trend.

By the Associated Press.

New York, March 22.—The bond market had to contend with another violent swing in the foreign department today, but domestic corporate and Government issues had little difficulty in holding to a steady course.

Especially bright spots were found in rails and industrials, and while utilities lost some of yesterday's popularity, supply and demand were fairly well balanced and changes were generally narrow.

House passage of the Patman bonus bill had but little effect on the Government list. Gains averaging around three-thirty-seconds were in the majority among Treasury issues.

Increased tension in international political and monetary fields was reflected strongly in the foreign section. Government and private obligations of Germany, France and Italy were subjected to heavy selling pressure and many recorded losses of 2 points, while German Agricultural Bank 6s declined 6⅜. Belgian loans, on the other hand, showed substantial improvement despite weakness of the belga in foreign exchange.

Transfers aggregated $10,248,000, par value, and the Associated Press averages were .1 of a point lower to .3 of a point higher.

Virginia Carolina Directors Protest

Ask Court to Reverse Dividend Order.

By the Associated Press.

Richmond, Va., March 21.—Four directors of the Virginia Carolina Chemical Corporation—Mason B. Starring, George E. Warren, Harry Bronner, and Alfred Levinger, all of New York City—have filed a petition for a writ of error in the Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals here, in which they ask that the decision of Judge Ernest H. Wells, of Hustings Court, requiring the directors to pay a $7 dividend on the company's prior preference stock, be reversed. Should any member of the appellate court grant the writ, a hearing by the full court would be assured.

The corporation itself is not a party to the appeal, although it contended before Judge Wells that the dividend should not be paid. The suit to compel declaration of the dividend was brought by George S. Kemp, a director, on behalf of himself and other stockholders. The payment ordered amounts to approximately $380,000.

Baldwin Stockholders Organize Committee

New York, March 22.—A committee has been organized to represent the interests of the holders of common stock of the Baldwin Locomotive Works, which on February 25 filed in the Federal courts a voluntary petition under Section 77B of the Federal statute providing for the reorganization of corporations. The committee comprises K. D. Steere, Paine, Webber & Co., chairman; Louis E. Nohl, Bankers Trust Co.; J. Ford Johnson, Charles D. Barney & Co. Alfred H. Cumbers, of 120 Broadway, is the secretary of the committee.

The committee does not propose at present to ask for deposits of certificates of stock, but requests authority to act on behalf of holders of common stock through powers of attorney which may be obtained from the secretary of the committee.

Pacific States Lead Life Insurance Sales

Hartford, Conn., March 22.—The Pacific section of the United States, comprising Washington, Oregon, and California, showed more of a gain in sales of ordinary life insurance during February as compared with February, 1934, than any other part of the country, according to the Life Insurance Sales Research Bureau's monthly analysis. For the country as a whole, February business was 13 per cent ahead of figures for the same month last year. Taking the first two months of 1935 and comparing them with the same two months last year, the Bureau found that this year's sales were up by 25 per cent. Business for the year ending February 28, 1935, was 14 per cent better than for the 12 months ending February 28, 1934.

N. Y. Department Store Sales Show Decline

New York, March 22 (AP).—Sales by department stores in the metropolitan area of New York declined 10.3 per cent in the 13 shopping days from March 1 to March 15, compared with the same period last year, according to reports to the New York Federal Reserve Bank.

Easter shopping this year is three weeks later than it was last year.

Curb Continues Upward Trend

Utilities Lead Rise; Com. Edison Advances 3½ Points.

By the Associated Press.

New York, March 22.—Led by a further rally in utility shares, the curb market extended its recovery today. Some specialties pushed up rather substantially in the late dealings. Volume also increased near the close, transfers approximating 141,000 shares, compared with 147,000 the day before.

In the power and light group, Commonwealth Edison rose 3½ points, American Gas & Electric advanced a point, while Electric Bond & Share improved fractionally. Gains of 3 points were recorded by Aluminum Co. of America and A. O. Smith. Fractional betterment prevailed in Swift International, Pittsburgh Plate Glass, International Petroleum, Swift & Co., Gulf Oil and Creole Petroleum.

Dried Fruits Steady.

New York, March 22 (AP).—DRIED FRUITS—Steady and unchanged.

Hudson Motor Seeks $6,000,000 In Federal Loan

By the Associated Press.

New York, March 22.—The Hudson Motor Car Co. is negotiating with the Federal Reserve banks of New York and Chicago for a $6,000,000 loan, it was reported in Wall street today.

If arranged, the loan will be the largest industrial advance to be made since this type of credit was authorized for the Federal Reserve banks last year. Under the present plans certain commercial banks and banking houses here and in Chicago and Detroit will participate in the transaction.

Boston Wool Market.

Boston, March 22 (AP) (U. S. Dept. Agr.).—Domestic wools were receiving a good demand in the Boston market. The finer quality Western-grown wools and medium fleeces were prominent in the demand. Bulk average to good French combing 64s and finer territory wools in original bags moved readily at 60 to 63 cents, scoured basis. Average twelve months Texas wools were fairly active also at 60 to 63 cents; strictly combing 48s, 50s, quarter-blood Ohio and similar fleeces brought 23½ to 24 cents in the grease, or about 43 cents scoured basis. A fairly large volume of average combing semiblood and other Midwestern fleeces or similar grade brought 41 to 42 cents scoured basis.

Engineer Session Program Planned

Students to Hear Talks by Leaders in Profession.

By the Associated Press.

Lexington, Va., March 22.—Leading engineers will address the first convention ever staged in this State by student chapters of the American Society of Civil Engineers, according to the program announced today.

The V. M. I. Chapter of the society will act as host at the two-day meeting on Friday and Saturday, March 29 and 30. E. M. Hastings, chief engineer of the Richmond, Fredericksburg & Potomac Railroad, will preside.

Speakers will include George T. Seabury, national secretary of the A. S. C. E.; Col. H. M. Waite, former assistant director of the PWA and now with the Ohio State employment service; Col. James A. Anderson, head of the V. M. I. engineering department and PWA engineer for Virginia; C. A. Hogentogler, of the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads, and Dr. Robert Cuker, of Washington and Lee.

Maj. Gen. John A. Lejeune, V. M. I. superintendent, will welcome the delegates Friday morning. A review of the cadet corps and a smoker and banquet also are scheduled Friday.

Riegel to Concentrate On Amateur in Virginia

Richmond, Va., March 22 (AP).—Bobby Riegel, Virginia's No. 1 amateur golfer and Middle Atlantic champion, will concentrate this year on the State Amateur, he said today.

"I was lucky enough to win the Middle Atlantic last year, the city title and three club championships," said the young University of Richmond student, "but I just can't get past the semifinals in that State tournament. That's one event where I want to bear down this season."

PROPOSALS

COMMISSIONERS, D. C., WASHINGTON, March 22, 1935. Sealed proposals will be received at Room 309, District Building, until 2 o'clock p. m., April 5, 1935, and then publicly opened, for furnishing, installing and connecting two booster pumps and equipment in the heating plant, District of Columbia workhouse at Occoquan, Va. Apply Room 427, District Building, for proposals and specifications.

TUESDAY, APRIL 2, 1935—
THOMAS J. OWEN & SON, Auctioneers, 1431 I Street Northwest.

TRUSTEES' SALE OF VALUABLE REAL ESTATE. BEING A TWO-STORY BRICK DWELLING, CONTAINING SIX ROOMS AND BATH. ALSO BUILT-IN GARAGE; KNOWN AS 938 QUINCY STREET NORTHWEST.

By virtue of a certain deed of trust recorded in Liber No. 6334, at folio 253, of the land records of the District of Columbia, and at the request of the party secured thereby, the undersigned will sell at public auction in front of the premises on TUESDAY, THE SECOND DAY OF APRIL, 1935, AT THREE-THIRTY O'CLOCK P. M., the following-described land and premises situate in the District of Columbia, and being lot numbered ninety-one (91) in square numbered twenty-nine hundred and one (2901), in the subdivision made by Thomas A. Jameson, as per plat recorded in Liber No. 17, at folio 86, of the records of the office of the surveyor for the District of Columbia.

TERMS OF SALE: Said property is subject to a prior deed of trust securing an indebtedness of $4,750.00, now past due, and said property will be sold subject to said deed of trust indebtedness. Of the purchase price over and above said deed of trust $750.00 is to be paid in cash, and the balance to be secured by second deed of trust on the property sold, payable in monthly installments of $65.00, including interest at the rate of 6 per cent, said payment to also include interest on the first trust; or all cash at the option of the purchaser. Interest and taxes to be paid or adjusted to the date of sale. A deposit of $250.00 will be required at the time of sale. All conveyancing, recording, revenue stamps, etc., at the cost of purchaser. Good title or no sale. Terms of sale to be complied with within thirty (30) days from day of sale, otherwise deposit will be forfeited and property resold at risk and cost of defaulting purchaser after five (5) days' advertisement of such resale in some newspaper published in Washington, D. C.

JOHN SAUL,
WILLIAM P. BENSON,
Trustees.

Walt Mason, Himself

The Bitter Man.

MANY men grow sour and bitter under pressure of the slump; once they used to sing and twitter gayly round the village pump; they were jesters, they were jokers, and they filled the air with mirth, and insisted that all croakers should be banished from the earth. Like the balance of the voters they have lost their coin in chunks, stocks in mines and rails and motors, representing countless plunks; and they can't pretend they like it, can't conceal their load of care; down the poorhouse road they hike it, with the gesture of despair. If the legions who were losers, should complain and howl and bawl, should elect to be the users of the well-known Weeping Wall; there would be so sad a chorus that the hearts of all would break, life itself would simply bore us, it would seem an endless ache. Countless thousands lost their shanties, which involved their final plunk, they've excuse for gloom like Dante's, but they've too much pride and spunk. Countless workmen lost their flivvers, countless farmers lost their steers, but they shed no useless rivers of the soul-corroding tears. Countless merchants saw the sheriff come and close the shop and store, just as though he didn't care if commerce lasted any more. Calmly they have borne their burden, they have kept the Nation sane, and they'll doubtless get their guerdon when the sun's on deck again. But the men with mourning faces are a damper and a frost, lacking all the pleasant graces, spreading grief at any cost.

Gift of $1,000 Aids Campaign For Symphony

A gift of $1,000 from Woodward & Lothrop was reported at yesterday's meeting of the campaign committee of the National Symphony Orchestra at the Carlton Hotel.

As this is the third gift of $1,000 to match the provisional gift of that amount made by Mr. and Mrs. Christian Heurich, Mrs. Oliver Strunk, co-chairman of the business committee, announced that one more gift of $1,000 is needed to secure the Heurich donation.

Honor guests at the meeting included Henry L. Roosevelt Assistant Secretary of the Navy; H. L. Rust, jr., Community Chest campaign chairman, and Frances Nash, pianist, who is the wife of Col. E. M. Watson, military aide to President Roosevelt.

The following contributions were reported by the educational committee, $305, through Mrs. A. K. Payne, from the students of Mount Vernon Seminary, and $37.25 from the faculty of Central High School.

Prof. Will Hutchins, reporting for the university committee, announced that $50 has been received from the Alumni Association of George Washington University and $25 from American University.

Mrs. Ernest Gruening, co-chairman of the Government committee, said that responses were expected soon from 3,656 Government officials contacted during the week. Gifts of $145 were reported by Mrs. William R. Monroe, of the Navy committee, while the national committee announced that contributions had been received from both Thomas Lamont and Thomas S. Lamont, of New York.

The campaign committee will meet again today at 1 p. m. at the Carlton Hotel.

Albert Douglas Heirs File Petition on Estate

Richard Douglas and his sister, Grace Douglas Johnson, only children of the late Albert Douglas, who died March 14, will share equally in his $235,895 estate, it was shown yesterday in the District Supreme Court when they filed a petition showing they were his sole heirs.

In a petition filed by Attorney George M. McKee, the children asked that the Riggs National Bank be appointed administrator of the estate.

Catholic U. Students Will Meet on Mexico

Treatment of Mexican seminarians by the Mexican governmental officials will be the theme of a conference discussion today at 9 a. m. by students of Catholic University Seminary in Caldwell Hall at the university.

Bill Will Ban PayTax Burden For Employes

Amendment Would Allow Employers to Dodge Levy by Wage Cut.

The District unemployment insurance bill, which probably will be reported next week to the House District Committee, will carry an amendment prohibiting employers from passing along the pay roll tax to employes in the form of wage cuts.

This was revealed yesterday by Representative Henry Ellenbogen (Democrat), of Pennsylvania, sponsor of the bill and chairman of the sub-committee which held hearings on it.

Ellenbogen pointed out that the employe, although not taxed directly in the bill, would be forced to pay in reduced income should he become unemployed and eligible for insurance.

The Pennsylvanian already has drafted another amendment since the hearings closed to apply the merit system to the pay roll tax. Under this plan employers with a small labor turnover would be allowed a smaller tax than the 3 per cent.

The District Commissioners yesterday sent to the Senate and House District committees non-committal reports on the Ellenbogen bill after receiving a delegation from the District Bankers Association urging opposition to the measure.

"The policies of the government of the District on matters of this sort are so intertwined with corresponding policies of the Federal Government," they wrote, "that the Commissioners do not believe that it is advisable to commit themselves to any definite attitude toward this bill until the national policy on the subject is determined by Congress.

"They regret that this conviction on their part prevents their communicating to you of any official word concerning the bill, but believe that you will realize their position and appreciate their difficulty in the pending uncertainty as to the terms and extent of the national legislation."
